The Year of the Rose Stanza 1

A rain and rum, of roses
 Over the red rose-land

Ibid Stanza 9

When the hounds of spring are on winter's traces

Atalanta in Calydon Chorus

For winter's rains and ruins are over,
 And all the season of snows and sins,
 The days dividing lover and lover,
 The light that loses, the night that wins

Ibid

Before the beginning of years
 There came to the making of man
 Time with a gift of tears,
 Grief with a glass that ran.

<sup>1</sup> On the grass of the cliff, at the edge of the steep,
 God planted a garden, a garden of sleep
 CLEMENT W SCOTT [1841-1904] The Garden of Sleep (Cromer, England)

He weaves, and is clothed with derision,
Sows, and he shall not reap,
His life is a watch or a vision
Between a sleep and a sleep

Atalanta in Calydon Chorus

A little while and I shall laugh; and then

I shall weep never and laugh not any more

Ibid

And through the trumpet of a child of Rome

Rang the pure music of the flutes of Greece

*Song for the Centenary of Walter Savage Landor
Stanza 17*

No sweeter thing than children's ways
and wiles,

Surely, we say, can gladden eyes and ears

Yet sometimes sweeter than their words or smiles

Are even their tears

A Child's Pity Stanza 1

All the bells of heaven may ring,

All the birds of heaven may sing,

All the wells on earth may spring,

All the winds on earth may bring

All sweet sounds together.

A Child's Laughter Stanza 1

Faith in faith established evermore

Stands a sea-mark in the tides of time

A Sea-Mark. Stanza 5

Not with dreams, but with blood and
with iron,

Shall a nation be moulded to last.

A Word for the Country Stanza 13

Is not Precedent indeed a King of men?

A Word from the Psalmist. Stanza 4

Stately, kindly, lordly friend

Condescend

Here to sit by me

To a Cat

There is no help for these things,
none to mend,

And none to mar, not all our songs,
O friend,

Will make death clear or make life durable

Ave atque Vale. In Memory of Charles Baudelaire. Stanza 16

A little soul scarce fledged for earth
Takes wing with heaven again for goal Even while we hailed as fresh from birth

A little soul

A Baby's Death I, 1

Who knows but on their sleep may rise
Such light as never heaven let through
To lighten earth from Paradise?

Ibid. IV, 2

A baby's feet, like sea-shells pink,
Might tempt, should heaven see meet,
An angel's lips to kiss, we think,
A baby's feet

Étude Réaliste I, 1

The sweetest flowers in all the world —
A baby's hands

Ibid II, 3

All our past acclaims our future Shakespeare's voice and Nelson's hand, Milton's faith and Wordsworth's trust in this our chosen and chainless
land,

Bear as witness come the world against her, England yet shall stand

England, An Ode II, 5

Shelley, lyric lord of England's lordliest singers, here first heard

Ring from lips of poets crowned and dead the Promethean word

Whence his soul took fire, and power to outsoar the sunward-soaring bird

Eton, An Ode III

Body and spirit are twins God only knows which is which

*The Higher Pantheism in a Nut-

Quoted by MAX BEERBOHM, in

No 2, The Pines

It is long since Mr Carlyle expressed his opinion that if any poet or other literary creature could really be "killed off by one critique" or many, the sooner
he was so despatched the better, a sentiment in which I for one humbly but heartily concur

Under the Microscope

A blatant Bassarid of Boston, a rampant Maenad of Massachusetts

Ibid

To wipe off the froth of falsehood from the foaming lips of inebriated virtue, when fresh from the sexless orgies of morality and reeling from the delirious riot of religion, may doubtless be a charitable office

Ibid

The more congenial page of some tenth-rate poeticle worn out with failure after failure and now squat in his hole like the tailless fox, he is curled up to snarl and whimper beneath the inaccessible vine of song

FORCEYTHE WILLSON

[1837-1867]

And I heard a Bugle sounding, as from some celestial Tower,

And the same mysterious voice said: "It is the Eleventh Hour!"

Accident counts for much in companionship as in marriage

The Education of Henry Adams

Forceythe Willson, whose poem of "The Old Sergeant" Doctor Holmes used to read publicly in the closing year of the civil war, was of a Western altitude of figure, and of an extraordinary beauty of face in an oriental sort — W D HOWELLS Literary Friends and Acquaintance, Part VIII, Chap 8

Women have, commonly, a very positive moral sense, that which they will, is right, that which they reject, is wrong, and their will, in most cases, ends by settling the moral

Chap 6

All experience is an arch, to build upon <sup>1</sup>

Ibid

Only on the edge of the grave can man conclude anything

Ibid

Although the Senate is much given to admiring in its members a superiority less obvious or quite invisible to outsiders, one Senator seldom proclaims his own inferiority to another, and still more seldom likes to be told of it

Ibid Chap 7

Friends are born, not made.

Ibid.

A friend in power is a friend lost

Ibid (Also in Chap 16)

The effect of power and publicity on all men is the aggravation of self, a sort of tumor that ends by killing the victim's sympathies

Ibid Chap 10

Young men have a passion for regarding their elders as senile

Ibid. Chap 11

Knowledge of human nature is the beginning and end of political education

Ibid. Chap 12

These questions of taste, of feeling, of inheritance, need no settlement. Everyone carries his own inch-rule of taste, and amuses himself by applying it, triumphantly, wherever he travels

Ibid.

Intimates are predestined

Ibid Chap 13

His first struggle with a sleeping-car made him doubt the value — to him — of a Pullman civilization

Chap 16

At best, the renewal of broken relations is a nervous matter

Ibid

Sumner's<sup>1</sup> mind had reached the calm of water which receives and reflects images without absorbing them, it contained nothing but itself

Ibid

The difference is slight, to the influence of an author, whether he is read by five hundred readers, or by five hundred thousand, if he can select the five hundred, he reaches the five hundred thousand

Ibid Chap 17

The newspaper-man is, more than most men, a double personality, and his person feels best satisfied in its double instincts when writing in one sense and thinking in another

Ibid

A teacher affects eternity, he can never tell where his influence stops

Ibid Chap 20

One friend in a lifetime is much, two are many, three are hardly possible. Friendship needs a certain parallelism of life, a community of thought, a rivalry of aim

Ibid

What one knows is, in youth, of little moment, they know enough who know how to learn

Ibid Chap 21

He had often noticed that six months' oblivion amounts to newspaper-death, and that resurrection is rare. Nothing is easier, if a man wants it, than rest, profound as the grave

Ibid. Chap 22

Morality is a private and costly luxury

Ibid

Nothing is more tiresome than a superannuated pedagogue

Ibid Chap 23

The study of history is useful to the historian by teaching him his ignorance of women. The woman who is known only through a man is known wrong

Chap 23

He too serves a certain purpose who only stands and cheers<sup>1</sup>

Ibid Chap 24

Practical politics consists in ignoring facts

Ibid

Nothing in education is so astonishing as the amount of ignorance it accumulates in the form of inert facts

Ibid Chap 25

Power when wielded by abnormal energy is the most serious of facts

Ibid Chap 28

Those who seek education in the paths of duty are always deceived by the illusion that power in the hands of friends is an advantage to them

Ibid

Power is poison. Its effect on Presidents had been always tragic, chiefly as an almost insane excitement at first, and a worse reaction afterwards, but also because no mind is so well balanced as to bear the strain of seizing unlimited force without habit or knowledge of it, and finding it disputed with him by hungry packs of wolves and hounds whose lives depend on snatching the carrion.

Ibid

A certain chronic irritability — a sort of Bostonitis — which, in its primitive Puritan forms, seemed due to knowing too much of his neighbors and thinking too much of himself

Modern politics is, at bottom, a struggle not of men but of forces

Ibid

We combat obstacles in order to get repose, and, when got, the repose is insupportable

<sup>1</sup> And if I should lose, let me stand by the road

And cheer as the winners go by!

BERTON BRALEY Prayer of a Sportsman

Simplicity is the most deceitful mistress that ever betrayed man

Chap 30

No one means all he says, and yet very few say all they mean, for words are slippery and thought is viscous

Ibid. Chap 31

The movement from unity into multiplicity, between 1200 and 1900, was unbroken in sequence, and rapid in acceleration. Prolonged one generation longer, it would require a new social mind

Ibid. Chap 34
(A Law of Acceleration)

Even in America, the Indian Summer of life should be a little sunny and a little sad, like the season, and infinite in wealth and depth of tone — but never hustled

Ibid. Chap 35

Perhaps some day — say 1938, their centenary — they would find a world that sensitive and timid natures could regard without a shudder

SHERMAN's introduction to The Poetical Works of Joaquin Miller (G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1923), Miller explains the origin of his pen-name. His first writing was a public letter in defense of Joaquin Murietta, the outlaw. A Sacramento newspaper banteringly identified him with the outlaw, and friends continued the banter. Ye marshes, how candid and simple and nothing-withholding and free

Ye publish yourselves to the sky and offer yourselves to the sea!

I will heartily lay me a-hold on the greatness of God.

EDWARD DOWDEN

I said, "I will find God," and forth I went

To seek him in the clearness of the sky,

<sup>1</sup> In 1870, Major-General DANIEL CRAIG MCCALLUM [1815-1878] published a book of verse, The Water-Mill, and Other Poems, in which the first poem was practically the same as Miss Doudney's, and caused international dispute. His poem contained the following lines.

Oh! listen to the water-mill, through all the live-long day,
As the clicking of the wheel, wears hour by hour away
The mill will never grind again with water that is past
Oh! the wasted hours of life, that have swiftly drifted by,
Alas! the good we might have done, all gone
without a sigh

Miss Doudney's poem was first published in 1864. See Burton E. Stevenson, Famous Single Poems [1923].

But he over me, stood unendurably
Only a pitiless sapphire firmament
Ringing the world — blank splendor

The chances and changes, the personal history of any absolute genius, draw us to watch his adventure with curiosity and inquiry, lead us on to win more of his secret and borrow more of his experience (I mean, needless to say, when we are at all critically minded), but there is something in the clear safe arrival of the poetic nature, in a given case, at the point of its free and happy exercise, that provokes, if not the cold impulse to challenge or cross-question it, at least the need of understanding so far as possible how, in a world in which difficulty and disaster are frequent, the most wavering and flickering of all fine flames has escaped extinction

I love the man who knows it all,
From east to west, from north to south,
Who knows all things, both great and small,

And tells it with his tiresome mouth

EDWARD CARPENTER

[1844-1929]

So thin a veil divides
Us from such joy, past words, Walking in daily life — the business of the hour, each detail seen to,
Yet carried, rapt away, on what sweet floods of other Being Swift streams of music flowing, light far back through all Creation shining, Loved faces looking

So Thin a Veil

Newer ways are ours,
New thoughts, new fancies, and we

RICHARD WATSON GILDER

Not from the whole wide world I chose
thee,

Sweetheart, light of the land and the sea!
The wide, wide world could not enclose
thee,

For thou art the whole wide world
to me

Song

Through love to light! Oh wonderful

It is a little picture painted well

The Sonnet

This is the poet's triumph, his high doom!

After life's stress —

For him the silent, dark, o'ershadowing

Is shadowless

And this the miracle and mystery —

In that he gives

His soul away, magnificently free,

By this he lives

In 1896, a rival paper engaged the artist to begin a new series portraying "The Yellow Kid." The quarrel of the two newspapers over the right to run the cartoons, together with the similarity in the manner in which the two newspapers displayed sensational news, led to the coming of the term, "Yellow Journalism" — Condensed from The New York Sun, May 15, 1898

Canadian Boat Song, St 2

This poem appeared in Noctes Ambrosiana, No 46, in Blackwood's Magazine, Vol 26, P 400, Sept., 1829. It is generally credited to JOHN GALT [1779-1839], but JOHN WILSON ("Christopher North"), who won the first Newdigate Prize, founded in 1805, has been suggested as the author. John Gibson Lockhart, son-in-law of Sir Walter Scott, noted, on a copy of the poem in his own handwriting, that the song had been sent to him by a friend in Upper Canada. Galt, author of Annals of the Parish, was in Canada in 1824 and 1826. The poem was likewise found in the handwriting of Hugh Montgomery [1739-1819], twelfth Earl of Eglinton, ascribed to a Gaelic origin.

Robert Louis Stevenson misquotes the second stanza of the song in The Silverado Squatters, Chap 4. Joseph Chamberlain, the British statesman, gave Stevenson's version in a speech at Inverness.

It must be remembered that the point of honour which decrees that a man must not under any circumstances accept money from a woman with whom he is on certain terms, is of very modern growth, and is still tempered by the proviso that he may take as much as he likes or can get from his wife

Preface to FIELDING's Tom Jones

I have myself a great admiration for nice fine points of honour — I don't think you can make them too nice or too fine

Ibid

One of the commonest but most un-critical faults of criticism — the refusal to consider what it is that the author intended to give us.

Ibid

Criticism is the endeavor to find, to know, to love, to recommend, not only the best, but all the good, that has been known and thought and written in the world

I have never tried to be in the fashion
for the sake of being in it, and seldom,
I think, to be out of it for the sake of accepted in temporal things, except where pure taste has reigned alone

Notes on a Cellar Book Preface

When they [wines] were good they pleased my sense, cheered my spirits, improved my moral and intellectual powers, besides enabling me to confer
the same benefits on other people

Men will try to persuade themselves, or at least others, that they read poetry because it is a criticism of life, because it expresses the doubts and fears and thoughts and hopes of the time, because it is a substitution for religion,
because it is a relief from serious work,
because and because and because As a matter of fact, they (that is to say,
those of them who like it generally)
read it because they like it, because it communicates an experience of halfsensual, half-intellectual pleasure to them

In that charming novel, "The Fixed Period," [by] Anthony Trollope, the plot hinges upon the admirable scheme of a college into which at sixty men retired for a year of contemplation before a peaceful departure by chloroform. That incalculable benefits might follow such a scheme is apparent to anyone who, like myself, is nearing the limit, and who has made a careful study of the calamities which may befall men during the seventh and eighth decades<sup>2</sup>

Nothing will sustain you more potently than the power to recognize in your humdrum routine, as perhaps it may be thought, the true poetry of life — the poetry of the commonplace, of the ordinary man, of the plain, toil-worn woman, with their loves and their joys, their sorrows and their griefs

The second ideal has been to act the Golden Rule, as far as in me lay, toward my professional brethren and toward the patients committed to my care. And the third has been to cultivate such a measure of equanimity as would enable me to bear success with humility, the affection of my friends without pride, and to be ready when the day of sorrow and grief came to meet it with the courage befitting a man

Christmas at Sea Stanza 11

There are men and classes of men that stand above the common herd the soldier, the sailor, and the shepherd not infrequently, the artist rarely, rarelier still, the clergyman, the physician almost as a rule. He is the flower (such as it is) of our civilization

The rain had cleared and the sun poured down upon us, as in procession, headed by the acolytes and priests, we bore the coffin to the grave A semi-circle of Scotch firs formed, as it were, a little harbour for him The breeze blew freshly, south-west by south a little westerly — a good wind, as I thought, to steer up Channel by, and one that he who would no longer feel it on his cheek, looking aloft to see if all the sails were drawing properly, must have been glad to carry when he struck soundings, passing the Wolf Rock or the Smalls
after foul weather in the Bay

Handsomely, as he who lay in it might well have said, they lowered the coffin down The priest had left his Latin and said a prayer or two in Eng-

MARTIN

Within my earthly temple there's a crowd
There's one of us that's humble, one that's proud
There's one that's broken-hearted for his sins,
And one who, unrepentant, sits and grins There's one who loves his neighbor as himself,
And one who cares for naught but fame
and pelf
From much corroding care would I be free
If once I could determine which is Me

Answers to Nine Questions

We have no more right to consume happiness without producing it than to consume wealth without producing it

Candida. Act I

A prosperous man of business, who probably never read anything but a newspaper since he left school

Cashel Byron's Profession Chap 5

All this struggling and striving to make the world better is a great mistake, not because it isn't a good thing to improve the world if you know how to do it, but because striving and struggling is the worst way you could set about doing anything

Ibid Chap 6

We don't bother much about dress and manners in England, because, as a nation we don't dress well and we've no manners

You Never Can Tell Act I

A family enjoying the unspeakable peace and freedom of being orphans

Ibid Act II

The great advantage of a hotel is that it's a refuge from home life

Ibid

It's well to be off with the Old Woman before you're on with the New<sup>1</sup>

The Philanderer Act II

The fickleness of women I love is only equaled by the infernal constancy of the women who love me

Ibid

The test of a man or woman's breeding is how they behave in a quarrel

Ibid Act IV

People are always blaming their circumstances for what they are I don't believe in circumstances. The people who get on in this world are the people who get up and look for the circumstances they want, and, if they can't find them, make them

Mrs Warren's Profession Act II

There are no secrets better kept than the secrets that everybody guesses

Ibid Act III

A great devotee of the Gospel of Getting On

Ibid Act IV

This is the true joy in life, the being used for a purpose recognized by yourself as a mighty one, the being thoroughly worn out before you are thrown on the scrap heap, the being a force of Nature instead of a feverish selfish little clod of ailments and grievances complaining that the world will not devote itself to making you happy

Man and Superman Epistle Dedicatory

A lifetime of happiness! No man alive could bear it it would be hell on earth

Man and Superman Act I

The more things a man is ashamed of, the more respectable he is

Ibid

You think that you are Ann's suitor that you are the pursuer and she the pursued, that it is your part to woo, to persuade, to prevail, to overcome Fool it is you who are the pursued, the marked-down quarry, the destined prey

Ibid Act II

Marry Ann and at the end of a week you'll find no more inspiration in her than in a plate of muffins

Ibid

Home life as we understand it is no more natural to us than a cage is natural to a cockatoo

Getting Married Preface

In the extreme instances of reaction against convention, female murderers get sheaves of offers of marriage

Ibid

When two people are under the influence of the most violent, most insane, most delusive, and most transient of passions, they are required to swear that they will remain in that excited, abnormal, and exhausting condition continuously until death do them part

Ibid

A man is like a phonograph with half-a-dozen records You soon get tired of them all, and yet you have to sit at table whilst he reels them off to every new visitor

Ibid (The Play)

In England we always let an institution strain itself until it breaks

The whole strength of England lies in the fact that the enormous majority of the English people are snobs

Getting Married (The Play)

You don't learn to hold your own in the world by standing on guard, but by attacking, and getting well hammered yourself

Ibid

Religion is a great force — the only real motive force in the world, but what you fellows don't understand is that you must get at a man through his own religion and not through yours

Ibid

The modest cough of a minor poet.

The Dark Lady of the Sonnets

This writing of plays is a great matter, forming as it does the minds and affections of men in such sort that whatsoever they see done in show on the stage, they will presently be doing in earnest in the world, which is but a larger stage

Ibid

I like a bit of a mongrel myself, whether it's a man or a dog, they're the best for every day

Misalliance Episode I

If parents would only realize how they bore their children!

Ibid

He's a gentleman — look at his boots.

Pygmalion Act I

Women upset everything When you let them into your life, you find that the woman is driving at one thing and you're driving at another

Ibid Act II

I have to live for others and not for myself, that's middle class morality

Ibid. Act V

The great secret, Eliza, is not having bad manners or good manners or any other particular sort of manners, but having the same manner for all human souls in short, behaving as if you were in Heaven, where there are no third-class carriages, and one soul is as good as another

Ibid

Independence? That's middle class blasphemy We are all dependent on one another, every soul of us on earth

Pygmalion Act V

The nauseous sham goodfellowship our democratic public men get up for shop use

Back to Methuselah Gospel of the Brothers Barnabas

Life is a disease, and the only difference between one man and another is the stage of the disease at which he lives

Ibid

I enjoy convalescence It is the part that makes the illness worth while

Ibid

A nap, my friend, is a brief period of sleep which overtakes superannuated persons when they endeavor to entertain unwelcome visitors or to listen to scientific lectures

Ibid Tragedy of an Elderly Gentleman

Everything happens to everybody sooner or later if there is time enough

Ibid As Far As Thought Can Reach

Silence is the most perfect expression of scorn

Ibid

The worst cliques are those which consist of one man

Ibid

The Jews generally give value They make you pay, but they deliver the goods In my experience the men who want something for nothing are invariably Christians

Saint Joan Scene IV

Kings are not born they are made by universal hallucination

The Revolutionist's Handbook

At last I went to Ireland,

'Twas raining cats and dogs

I found no music in the glens,

Nor purple in the bogs

And as far as angels' laughter in the smelly Liffy's tide —

Well, my Irish daddy said it, but the dear old humbug lied.

[1857-1924]

A work that aspires, however humbly, to the condition of art should carry its justification in every line

The Nigger of the Narcissus
Preface

But the artist appeals to that part of our being which is not dependent on wisdom, to that in us which is a gift and not an acquisition — and, therefore, more permanently enduring. He speaks to our capacity for delight and wonder, to the sense of mystery surrounding our lives, to our sense of pity, and beauty, and pain

Without an element of the obscene there can be no true and deep aesthetic or moral conception of life. It is only the great men who are truly obscene. If they had not dared to be obscene they could never have dared to be great.

Impressions and Comments

The omnipresent process of sex, as it is woven into the whole texture of our man's or woman's body, is the pattern of all the process of our life.

The New Spirit

The Normans who came over to England with William the Conqueror and constituted the proud English nobility were simply a miscellaneous set of adventurers, professional fighting men, of unknown, and no doubt for the most part undistinguished, lineage. William the Conqueror himself was the son of a woman of the people.

The Task of Social Hygiene

Introduction

If men and women are to understand each other, to enter into each other's nature with mutual sympathy, and to become capable of genuine comradeship, the foundation must be laid in youth.

Ibid Chap. 1

The larger our great cities grow, the more irresistible becomes the attraction which they exert on the children of the country, who are fascinated by them, as the birds are fascinated by the lighthouse or the moths by the candle.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid Chap. 5

An urban life saps that calm and stolid strength which is necessary for all great effort and stress, physical or intellectual.

Ibid

Prosperity and civilization are far from being synonymous terms. The working community that is suddenly glutted by an afflux of work and wages is in exactly the same position as the savage who is suddenly enabled to fill himself with a rich mass of decaying blubber. It is prosperity, it is not civilization.

Chap. 5

There are few among us who have not suffered from too early familiarity with the Bible and the conceptions of religion.

Ibid Chap. 7

The German feels nothing of that sensitive jealousy with which the French seek to guard private life and the rights of the individual.

Ibid Chap. 9

The Englishman's reverence for the individual's rights goes beyond the Frenchman's, for in France there is a tendency to subordinate the individual to the family, and in England the interests of the individual predominate.

Ibid

Holland is one of the traditional lands of freedom, it was the home of independent intellect, of free religion, of autonomous morals, when every other country in Europe was closed to these manifestations of the spirit.

Ibid

When Charles V retired in weariness from the greatest throne in the world to the solitude of the monastery at Yuste, he occupied his leisure for some weeks in trying to regulate two clocks. It proved very difficult. One day, it is recorded, he turned to his assistant and said "To think that I attempted to force the reason and conscience of thousands of men into one mould, and I cannot make two clocks agree!"

Ibid

The extension of trade is a matter of tariffs rather than of war, and in any case the trade of a country with its own acquisitions by conquest is a comparatively insignificant portion of its total trade.

Ibid Chap. 10

<sup>1</sup> It is well known that a number of eminent men have been born in London, but, in the course of a somewhat elaborate study of the origins of British men of genius, I have not been able to find that any were genuinely Londoners by descent — A Study of British Genius

So far as business and money are concerned, a country gains nothing by a successful war, even though that war involves the acquisition of immense new provinces

Chap 10

Conquest brings self-conceit and intolerance, the reckless inflation and dissipation of energies. Defeat brings prudence and concentration, it ennobles and fortifies

Ibid

A nation's art-products and its scientific activities are not mere national property, they are international possessions, for the joy and service of the whole world. The nations hold them in trust for humanity

Ibid

There has never been any country at every moment so virtuous and so wise that it has not sometimes needed to be saved from itself

Ibid.

Those persons who are burning to display heroism may rest assured that the course of social evolution will offer them every opportunity

Ibid

The immense value of becoming acquainted with a foreign language is that we are thereby led into a new world of tradition and thought and feeling

Ibid Chap 11

While some would claim for the English the supreme poetic literature, there can be no doubt that the French own the supreme prose literature of modern Europe

Ibid.

The family only represents one aspect, however important an aspect, of a human being's functions and activities. A life is beautiful and ideal, or the reverse, only when we have taken into our consideration the social as well as the family relationship

Chap. 1

One can know nothing of giving aught that is worthy to give unless one also knows how to take

Chap 1

That indeed were a world fit to perish, wherein the moralist had set up the ignoble maxim Safety first

Ibid Chap 2

The by-product is sometimes more valuable than the product

Ibid Chap 3

It has taken God — or Nature, if we will — unknown millions of years of painful struggle to evolve Man, and to raise the human species above that helpless bondage to reproduction which marks the lower animals

Ibid

All civilization has from time to time become a thin crust over a volcano of revolution

Ibid. Chap 7

The greatest task before civilization at present is to make machines what they ought to be, the slaves, instead of the masters of men

Ibid

The art of dancing stands at the source of all the arts that express themselves first in the human person. The art of building, or architecture, is the beginning of all the arts that lie outside the person, and in the end they unite

The Dance of Life Chap 2

Dancing is the loftiest, the most moving, the most beautiful of the arts, because it is no mere translation or abstraction from life, it is life itself

Ibid

The place where optimism most flourishes is the lunatic asylum

Ibid Chap 3

He who would walk sanely amid the opposing perils in the path of life always needs a little optimism, he also needs a little pessimism

Ibid

Thinking in its lower grades is comparable to paper money, and in its higher forms it is a kind of poetry

Ibid

In philosophy, it is not the attainment of the goal that matters, it is the things that are met with by the way

The Dance of Life Chap 2

Every man of genius sees the world at a different angle from his fellows, and there is his tragedy

Ibid

The mathematician has reached the highest rung on the ladder of human thought

Ibid

The verse of every young poet, however original he may afterwards grow, usually has plainly written across it the rhythmic signature of some great master

The same thing happens with prose, but the rhythm of the signature is less easy to hear

Ibid Chap 4

The most obviously beautiful things in the world of Nature are birds and flowers and the stones we call precious

Ibid

All the conventional rules of the construction of speech may be put aside if a writer is thereby enabled to follow more closely and lucidly the form and process of his thought

Ibid

If at some period in the course of civilization we seriously find that our science and our religion are antagonistic, then there must be something wrong either with our science or with our religion.

Ibid. Chap 5

A man must not swallow more beliefs than he can digest

Ibid

The Promised Land always lies on the other side of a wilderness

Ibid

What we call "morals" is simply blind obedience to words of command

Ibid Chap 6

There is no occasion for any one who is told that he has written a "moral" book to be unduly elated, or when he is told that his book is "immoral" to be unduly cast down. The significance of these adjectives is strictly limited. Neither the one nor the other can have more than the faintest effect on the march of the great compact majority of the social army

The world's greatest thinkers have often been amateurs, for high thinking is the outcome of fine and independent living, and for that a professorial chair offers no special opportunities

Ibid

For the artist life is always a discipline, and no discipline can be without pain. That is so even of dancing, which of all the arts is most associated in the popular mind with pleasure. To learn to dance is the most austere of disciplines

Ibid

The methods of statistics are so variable and uncertain, so apt to be influenced by circumstance, that it is never possible to be sure that one is operating with figures of equal weight

Ibid Chap 7

The prevalence of suicide, without doubt, is a test of height in civilization, it means that the population is winding up its nervous and intellectual system to the utmost point of tension and that sometimes it snaps<sup>1</sup>

Ibid

The more rapidly a civilization progresses, the sooner it dies for another to arise in its place

Ibid

The sun and the moon and the stars would have disappeared long ago — as even their infinitely more numerous analogues on the earth beneath are likely to disappear — had they happened to be within the reach of predatory human hands

Ibid

Had there been a Lunatic Asylum in the suburbs of Jerusalem, Jesus Christ would infallibly have been shut up in it at the outset of his public career. That interview with Satan on a pinnacle of the Temple would alone have damned him, and everything that happened after could but have confirmed the diagnosis The whole religious complexion of the modern world is due to the absence from Jerusalem of a Lunatic Asylum

I was brought up in the Church of England and in the High Church party which is much the best religion I have ever come across. But Lemprière's "Classical Dictionary," read when I was eight, made me prefer paganism to Christianity, I abandoned Christianity at thirteen, and became an atheist at twenty-one

Autobiographical note written for a French translation of his poems

I am not a pessimist but a peyorist (as George Eliot said she was not an optimist but a meliorist), and that philosophy is founded on my observation of the world, not on anything so trivial and irrelevant as personal history. Secondly, I did not begin to write poetry in earnest until the really emotional part of my life was over, and my poetry, so far as I could make out, sprang chiefly from physical causes, such as a relaxed sore throat during my most prolific period, the first five months of 1895

Ibid

Good literature continually read for pleasure must, let us hope, do some good to the reader: must quicken his perception though dull, and sharpen his discrimination though blunt, and mellow the rawness of his personal opinions

The Name and Nature of Poetry<sup>1</sup>

Poems very seldom consist of poetry and nothing else, and pleasure can be derived also from their other ingredients

The Name and Nature of Poetry

Experience has taught me, when I am shaving of a morning, to keep watch over my thoughts, because, if a line of poetry strays into my memory, my skin bristles so that the razor ceases to act. The seat of this sensation is the pit of the stomach

Ibid

I have seldom written poetry unless I was rather out of health, and the experience, though pleasurable, was generally agitating and exhausting

I can no longer expect to be revisited by the continuous excitement under which in the early months of 1895 I wrote the greater part of my other book [A Shropshire Lad]

It is not book learning young men need, nor instruction about this and that, but a stiffening of the vertebrae which will cause them to be loyal to a trust, to act promptly, concentrate their energies, do a thing — "carry a message to Garcia" <sup>1</sup>

A Message to Garcia <sup>2</sup>

The man who is anybody and who does anything is surely going to be criticized, vilified, and misunderstood. This is a part of the penalty for greatness, and every great man understands it, and understands, too, that it is no proof of greatness. The final proof of Wales England wed, so I was bred

'Twas merry London gave me breath

I dreamt of love, and fame I strove

But Ireland taught me love was best.

And Irish eyes, and London cries, and streams of Wales may tell the rest

What more than these I asked of Life

I am content to have from Death

Ebbs and flows the muddy Pei-Ho by the Gulf of Pechili,

Idly floats beside the stream the dragon-flag,

Past the batteries of China, looking westward still you see

Lazy junks along the lazy river lag

Let the long, long years drip slowly

on that lost and ancient land,

Ever dear one scene to hearts of gallant men,

There's a hand-clasp and a heart-throb,
there's a word we understand

Blood is thicker, sir, than water, now

I vow to thee, my country — all earthly things above —

Entire and whole and perfect, the service of my love

The love that asks no questions, the love that stands the test,

That lays upon the altar the dearest and the best,

The love that never falters, the love that pays the price,

The love that makes undaunted the final sacrifice

I Vow to Thee, My Country<sup>1</sup>

And there's another country, I've heard of long ago —

Most dear to them that love her, most great to them that know —

We may not count her armies, we may not see her King,

Her fortress is a faithful heart, her pride is suffering —

And soul by soul and silently her shining bounds increase,

And her ways are ways of gentleness, and all her paths are peace.

Know you what it is to be a child?

It is to be something very different from the man of to-day It is to have a spirit yet streaming from the waters of baptism, it is to believe in love, to believe in loveliness, to believe in belief, it is to be so little that the elves can reach to whisper in your ear, it is to turn pumpkins into coaches, and mice

I am the hero of this little tale;
 I'm Romeo, Romeo
 I am that sadly susceptible male,
 I'm Romeo, Romeo
 Scarce did a lover e'er do as I did,
 When his best girl to eternity slid,
 I took cold poison and I suicided
 I'm Romeo, Romeo

Locked in a tomb with no pickaxe to force it,
Gloomy old hole without room to stand

I up and stabbed myself right in the corset
I'm Juliet, I'm Juliet.

DICKINSON
[1862-1932]

Chinese poetry is of all poetry I know the most human and the least symbolic or romantic. It contemplates life just as it presents itself, without any veil of ideas, any rhetoric or sentiment, it simply clears away the obstruction which habit has built up between us and the beauty of things.

An Essay on the Civilizations of India, China, and Japan Page 47
Consider the American continent!
How simple it is! How broad! How large! How grand in design! A strip of coast, a range of mountains, a plain, a second range, a second strip of coast! That is all! Contrast the complexity of Europe, its lack of symmetry, its variety, irregularity, disorder and caprice! The geography of the two continents already foreshadows the differences in their civilizations.

A Modern Symposium
The United States of America — the greatest potential force, material, moral, and spiritual, in the world.

The Choice Before Us Chap 1
To the man who has the religion of peace, the supreme value is love. To the man who has the religion of war, the supreme value is strife.

Ibid Chap 3
Government is everywhere to a great extent controlled by powerful minorities, with an interest distinct from that of the mass of the people.

Ibid Chap 4
The true way for one civilization to "conquer" another is for it to be so obviously superior in this or that point that others desire to imitate it.

Ibid Chap. 5

War is not "inevitable," but proceeds from definite and removable causes.

The Choice Before Us Chap 9

Nations are quite capable of starving every other side of life — education, sanitation, housing, public health, everything that contributes to life, physical, intellectual, moral, and spiritual, in order to maintain their armaments.

Ibid Chap 11

Every kind of discrimination is a protection of the incompetent against the competent, with the result that the motive to become competent is taken away.

Ibid Chap 12

What we commonly have in our mind when we speak of religion is a definite set of doctrines, of a more or less metaphysical character, formulated in a creed and supported by an organization distinct from the state.

*The Greek View of Life Chap 1,
Sect 1*

A fundamental, and as many believe, the most essential part of Christianity, is its doctrine of reward and punishment in the world beyond, and a religion which had nothing at all to say about this great enigma we should hardly feel to be a religion at all.

Ibid Sect 11

All modern societies aim, to this extent at least, at equality, that their tendency, so far as it is conscious and avowed, is not to separate off a privileged class of citizens, set free by the labour of others to live the perfect life, but rather to distribute impartially to all the burdens and advantages of the state, so that every one shall be at once a labourer for himself and a citizen of the state.

Ibid Chap 2, Sect. 12

Dissatisfaction with the world in which we live and determination to realize one that shall be better, are the prevailing characteristics of the modern spirit.

Oh, every year hath its winter,
And every year hath its rain —

<sup>1</sup> This is the twilight of the kings Western Europe of the people may be caught in this debacle, but never again Eastern Europe of the kings will be remade and the name of God shall not give grace to a hundred square miles of broken bodies. If Divinity enters here it comes with a sword to deliver the people from the sword. It is the twilight of the kings. To the place where he sits, a boat —

And in the boat, from the place where

The faces of his friends long dead, and knows

They come for him, brought in upon that he must fly at once to Baghdad,

and imploring leave to borrow his Majesty's swiftest horse

The Sultan asked why he was in such haste to go to Baghdad "Because," the youth answered, "as I passed through the garden of the Palace just now, Death was standing there, and when he saw me he stretched out his arms as if to threaten me, and I must lose no time in escaping from him"

The young man was given leave to take the Sultan's horse and fly, and when he was gone the Sultan went down indignantly into the garden, and found Death still there "How dare you make threatening gestures at my favourite?" he cried, but Death, astonished, answered "I assure your Majesty I did not threaten him I only threw up my arms in surprise at seeing him here, because I have a tryst with him tonight in Baghdad" <sup>1</sup>

Lone and high,
 And the slow clouds go by
 I will get me away to the waters that glass

The clouds as they pass
 I will get me away to the woods

[1864- ]

The village sleeps, a name unknown, till men
 With life-blood stain its soil, and pay the due

That lifts it to eternal fame, — for then
'Tis grown a Gettysburg or Waterloo

Distinction

Not for the star-crowned heroes, the men that conquer and slay,
But a song for those that bore them, the mothers braver than they!
With never a blare of trumpets, with never a surge of cheers,
They march to the unseen hazard —
pale, patient volunteers

PAUL ELMER MORE<sup>2</sup>

[1864-1937]

As our private memory is not a merely passive retention of sensations, so in literature the critical spirit is at work as a conscious energy of selection. The function of criticism is far removed from the surrender to luxurious revery

Shelburne Essays Criticism

Great music is a psychological storm, agitating to fathomless depths the mystery of the past within us Or we might

<sup>2</sup> To read him is to enter an austere and elevated realm of ideas and to know a man who, in the guise of a critic, is authentically concerned with the first and last things of human experience — WALTER LIPPMANN, in The Saturday Review of Literature, March 15, 1930

say that it is a prodigious incantation
There are tones that call up all ghosts of youth and joy and tenderness, —
there are tones that evoke all phantom pains of perished passion, — there are tones that revive all dead sensations of majesty and might and glory, — all expired
exultations, — all forgotten magnanimities
Well may the influence of music seem inexplicable to the man who idly dreams that his life began less than a hundred years ago! He who has been initiated into the truth knows that to every ripple of melody, to every billow of harmony, there answers
within him, out of the Sea of Death and Birth, some eddying immeasurable
of ancient pleasure and pain

Shelburne Essays Lafcadio Hearn

All things are fleeting, nothing is our own, not even this spark of life which is owed to Death, but Oh, grant that after our going some interposition of human memory come between us and utter obliteration!

depth, comprehension, and incisiveness is unequalled in the whole range of American criticism — JOHN ABBOT CLARK

Men will confess to treason, murder, arson, false teeth, or a wig How many of them will own up to a lack of humor?

Essays Vol 1

Nobody can describe a fool to the life, without much patient self-inspection

Ibid

Every man ought to be inquisitive through every hour of his great adventure down to the day when he shall no

he dies without a question in his heart,
what excuse is there for his continuance?

Ibid

In spite of the large population of this planet, men and women remain to-day
the most inaccessible things on it

Ibid Vol 2

A new movement is not a stampede
to some new object, but a stampede away from some old person

Ibid

The attempt to turn a complex problem of the head into a simple moral question for the heart to answer, is of course a necessary part of all political discussions

Ibid

I have found some of the best reasons
I ever had for remaining at the bottom simply by looking at the men at the top

Ibid

A "new thinker," when studied closely,
is merely a man who does not know what other people have thought

The Margin of Hesitation

Were it not for the presence of the unwashed and the half-educated, the Creation's cry goes up on high

From age to cheated age

"Send us the men who do the work

For which they draw the wage!"

The Wage-Slaves Stanza 3

This is our lot if we live so long and labour unto the end —

That we outlive the impatient years
and the much too patient friend

And because we know we have breath in our mouth and think we have thoughts in our head,

We shall assume that we are alive,
whereas we are really dead

Thank heavens, the sun has gone in, and I don't have to go out and enjoy it

Ibid

What with its crude awakenings can youth know of the rich returns of awareness to elderly people from their afternoon naps, of their ironic thoughts and long retrospections, and the sweetness they taste of not being dead?

Ibid

How I should like to distil my disesteem of my contemporaries into prose so perfect that all of them would have to read it!

Ibid

Unsaleability is almost the hallmark, in modern times, of quality in writing . the enormous and half-educated publics of present-day England and America, though welcoming the novels of our famous novelists, have as a rule acclaimed as masterpieces books that were soon forgotten, while ignoring at first all that was exquisite and rare

GILBERT MURRAY

[1866— ]

Romantic plays with happy endings are almost of necessity inferior in artistic value to true tragedies. Not, one would hope, simply because they end happily, happiness in itself is certainly not less beautiful than grief, but because a tragedy in its great moments can generally afford to be sincere, while romantic plays live in an atmosphere of ingenuity and make-believe.

Preface to The Iphigenia in Tauris of Euripides

The enemy has no definite name, though in a certain degree we all know him. He who puts always the body before the spirit, the dead before the living, who makes things only in order to sell them, who has forgotten that there is such a thing as truth, and measures the world by advertisement or by money, who daily defiles the beauty that surrounds him and makes vulgar the tragedy.

What song the Sirens sang?

They sang of all that is above fulfilment and beyond clear vision, of the immeasurable, the uncontained, the half-imagined, of that which is touched but never held, implored but unpossessed. They sang the vileness of all who live contented upon an alms,
and are at ease in bonds, the slaves whose servitude is made sweet by habit

Germany lay at our feet, a world's wonder of downfall, a very Lucifer, fallen, broken, bereaved beyond all the retributive griefs which Greek tragedy shows you afflicting the great who were insolent, wilful, and proud But it was not enough for our small epicures of revenge They wanted to twist the enemy's wrists, where he lay bound, and to run pins into his eyes And they had the upper hand of us now The soldiers could only look on while the scurvy performance dragged itself out

Disenchantment Chap 13 [1922]

"The freedom of Europe," "The war to end war," "The overthrow of militarism," "The cause of civilization" — most people believe so little now in anything or anyone that they would find it hard to understand the simplicity and intensity of faith with which these phrases were once taken among our troops, or the certitude felt by hundreds of thousands of men who are now dead that if they were killed their monument would be a new Europe not soured or soiled with the hates and greed of the old

Among the mind's powers is one that comes of itself to many children and artists. It need not be lost, to the end of his days, by anyone who has ever had it. This is the power of taking delight in a thing, or rather in anything, everything, not as a means to some other end, but just because it is what it is, as the lover dotes on whatever may be the traits of the beloved object. A child in the full health of his mind will put his hand flat on the summer turf, feel it, and give a little shiver of private glee at the elastic firmness of the globe.

All dullness is in the mind, it comes out thence and diffuses itself over everything round the dull person, and then he terms everything dull, and thinks himself the victim of the impact of dull things. In stupid rich people, in boys and girls deadeningly taught at dead-alive schools, in all disappointed weaklings and in declining nations, this loss of power to shed anything but dullness upon what one sees and hears is common enough.

Make 'em brief, Finnigin!

Finnigin to Flannigan Stanza 3

Biln' down his repoort, wuz Finnigin!
An' he writed this here "Muster Flannigan —

Off ag'in, on ag'in,

Gone ag'in — FINNIGIN "

Ibid Stanza 6

Just stand aside and watch yourself go by,

Think of yourself as "he" instead of "I"

Watch Yourself Go By. Stanza 1

FREDERIC LAWRENCE
KNOWLES
[1869-1905]

When navies are forgotten

And fleets are useless things,
When the dove shall warm her bosom
Beneath the eagle's wings

The New Age Stanza 1

In the conquest which is service,
In the victory which is peace!

Ibid Stanza 4

These are the best of him,
Pathos and jest of him,
Earth holds the rest of him

On a Fly-Leaf of Burns's Songs.
Stanza 1

Each little lyrical
Grave or satirical Musical miracle!

Ibid Stanza 3

Helen's lips are drifting dust,
Ihon is consumed with lust,
All the galleons of Greece
Drink the ocean's dreamless peace;
Lost was Solomon's purple show
Restless centuries ago

Love Triumphant

This body is my house — it is not I Triumphant in this faith I live and die

The Tenant

Our crosses are hewn from different
trees,

But we all must have our Calvaries

Golgotha

STEPHEN LEACOCK
[1869- ]

The classics are only primitive literature They belong to the same class as primitive machinery and primitive music and primitive medicine

Homer and Humbug

If I were founding a university I would found first a smoking room, then when I had a little more money in hand I would found a dormitory, then after that, or more probably with it, a decent reading room and a library After that, if I still had more money that I couldn't use, I would hire a professor and get some textbooks

Oxford As I See It

EDGAR LEE MASTERS

[1869— ]

All, all are sleeping on the hill
Spoon River Anthology. The Hill

Tick, tick, tick, what little iambs, While Homer and Whitman roared in the pines

Ibid Petit, the Poet

Out of me unworthy and unknown
 The vibrations of deathless music,
 "With malice toward none, with charity for all "

Ibid Anne Rutledge

I am Anne Rutledge who sleep beneath
 these weeds,
 Beloved in life of Abraham Lincoln,
 Wedded to him, not through union,
 But through separation
 Bloom forever, O Republic,
 From the dust of my bosom!

Ibid

WILLIAM VAUGHN MOODY

[1869-1910]

Jill-o'er-the-ground is purple blue,
 Blue is the quaker-maid,
 The wild geranium holds its dew
 Long in the boulder's shade
Gloucester Moors Stanza 2

This earth is not the steadfast place
 We landsmen build upon,
 From deep to deep she varies pace,
 And while she comes is gone
Ibid Stanza 4

But on, but on does the old earth steer
 As if her port she knew.
Ibid. Stanza 5

But thou, vast outbound ship of souls,
 What harbor town for thee?
 What shapes, when thy arriving tolls,
 Shall crowd the banks to see?
 Shall all the happy shipmates then Stand singing brotherly?
Ibid Stanza 10

Then not to kneel, almost Seemed like a vulgar boast.
Good Friday Stanza 9

Gigantic, wilful, young,
 Chicago sitteth at the northwest gates,
 With restless violent hands and casual tongue

Moulding her mighty fates
An Ode in Time of Hesitation.
Stanza 3

The wars we wage
 Are noble, and our battles still are won
 By justice for us, ere we lift the gage
 We have not sold our loftiest heritage
 The proud republic hath not stooped to cheat

And scramble in the market-place of war

Ibid Stanza 5

Our fluent men of place and consequence
 Fumble and fill their mouths with hollow phrase,
 Or for the end-all of deep arguments
 Intone their dull commercial liturgies
Ibid Stanza 7

Blindness we may forgive, but baseness
 we will smite

Ibid. Stanza 9

Praise, and never a whispered hint but the fight he fought was good, Never a word that the blood on his sword was his country's own heart's-blood

On a Soldier Fallen in the Philippines Stanza 2

And souls are restless, plagued, impatient things,
 All dream and unaccountable desire,
 Crawling, but pestered with the thought of wings,
 Spreading through every inch of earth's old mire Mystical hanker after something higher.

The Menagerie. Stanza 19

Shrill and high, newsboys cry
 The worst of the city's infamy.
In New York Stanza 4

The roaring street is hung for miles
 With fierce electric fire
Ibid Stanza 9

Of wounds and sore defeat
 I made my battle stay,

Winged sandals for my feet
I wove of my delay

The Fire-Bringer Pandora's Song, II

WILLIAM HENRY OGILVIE
[1869— ]

Ragged, uncomely, and old and gray,
A woman walked in a northern town,
And through the crowd as she wound
her way

One saw her loiter and then stoop down,

Putting something away in her old torn gown

A Royal Heart Stanza 1

"It's broken glass,"

She said "I hae lifted it frae the street
To be oot o' the road o' the bairnies' feet!"

Ibid Stanza 3

The real ones, the right ones, the straight ones and the true,

The pukka, peerless sportsmen — their numbers are but few,

The men who keep on playing though
the sun be in eclipse,

The men who go on losing with a laugh
upon their lips

The True Sportsman

When the last fence looms up, I am ready

And I hope when the rails of it crack, There'll be nothing in front but the master,

The huntsman, the fox and the pack

The Last Fence Stanza 1

EDWIN ARLINGTON
ROBINSON
[1869-1935]

We cannot know how much we learn
From those who never will return,
Until a flash of unforeseen Remembrance falls on what has been

Flammonde

To shake the tree
Of life itself and bring down fruit unheard-of

Ben Jonson Entertains a Man from Stratford

I would have rid the earth of him
Once, in my pride
I never knew the worth of him
Until he died

An Old Story

Life is the game that must be played This truth at least, good friends, we know,

So live and laugh, nor be dismayed
As one by one the phantoms go

Ballade by the Fire Envoy

The songs of one who strove to play
The broken flutes of Arcady

Ballade of Broken Flutes

There be two men of all mankind
That I'm forever thinking on

They chase me everywhere I go, — Melchizedek, Ucalegon.

Two Men

Like dead, remembered footsteps on old floors

The Pity of the Leaves

Oh for a poet — for a beacon bright
To rift this changeless glimmer of dead
gray,

To spirit back the Muses, long astray,
And flush Parnassus with a newer light

Sonnet

Look at a branch, a bird, a child, a rose,
Or anything God ever made that grows, —

Nor let the smallest vision of it slip,
Till you may read, as on Belshazzar's
wall,

The glory of eternal partnership

Sonnet

And thus we die,

Still searching, like poor old astronomers

Who totter off to bed and go to sleep
To dream of untriangulated stars

Octaves XI

Two kinds of gratitude the sudden
kind

We feel for what we take, the larger
kind

We feel for what we give

Captain Craig Part I

Friends

To borrow my books and set wet glasses
on them.

Ibid Part II

The saddest among kings of earth,
Bowed with a galling crown, this man
Met rancor with a cryptic mirth, Laconic — and Olympian

The Master Lincoln

And have one Titan at a time

Ibid

Wearing upon his forehead, with no
fear,

The laurel of approved iniquity
Uncle Ananias

Miniver loved the Medici,
Albert he had never seen one,
He would have sinned incessantly
Could he have been one

Miniver Cheevy

Miniver Cheevy, born too late, Scratched his head and kept on thinking,

Miniver coughed, and called it fate,
And kept on drinking

Ibid

Thrall to the gilded ease

Of every day,

Mocker of all degrees

And always gay,

Child of the Cyclades

And of Broadway

Bon Voyage

Who of us, being what he is,
May scoff at others' ecstasies?
However we may shine to-day,
More-shining ones are on the way

Atherton's Gambit

The forehead and the little ears

Have gone where Saturn keeps the
years,

The breast where roses could not live
Has done with rising and with falling

For a Dead Lady

Death, like a friend unseen, shall say to me

My toil is over and my work begun

The Three Taverns

If I have loosed

A shaft of language that has flown sometimes

A little higher than the hearts and heads

Of nature's minions, it will yet be heard

Ibid

I shall have more to say when I am
dead

John Brown

Like a physician who can do no good,
But knows how soon another would have his fee

Were he to tell the truth

Avon's Harvest

Art's long hazard, where no man may choose

Whether he play to win, or toil to lose
Caput Mortuum

Love that's wise

Will not say all it means

Tristram Part VII

For when a woman is left too much
alone,

Sooner or later she begins to think,
And no man knows what then she may discover

Ibid

There is a little watchman in my heart
Who is always telling me what time it is.

Ibid Part VIII

Love must have wings to fly away from love,

And to fly back again.

Ibid

I like rivers

Better than oceans, for we see both sides

An ocean is forever asking questions
And writing them aloud along the shore

Roman Bartholow Part III

Once in a life, they tell us, and once
only,

So great a thing as a great love may come —

To crown us, or to mark us with a scar
No craft or custom shall obliterate

Ibid Part IV

A thousand golden sheaves were lying
there,

Shining and still, but not for long to stay —

As if a thousand girls with golden hair
Might rise from where they slept and go away.

The Sheaves

Of all small things
That have the most infernal power to glow,
Few may be larger than a few small words
That may not say themselves and be forgotten

Genevieve and Alexandra

Here where the wind is always north-north-east
And children learn to walk on frozen toes

New England

HERBERT SHIPMAN

[1869-1930]

Across the gateway of my heart
I wrote "No Thoroughfare,"
But love came laughing by, and cried
"I enter everywhere"

No Thoroughfare. Stanza 1

GEORGE STERLING

[1869-1926]

Their hearts, contemptuous of death,
shall dare
His roads between the thunder and the sun

The Black Vulture

Thou art the star for which all evening
waits

Aldebaran at Dusk

Like truant children going home
We turn to thee, the beautiful and best

The Final Faith

Into a crystal cup the dusky wine
I pour, and, musing at so rich a shrine,
I watch the star that haunts its ruddy gloom

A Wine of Wizardry

Let us be just with life Although it bear

A thousand thorns for every perfect
rose,

And though the happy day have mournful close,

Slumber awaits to house the mind from care.

The Balance

NEWTON BOOTH TARKINGTON

[1869- ]

Penrod was doing something very unusual and rare, something almost never accomplished except by coloured people or by a boy in school on a spring day he was doing really nothing at all
He was merely a state of being

Penrod Chap 8

There are two things that will be believed of any man whatsoever, and one of them is that he has taken to drink

Ibid Chap 10

They were upon their great theme
"When I get to be a man!" Being human, though boys, they considered their present estate too commonplace to be dwelt upon So, when the old men gather, they say "When I was a boy!"
It really is the land of nowadays that we never discover

Ibid Chap 26

HILAIRE BELLOC

[1870- ]

The voyage which I was born to make in the end, and to which my desire has driven me, is towards a place in which everything we have known is forgotten, except those things which, as we knew them, reminded us of an original joy

The Harbour in the North

Child, do not throw this book about,
Refrain from the unholy pleasure
Of cutting all the pictures out,
Regard it as your choicest treasure

A Bad Child's Book of Beasts

Foreword

Balliol made me, Balliol fed me,
Whatever I had she gave me again
And the best of Balliol loved and led
me

God be with you, Balliol men

To the Balliol Men Still in Africa

[1900]

Oh, he didn't believe in Adam and Eve —

He put no faith therein,
His doubts began with the fall of man,
And he laughed at original sin

Song of the Pelagian Heresy

The Tipple's aboard and the night is young,

The door's ajar and the Barrel is sprung,

I am singing the best song ever was sung

And it has a rousing chorus

West Sussex Drinking Song.

Chorus

A lovely river, all alone,

She lingers in the hills and holds

A hundred little towns of stones,

Forgotten in the western wolds

The Evenlode

Don poor at Bed and worse at Table,
Don pinched, Don starved, Don miserable,

Don stuttering, Don with roving eyes,

Don nervous, Don of crudities

Don middle-class, Don sycophantic,

Don dull, Don brutish, Don pedantic,

Don hypocritical, Don bad,

Don furtive, Don three-quarters mad,

Don (since a man must make an end),

Don that shall never be my friend.

Lines to a Don

The moon on the one hand, the dawn on the other

The moon is my sister, the dawn is my brother

The moon on my left and the dawn on my right

My brother, good morning my sister, good night

The Early Morning

The great hills of the South Country

They stand along the sea,

And it's there walking in the high woods

That I could wish to be,

And the men that were boys when I was a boy

Walking along with me

The South Country Stanza 2

If I ever become a rich man,

Or if ever I grow to be old,

I will build a house with deep thatch

To shelter me from the cold,
And there shall the Sussex songs be sung

And the story of Sussex told

The South Country Stanza 9

And the men that were boys when I was a boy

Shall sit and drink with me

Ibid Stanza 10

He does not die that can bequeath
Some influence to the land he knows,
Or dares, persistent, interweath
Love permanent with the wild hedge-rows,

He does not die, but still remains Substantiate with his darling plains

Dunston Hill Stanza 1

They say that in the unchanging place,
Where all we loved is always dear,

We meet our mornings face to face

And find at last our twentieth year

Dedicatory Ode

From quiet homes and first beginning,
Out to the undiscovered ends,

There's nothing worth the wear of winning

But laughter and the love of friends

Ibid

For no one in our long decline,
So dusty, spiteful and divided,
Had quite such pleasant friends as mine,

Or loved them half as much as I did

Ibid

Of Courtesy, it is much less Than Courage of Heart or Holiness,

Yet in my walks it seems to me

That the Grace of God is in Courtesy

Courtesy

Drinking when I had a mind to,

Singing when I felt inclined to

The Path to Rome

Most holy Night, that still dost keep

The keys of all the doors of sleep,

To me when my tired eyelids close

Give thou repose.

The Night. Stanza 1

Do you remember an Inn,

Miranda?

Do you remember an Inn?

And the tending and the spreading

Of the straw for a bedding,

And the fleas that tease in the High Pyrenees,
And the wine that tasted of the tar?

Tarantella

Noting one that brings
With careless step a mist of shadowy things
Laughter and memories, and a few regrets,
Some honour, and a quantity of debts,
A doubt or two of sorts, a trust in God,
And (what will seem to you extremely odd)
His father's granfer's father's father's name,
Unspoilt, untitled, even spelt the same, Charon, who twenty thousand times before
Has ferried Poets to the ulterior shore, Will estimate the weight I bear, and cry —
"Comrade!"

To Drives

I said to Heart, "How goes it?" Heart replied
"Right as a Ribstone Pippin!" But it lied

The False Heart

When I am dead, I hope it may be said
"His sins were scarlet, but his books were read"

On His Books

ANNA BUNSTON DE BARY

O little lark, you need not fly
To seek your Master in the sky,
He treads our native sod,
Why should you sing aloft, apart?
Sing to the heaven of my heart,
In me, in me, in me is God!

FRANK NORRIS

[1870-1902]

He's the kind of man that gets up a reputation for being clever and artistic by running down the very one particular thing that every one likes, and cracking up some book or picture or play that no one has ever heard of

"Was he a church member?"

"Well, no, not exactly," admitted Mrs Wiggs, reluctantly "But he was what you might say a well-wisher"

Mrs Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch

CAROLYN WELLS

Youth is a silly, vapid state,
Old age with fears and ills is rife;
This simple boon I beg of Fate —
A thousand years of Middle Life!

My Boon

"A noble theme!" the tyro cried,
And straightway scribbled off a sonnet

"A noble theme," the poet sighed,
"I am not fit to write upon it"

Humility

I love the Christmas-tide, and yet,
I notice this, each year I live,
I always like the gifts I get,
But how I love the gifts I give!

A Thought

He laughs best who laughs last,

The wiseacres vow,

But I am impatient,

I want to laugh now

Delays Are Dangerous Stanza 1

The books we think we ought to read
are poky, dull and dry,

The books that we would like to read
we are ashamed to buy,

The books that people talk about we never can recall,

And the books that people give us, Oh, they're the worst of all

On Books

They borrow books they will not buy,
They have no ethics or religions,
I wish some kind Burbankian guy
Could cross my books with homing

The Open Boat

Presently, God said,
"And what did you do?"

The little blade answered, "Oh, my Lord,

Memory is bitter to me,

For, if I did good deeds,

I know not of them"

Then God, in all His splendor,

Arose from His throne

"O best little blade of grass!" He said

The Blades of Grass

A man said to the universe

"Sir, I exist!"

"However," replied the universe,

"That fact has not created in me

A sense of obligation"

WILLIAM HENRY DAVIES

[1871-1940]

A poor life this if, full of care,
 We have no time to stand and stare
Leisure

They sniffed, poor things, for their green fields,

They cried so loud I could not sleep
 For fifty thousand shillings down

I would not sail again with sheep
Sheep Stanza 5

So every time we passed it by,
 Sailing to England's slaughter-house, Eight ragged sheep-men — tramps and thieves —

Would stroke that sheep's black nose
A Child's Pet Stanza 5

What glorious sunsets have their birth
 In Cities fouled by smoke!

This tree — whose roots are in a drain —

Becomes the greenest Oak!
Love's Rivals

Look, there's a rainbow now!
 See how that lovely rainbow throws

Her jewelled arm around
 This world, when the rain goes
The Rainbow Stanza 2

I turned my head and saw the wind,
 Not far from where I stood,
 Dragging the corn by her golden hair

Into a dark and lonely wood
The Villain

I am as certain of my song,
 When first it warms the brain,
 As woman of her unborn child,

Or wind that carries rain

There was a battle in her face,
 Between a lily and a rose,

My love would have the lily win,
 And I the lily lose

Song

I'll make my Joy a secret thing,
 My face shall wear a mask of care,
 And those who hunt a Joy to death, Shall never know what sport is
 there!

Hunting Joy Stanza 3

I see at last our great Lamorna Cove,
 Which, danced on by ten thousand silver feet,

Has all those waves that run like little lambs,

To draw the milk from many a rocky
 teat,

Spilt in white gallons all along the shore

Lamorna Cove

The mind, with its own eyes and ears,
 May for these others have no care,

No matter where this body is,
 The mind is free to go elsewhere

And when I'm passing near St Paul's,
 I see, beyond the dome and crowd,

Twm Barlum, that green pap in Gwent,
 With its dark nipple in a cloud

The Mind's Liberty

Strive not for gold, for greedy fools Measure themselves by poor men never,

 Their standards still being richer men,
 Makes them poor ever

The mighty fleet of Wren, with their topgallants and mainsails of stone

The nautical simile leaps to the mind at the sight of Wren's white spires and towers, and it is appropriate, too, to the material in which Wren worked Portland stone is a marine deposit of the Jurassic period before Britain first at Heaven's command arose from out the azure main Its beds are full of fossils of marine creatures, cockles, sea-urchins, starfish, and oysters You can see shell imprints on the freshly cut whitbed stone on the top of the new Bush Building, and you can see 'horses' heads' — as certain shell fossils are called by masons — on the weather-beaten south parapet of St Paul's You can see and feel the shells projecting from the plinth of King Charles's statue at Charing Cross It is a strange thought that the majesty of the capital of this sea-joined empire should come itself from beneath the sea How could our poets have missed such a theme?

Alas, Alack

It's a very odd thing —

As odd as can be —

That whatever Miss T eats Turns into Miss T.

Miss T

Who said, "Ay, mum's the word",
Sexton to willow

Who said, "Green dusk for dreams, Moss for a pillow"? —

Who said, "All Time's delight
Hath she for narrow bed,
Life's troubled bubble broken"? —
That's what I said

Song of the Mad Prince Stanza 2

Be not too wildly amorous of the far,
Nor lure thy fantasy to its utmost

CLARENCE DAY

[1874-1935]

A race of civilized beings descended from the great cats would have been rich in hermits and solitary thinkers
 The recluse would not have been stig-matized as peculiar, as he is by us simians They would not have been a credulous people, or easily religious False prophets and swindlers would have found few dupes And what generals they would have made! what consummate politicians!

This Simian World VI

Curiosity is a valuable trait It will make the simians learn many things
 But the curiosity of a simian is as excessive as the toil of an ant Each simian will wish to know more than his head can hold, let alone ever deal with,
 and those whose minds are active will wish to know everything going It would stretch a god's skull to accomplish such

ing the theory of evolution in his classroom
 at the Central High School

an ambition, yet simians won't like to think it's beyond their powers. Even small tradesmen and clerks, no matter how thrifty, will be eager to buy costly encyclopedias, or books of all knowledge. Almost every simian family, even the dullest, will think it is due to themselves to keep all knowledge handy.

This Simian World IX

Simians even believe, many of them, that knowledge is power. Unfortunate dupes of this saying will keep on reading, ambitiously, till they have stunned their native initiative, and made their thoughts weak, and will then wonder dazedly what in the world is the matter, and why the great power they were expecting to gain fails to appear. Again, if they ever forget what they read, they'll be worried. Those who can forget — those with fresh eyes who have swept from their minds such facts as the exact month and day that their children were born, or the numbers on houses, or the names (the mere meaningless labels) of the people they meet, — will be urged to go live in sanitariums or see memory doctors!

Ibid.

Huge seas of talk of every sort and kind, in print, speech, and writing, will roll unceasingly, involving an unbelievable waste in labor and time, and sapping the intelligence talk is supposed to upbuild. In a simian civilization, great halls will be erected for lectures, and great throngs will actually pay to go inside at night to hear some self-satisfied talk-maker chatter for hours. Almost any subject will do for a lecture, or talk, yet very few subjects will be counted important enough for the average man to do any thinking on them, off by himself.

Ibid. X

It is possible that our race may be an accident, in a meaningless universe, living its brief life uncared-for, on this dark, cooling star — but even so — and all the more — what marvelous creatures we are! What fairy story, what tale from the Arabian Nights of the jinns, is a hundredth part as wonderful as this true fairy story of simians! It is so much more heartening, too, than the tales we invent. A universe capable of giving birth to many such accidents is — blind or not — a good world to live in, a promising universe.

This Simian World XIX

Father declared he was going to buy a new plot in the cemetery, a plot all for himself. "And I'll buy one on a corner," he added triumphantly, "where I can get out!"

Alone?

Is he alone at whose right side rides
Courage, with Skill within the cockpit and Faith upon the left? Does solitude surround the brave when Adventure leads the way and Ambition reads the dials? Is there no company with him for whom the air is cleft by Daring and the darkness is made light by Emprise?

True, the fragile bodies of his fellows do not weigh down his plane, true, the fretful minds of weaker men are lacking from his crowded cabin, but as his airship keeps her course he holds communion with those rarer spirits that inspire to intrepidity and by their sustaining potency give strength to arm, resource to mind, content to soul.

Alone? With what other companions would that man fly to whom the choice were given?

SIR JAMES HOPWOOD JEANS

[1877— ]

Hubble<sup>1</sup> estimates that about two million such nebulae are visible in the great 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson, and that the whole universe has about a thousand million times the volume of that part of space visible in this telescope. Let us now multiply 1,000 million by 2 million, and the product by 1,000 million. The answer ( $2 \times 10^{24}$ ) gives some indication of the probable number of stars in the universe, the same number of grains of sand spread over England would make a layer hundreds of yards in depth. Let us reflect that our earth is one millionth part of one such grain of sand, and our mundane affairs, our troubles and our achievements, begin to appear in their

correct proportion to the universe as a whole

The Wider Aspects of Cosmogony [1928]

Observation and theory agree in indicating that the universe is melting away into radiation. Our position is that of polar bears on an iceberg that has broken loose from the icepack surrounding the pole, and is inexorably melting away as the iceberg drifts to warmer latitudes and ultimate extinction.

Ibid

Taking a very gloomy view of the future of the human race, let us suppose that it can only expect to survive for two thousand million years longer, a period about equal to the past age of the earth. Then, regarded as a being destined to live for threescore years and ten, humanity, although it has been born in a house seventy years old, is itself only three days old.

Ibid

It does not at present look as though Nature had designed the universe primarily for life, the normal star and the normal nebula have nothing to do with life except making it impossible. Life is the end of a chain of by-products, it seems to be the accident, and torrential deluges of life-destroying radiation the essential.

Ibid

In His Own Country Stanza 1

May you go safe, my friend, across that dizzy way

No wider than a hair, by which your people go

From Earth to Paradise, may you go safe to-day
With stars and space above, and time and stars below

May You Go Safe On the Death of a Muhammedan Friend Stanza 1

All who write put me in mind of sailors hastily making rafts upon doomed ships

When we break up under the heavy years and go down into eternity our thoughts like small lost rafts float on awhile upon Oblivion's sea They will not carry much over those tides, our names and a phrase or two and little else

See now Oblivion shimmering all around us, its very tranquillity deadlier than tempest

There goes the raft that Homer made for Helen

And as I lingered, lost in divine delight,
My heart thanked God for the goodly

And all youth's lively senses keen and quick —

When suddenly, behind me in the night,

I heard the tapping of a blind man's

What stranger would come back to me

The Return Stanza 2

Though now beyond earth's farthest
hills you fare,

Song-crowned, immortal, sometimes it seems to me

That, if I listen very quietly,

Perhaps I'll hear a light foot on the stair

And see you, standing with your angel
all,

Fresh from the uplands of eternity

Rupert Brooke

When I must breast the stiller sea

That stretches everlastingly

Beneath the starless unknown night,

The darkness round me falling,

May it be given me to hear

Life calling me as crystal-clear —

To glance back once through failing light

And answer that sweet calling

The Voice Stanza 2

OLIVER ST JOHN GOGARTY

[1878— ]

O Boys, the times I've seen!

The things I've done and known!

If you knew where I have been

Or half the joys I've had,

You never would leave me alone,

But pester me to tell,

Swearing to keep it dark,

What but I know quite well.

Every solicitor's clerk

Would break out and go mad,

And all the dogs would bark!

O Boys! O Boys!

No one believes in joys,

And Peace on Earth is a joke,

Which, anyhow, telling destroys,
So better go on with your work
But Boys! O Boys! O Boys!

O Boys! O Boys!

Our friends go with us as we go Down the long path where Beauty
wends,

Where all we love foregathers, so Why should we fear to join our friends?

Non Dolet

Only the Lion and the Cock,

Hugo, dur partisan
combattit sous l'armure,
Et tint haut sa bannière au milieu du mur-

Comme en sa tour d'ivoire, avant midi, ren-

(Hugo, strong partisan fought in armor,
And held high his banner in the midst of the tumult
He still holds it, and Vigny, more discreet,
As if in his tower of ivory, retired before noon)

The poet, retired in his Tower of Ivory, isolated, according to his desire, from the world of man, resembles, whether he so wishes or tions, and curses thundered from a thousand pulpits City of unfortunate fortune tellers City entered by Reporters cover you, yet you are never covered

City of carpenters without wood, of plumbers without mercy City of un-

City wrought in flame City of argu-

wherein no one knows whether he is coming or going City of odalisques working in stores, of seraglios seeking for sultans, of tired old women scrubbing offices by night Great glorious patriotic city, giving its canes to crippled soldiers Fairy city in those magic hours of the passing night, the Dress-suit city, for hire and for too terrible for drama, too true for testimony. . . .

City worth visiting, if only for a

The sea has always been a seducer, a careless lying fellow, not feminine, as many writers imagine, but strongly masculine in its allurements The king

milkmen The milkman alone is enough to redeem the night from its undeserved evil reputation A cartload of pasteur-

The best, the most exquisite automobile is a walking-stick, and one of the finest things in life is going a journey with it

Walking-Stick Papers [1918]

They [women] are too personal for the high enjoyment of going a journey. They must be forever thinking about you or about themselves, with them everything in the world is somehow tangled up in these matters, and when you are with them (you cannot help it, or if you could they would not allow it), you must be forever thinking about them or

At first I was rather unwilling to study Latin grammar. It seemed absurd to waste time analyzing every word I came across — noun, genitive, singular, feminine — when its meaning was quite plain. I thought I might just as well describe my pet in order to know it — order, vertebrate, division, quadruped, class, mammalia, genus, filius, species, cat, individual, Tabby. But as I got deeper into the subject, I became more interested, and the beauty of the language delighted me. I often amused myself by reading Latin passages, picking up words I understood and trying to

When eight strong fellows are out to row,

With a ship of a lad to guide them,
I warrant they'll make the light ship go,

Don't hurry the slides, and use your weight!

You're bucketing, Bow, and, as to Four,

The sight of his shoulders makes me sore!"

"Now stick to it, all, for the post is near!"

And, lo, they stop at the coxswain's call,
With its message of comfort, "Easy all!"

The virulence of the national appetite for bogus revelation

A Book of Prefaces Chap 1, Sect 2

Prejudices, First Series Chap 13

The great artists of the world are never Puritans, and seldom even ordinarily respectable

Ibid Chap 16

To be in love is merely to be in a state of perceptual anaesthesia — to mistake an ordinary young man for a Greek god or an ordinary young woman for a goddess

Ibid

Here, more than anywhere else in the world, the daily panorama of human existence — the unending procession of governmental extortions and chicaneries, of commercial brigandages and throat-slittings, of theological buffooneries, of aesthetic ribaldries, of legal swindles and harlotries — is so inordinately extravagant, so perfectly brought up to the highest conceivable amperage, that only the man who was born with a petrified diaphragm can fail to go to bed every night grinning from ear to ear, and awake every morning with the eager, unflagging expectations of a Sunday-school superintendent touring the Paris peep-shows

On Being an American [1922]

Human enterprises that, in all other countries, are resigned despairingly to an incurable dulness — things that seem devoid of exhilarating amusement by their very nature — are here lifted to such inordinate buffoonery that contemplating them tears the very midriff from its moorings

Ibid

To be happy one must be (a) well fed, unhounded by sordid cares, at ease in Zion, (b) full of a comfortable feeling of superiority to the masses of one's fellow men, and (c) delicately and unceasingly amused according to one's taste. It is my contention that, if this definition be accepted, there is no country in the world wherein a man constituted as I am — a man of my peculiar weakness, vanities, appetites, and aversions — can be so happy as he can be in the United States. Going further, I lay down the doctrine that it is a sheer physical impossibility for such a man to live in the United States and not be happy

Ibid

All the more pretentious American authors try to write chastely and elegantly, the typical literary product of the country is still a refined essay in the Atlantic Monthly, perhaps gently jocose but never rough — by Emerson, so to speak, out of Charles Lamb

From the American Credo [1920]

That all one has to do to gather a large crowd in New York is to stand on the curb a few moments and gaze intently at the sky

That the postmasters in small towns read all the postcards

That all theater box-office employés are very impolite and hate to sell a prospective patron a ticket

That all newspaper reporters carry notebooks

That, when shaving on a railway train, a man invariably cuts himself

That the jokes in Punch are never funny

That nicotine keeps the teeth in a sound condition

That the wife of a rich man always wistfully looks back into the past and wishes she had married a poor man

That the quality of the champagne may be judged by the amount of noise the cork makes when it is popped

That all French women are very passionate, and will sacrifice everything to love

That beer is very fattening

That the cloth used in suits made in England is so good that it never wears out

That Philadelphia is a very sleepy town

That if one swallows an ounce of olive oil before going to a banquet, one will not get drunk

That the worst actress in the company is always the manager's wife

That milking a cow is an operation demanding a special talent that is possessed only by yokels, and that a person born in a large city can never hope to acquire it.

RICHARD HENRY TAWNEY

The burden of our civilization is not merely, as many suppose, that the product of industry is ill-distributed, or its conduct tyrannical, or its operation interrupted by bitter disagreements. It is that industry itself has come to hold a position of exclusive predominance among human interests, which no single interest, and least of all the provision of the material means of existence, is fit to occupy. Like a hypochondriac who is so absorbed in the processes of his own digestion that he goes to the grave before he has begun to live, industrialized communities neglect the very objects for which it is worth while to acquire riches in their feverish preoccupation with the means by which riches can be acquired.

That obsession by economic issues is as local and transitory as it is repulsive and disturbing. To future generations it will appear as pitiable as the obsession of the seventeenth century by religious quarrels appeared today.

"Oh, why do you gaze, my dear, my
dear,

And muse on the misty sky?"

"I'm afraid that it isn't going to clear,
And we won't get the washing dry"

Sehnsucht Stanza 5

If, my dear, you seek to slumber,
Count of stars an endless number,
If you still continue wakeful,
Count the drops that make a lakeful,
Then, if vigilance yet above you
Hover, count the times I love you,
And if slumber still repel you,
Count the times I do not tell you

[1885-1933]

A good many young writers make the mistake of enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, big enough for the manuscript to come back in. This is too much of a temptation to the editor.

Personally I have found it a good scheme to not even sign my name to the story, and when I have got it sealed up in its envelope and stamped and addressed, I take it to some town where I don't live and mail it from there. The editor has no idea who wrote the story, so how can he send it back? He is in a quandary.

SINCLAIR LEWIS

Babbitt's spectacles had huge, circular, frameless lenses of the very best glass, the ear-pieces were thin bars of gold. In them he was the modern business man, one who gave orders to clerks and drove a car and played occasional golf and was scholarly in regard to Salesmanship. . . a Solid Citizen.

Babbitt Chap. 1

A sensational event was changing from the brown suit to the gray the contents of his pockets. He was earnest about these objects. They were of eternal importance, like baseball or the Republican Party. They included a fountain pen and a silver pencil (always lacking a supply of new leads) which belonged in the righthand upper vest pocket. Without them he would have felt naked. On his watch-chain were a gold penknife, silver cigar-cutter, seven keys (the use of two of which he had forgotten), and incidentally a good watch. Depending from the chain was a large, yellowish elk's-tooth — proclamation of his membership in the Brotherly and Protective Order of Elks. Most significant of all was his loose-leaf pocket note-book, that modern and efficient note-book which contained the addresses of people whom he had forgotten, prudent memoranda of postal money-orders which had reached their destinations months ago, stamps which had lost their mucilage, clippings of verses by T. Cholmondeley Frink and of the newspaper editorials from which Babbitt got his opinions and his polysyllables, notes to be sure and do things which he did not intend to do, and one curious inscription — D S S D M Y P D F<sup>1</sup>.

Babbitt Chap. 1

Not only Gopher Prairie, but ten thousand towns from Albany to San Diego — not a dozen buildings which suggested that, in the fifty years of Gopher Prairie's existence, the citizens had realized that it was either desirable or possible to make this, their common home, amusing or attractive.

Between the Pulitzer Prizes, the American Academy of Arts and Letters and its training-school the National Institute of Arts and Letters, amateur boards of censorship, and the inquisition of earnest literary ladies, every compulsion is put upon writers to become safe, polite, obedient, and sterile
In protest, I declined election to the National Institute of Arts and Letters some years ago, and now I must decline
the Pulitzer Prize.

I invite other writers to consider the fact that by accepting the prizes and approval of these vague institutions, we are admitting their authority, publicly confirming them as the final judges of literary excellence, and I inquire whether any prize is worth that subservience

To a true-blue professor of literature in an American university, literature is not something that a plain human being, living today, painfully sits down to produce No, it is something dead, it is something magically produced by superhuman beings who must, if they are to be regarded as artists at all, have died at least one hundred years before the diabolical invention of the typewriter To any authentic don, there is something slightly repulsive in the thought that literature could be created by any ordinary human being, still to be seen walking the streets, wearing quite commonplace trousers and coat and looking not so unlike a chauffeur or a farmer Our American professors like their literature clear and cold and pure and very dead

I know that words are said to me that are not said with speech

My heart has learned a lesson that I can never teach

Only this I know, that I am overtaken

By a swifter runner Whose breath is never shaken,

That I follow on His pace, and that round me, as I waken,

Are the headlands of home and the blue sea swinging
 And the flowers of the valleys their fresh scents flinging
 And the prophets and the poets, with their singing — with their singing!

Man Possessed

Like flame, like wine, across the still lagoon

The colors of the sunset stream Spectral in heaven as climbs the frail veiled moon,
 So climbs my dream
 Out of the heart's eternal torture fire
 No flaming Phoenix risen —
 Only the naked soul, spent with desire, Bursts its prison

Gaspara Stampa Stanza 1

The gods returned to earth when Venice broke

Like Venus from the dawn-encircled
 sea

Wide laughed the skies with light when Venice woke

Crowned of antiquity,
 And like a spoil of gems unmined on earth

Art in her glorious mind
 Jewelled all Italy for joy's rebirth
 To all mankind

Ibid Stanza 9

So let it be, let it be,
 Fretting all the day!
 What is this or that to me
 Who talked it out in Tartary Centuries away!

Yet a while with love I stroll
 Bright streets of air,
 Silver precincts few extol,
 Mist-blue cities of the soul,
 Countries here nor there

Smooth-Sliding Minimus.
Stanzas 5 and 6

 And crawled another day toward dying
Amnalcule Stanza 7

Voice of the forum loud and harsh
 Full of frog-rhetoric of the marsh,
 Awful percipience whose small eye
 Views art through ordure of the sty,
 Apocalyptic commonplace
 Whose every utterance is base —
 Yearlong the nations cry to thee,
 God of our gods, Stupidity!

Hymn to Stupidity

You came to climb,
 And you endure —
 So turn your face to the rock of Time,
 Make one more foothold sure!

Because You Came to Climb

O there beloved, all loved, forever
 As light you are, in light you move,
 Pride of the father, tears of the mother,
 Silver sister and golden brother —
 The glowing mind of all endeavor,
 The full irradiancy of love

Nebular Hypothesis Stanza 5

Only madmen seize the story
 With coals of fire upon their tongue

Ibid Stanza 13

When at our history men stand

Soldiers are citizens of death's grey
 land,

Drawing no dividend from time's tomorrows

In the great hour of destiny they stand,
 Each with his feuds, and jealousies, and sorrows

Soldiers are sworn to action, they must win

Some flaming, fatal climax with their lives

Soldiers are dreamers, when the guns

The enemy has risen from his chair
He doesn't look so overwhelming, but His arm is long Watch for an upper-

Somewhere, behind Space and Time,
Is wetter water, slimier slime!

Heaven

And in that Heaven of all their wish,
There shall be no more land, say fish

Ibid

Unkempt about those hedges blows
An English unofficial rose

The Old Vicarage, Grantchester

[1912]

Curates, long dust, will come and go
On lissom, clerical, printless toe

Ibid

England's the one land, I know,
Where men with Splendid Hearts may go,

And Cambridgeshire, of all England,
The shire of Men who Understand.

Ibid.

Say, is there Beauty yet to find?
And Certainty? and Quiet kind?

Deep meadows yet, for to forget
The lies, and truths, and pain? . . .

oh! yet

Stands the Church clock at ten to three?
And is there honey still for tea?

Ibid

Breathless, we flung us on the windy
hill,

Laughed in the sun, and kissed the lovely grass

The Hill

And then you suddenly cried, and turned away

Ibid

For what they'd never told me of,
And what I never knew,

It was that all the time, my love,
Love would be merely you

Song

Spend in pure converse our eternal day,
Think each in each, immediately

wise,

Learn all we lacked before, hear, know,
and say

<sup>1</sup> Among all who have been poets and died young, it is hard to think of one who, both in life and death, has so typified the ideal radiance of youth and poetry — GILBERT MURRAY [1915]

What this tumultuous body now denies,
And feel, who have laid our groping
hands away,
And see, no longer blinded by our eyes

Sonnet

I have been so great a lover filled my days
So proudly with the splendor of Love's praise
These I have loved
White plates and cups, clean-gleaming
The cool kindliness of sheets, that soon Smooth away trouble, and the rough male kiss
Of blankets, grainy wood, live hair that
is Shining and free, blue-massing clouds;
the keen
Unpassioned beauty of a great machine,
The benison of hot water, furs to touch,
The good smell of old clothes

The Great Lover

If I should die, think only this of me
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is for ever England

The Soldier

This heart, all evil shed away,
A pulse in the eternal mind, no less Gives somewhere back the thoughts by England given

Ibid

Now, God be thanked, who has matched us with his hour,
And caught our youth, and wakened us
from sleeping

Peace

The worst friend and enemy is but Death

Ibid

Blow out, you bugles, over the rich
dead!
There's none of these so lonely and poor of old,
But, dying, has made us rarer gifts
than gold

The Dead I

Honour has come back, as a king, to
earth,

And paid his subjects with a royal
wage,
And Nobleness walks in our ways
again,
And we have come into our heritage

JAMES NORMAN HALL

[1887- ]

The thing that numbs the heart is this:
That men cannot devise
Some scheme of life to banish fear
That lurks in most men's eyes
Fear

Fear of the lack of shelter, food,
And fire for winter's cold,
Fear of their children's lacking these,
This in a world so old
Ibid

This is my sure, my very firm belief
That life, to one born whole, is worth the living,
Well worth the taking, having, and the giving
A Starry Night at Arué

ROBINSON JEFFERS

[1887- ]

The gulls, the cloud-calligraphers of windy spirals before a storm
The Cycle
Four pelicans went over the house, Sculled their worn oars over the courtyard.

I saw that gainlessness
Magnifies the idea of strength
Pelicans
While this America settles in the mould of its vulgarity, heavily thickening
to empire,
And protest, only a bubble in the molten mass, pops and sighs out, and the mass hardens

Shine, Perishing Republic
Stanza 1

You make haste on decay not blameworthy, life is good, be it stubbornly long or suddenly

A mortal splendor meteors are not needed less than mountains shine, perishing republic.

But for my children, I would have them
keep their distance from the thickening center; corruption

Never has been compulsory, when the cities lie at the monster's feet there are left the mountains

Shine, Perishing Republic
Stanzas 3 and 4

All these tidal gatherings, growth and decay,

Shining and darkening, are forever
Renewed, and the whole cycle impenitently

Revolves, and all the past is future —

Make it a difficult world for practical people

Practical People

After all, after all we endured, who has grown wise?

We take our mortal momentary hour
With too much gesture, the derisive skies

Twinkle against our wrongs, our rights,
our power

Look up the night, starlight's a steadying draught

For nerves at angry tension
The Truce and the Peace 7 [1918]

"Loyal to your highest, sensitive, brave, Sanguine, some few ways wise, you and all men are drawn out of this depth

Only to be these things you are, as flowers for color, falcons for swiftness,

Mountains for mass and quiet Each for its quality

Is drawn out of this depth Your tragic quality

Required the huge delusion of some major purpose to produce it

What, that the God of the stars needed your help?" He said "This is my last

Worst pain, the bitter enlightenment that buys peace "

Woodrow Wilson [1924]

All the arts lose virtue

Against the essential reality

Of creatures going about their business
among the equally

Earnest elements of nature

Boats in a Fog

Singing to himself the fool south-border
couplet

"No tengo tabaco, no tengo papel,
No tengo dinero, God damn it to hell "

Tamar VI

Grass that is made each year equals the mountains in her past and future, Fashionable and momentary things we need not see nor speak of

Point Joe

Lend me the stone strength of the past and I will lend you

The wings of the future, for I have them
How dear you will be to me when I too grow old, old comrade

To the Rock That Will Be a Cornerstone

Divinely superfluous beauty

Rules the games, presides over destinies, makes trees grow

And hills tower, waves fall

The incredible beauty of joy

Divinely Superfluous Beauty

The beauty of things was born before eyes and sufficient to itself, the heart-breaking beauty

Will remain when there is no heart to break for it

Credo

The heads of strong old age are beautiful

Beyond all grace of youth They have strange quiet,

Integrity, health, soundness, to the full They've dealt with life and been attempered by it

Promise of Peace

ORRICK JOHNS

[1887— ]

There's nothing very beautiful and nothing very gay

About the rush of faces in the town by day,
But a light tan cow in a pale green mead,
That is very beautiful, beautiful indeed

Little Things

And better is a temple made of bark and thong

Than a tall stone temple that may stand too long

Ibid

Love is a proud and gentle thing, a better thing to own

Than all of the wide impossible stars
over the heavens blown

The Door

Yet maybe now there passes here,

In reverential dream, a boy

Whose voice shall rise another year

And rouse the sleeping lords of joy

Second Avenue

He shall bring back the faded bays,

The Muses to their ancient rule,

The temples to the market-place,

The genius nearer to the fool

It was a bird first spoke to me at Oxford

Through the white fog a single, tentative word

I Enter Oxford

Oh! there are bells and there are spires
at Oxford,

Ancient, heart-breaking, wordless,
splendorous things;

Only to me belongs this simple, silver
Welcome on wings

Ibid

The day you do not write and silence follows, to be broken only by my life's end,

I shall know that you have not forgotten, that now you love me perfectly,

For I shall understand that you are
dead

Down the horn

Of her ear-trumpet I convey

The news that "It is Judgment Day!"

"Speak louder, I don't catch, my dear"

I roared "It is the Trump we hear!"

"The What?" — "The TRUMP!"

"I shall complain —

Those boy-scouts practising again!"

Solo for Ear-Trumpet

Every hundred years or so it becomes necessary for a change to take place in the body of poetry a fresh movement appears and produces a few great men, and once more the force and vig-our die from the results of age, the movement is carried on by weak and worthless imitators, and a change becomes necessary again

Poetry and Criticism [1926]

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

[1887-1943]

The attitude of the professional players toward the amateurs is best summed up in a raffish story they delight in telling on all occasions. It begins with a touching picture of an old broken-down tragedian sharing a park bench with a bedraggled and unappetizing street-walker "Ah, Madame," says the tragedian, "quelle Irome!" The two oldest professions in the world — ruined by amateurs"

The Knock at the Stage-Door

Beerbohm Tree said what we have all wanted to say of the extra-women in nearly every throne-room and ball-room and school-room scene since the theater began "Ladies," said Tree, peering at them plaintively through his monocle, "just a little more virginity, if you don't mind"

Capsule Criticism

ELINOR HOYT WYLIE

[1887-1928]

We shall walk in velvet shoes

Wherever we go

Silence will fall like dews

On white silence below

We shall walk in the snow

Velvet Shoes Stanza 4

Avoid the reeking herd,

Shun the polluted flock,

Live like that stoic bird

The eagle of the rock

The Eagle and the Mole Stanza 1

If you would keep your soul

From spotted sight or sound,

Live like the velvet mole,

Go burrow underground

Ibid Stanza 5

She, whose song we loved the best,

Is voiceless in a sudden night,

On your light limbs, O, Loveliest,

May the dust be light!

On a Singing Grl Stanza 2

I was, being human, born alone;

I am, being woman, hard beset,

I live by squeezing from a stone

The little nourishment I get

Let No Charitable Hope Stanza 2

In masks outrageous and austere

The years go by in single file,

But none has merited my fear,

And none has quite escaped my smile

Ibid Stanza 3

Farewell, sweet dust, I was never a miser

Once, for a minute, I made you mine

Now you are gone, I am none the wiser,

But the leaves of the willow are bright as wine

Farewell, Sweet Dust Stanza 4

I have believed that I prefer to live

Preoccupied by a Platonic mind,

I have believed me obdurate and blind

To those sharp ecstasies the pulses give

The clever body five times sensitive

I never have discovered to be kind

As the poor soul, deceived and half-divined,

Whose hopes are water in a witch's sieve

Angels and Earthly Creatures

Sonnet VI

A subtle spirit has my path attended,

In likeness not a lion but a pard,

And when the arrows flew like hail, and hard,

He licked my wounds, and all my wounds were mended,

And happy I, who walked so well-defended,

With that translucid presence for a guard,

Under a sky reversed and evil-starred,

A woman by an archangel befriended

Ibid Sonnet IX

If any have a stone to throw

It is not I, ever or now

The Pebble

Alembics turn to stranger things

Strange things, but never while we live

Shall magic turn this bronze that sings

To singing water in a sieve

Bronze Trumpets and Sea Water (On Turning Latin into English) Stanza 1

Pity the prickly star that frightens
The Christ Child with its shattered
spear,

Pity the midnight when it lightens,
Pity me, my dear

Pity Me Stanza 3

The worst and best are both inclined
To snap like vixens at the truth,
But, O, beware the middle mind
That purrs and never shows a tooth!

Nonsense Rhyme Stanza 2

Honied words like bees,
Gilded and sticky, with a little sting

Pretty Words

She'd give the shirt from off her back, except that

She doesn't wear a shirt, and most men
do;

And often and most bitterly she's wept
that

A starving tramp can't eat a silver shoe,
Or some poor beggar, slightly alcoholic,
Enjoy with Donne a metaphysical frolic

Portrait in Black Paint Stanza 2

Farewell, incomparable element, Whence man arose, where he shall not return,

And hail, imperfect urn

Of his last ashes, and his firstborn fruit,
Farewell, the long pursuit,

And all the adventures of his discontent

Hymn to Earth Stanza 1

Hail, element of earth, receive thy own,
And cherish, at thy charitable breast,
This man, this mongrel beast.

He plows the sand, and, at his hardest need,

He sows himself for seed

Ibid Stanza 6

Receive him as thy lover for an hour

Who will not weary, by a longer stay,
The kind embrace of clay

Ibid Stanza 7

HEYWOOD CAMPBELL BROWN

[1888-1939]

"You've got a kiss coming to you
When you live up as far as 168th Street you've got to do at least that much for any fellow that takes you home. .

"And say, listen, next month I'm going to move to 242nd Street "

The Boy Grew Older Chap 13

The ability to make love frivolously is the chief characteristic which distinguishes human beings from the beasts

It Seems to Me A Spring Sunday

I saw a money-changer in the neighborhood of the temple late yesterday afternoon, and it did not seem to me that he was on his way to catch an outbound train. On the contrary, he was headed up the steps, cool as a cucumber. "I wonder if the old place has changed," he remarked as we passed

Ibid "The Worst Is Over" [1933]

"Trees" (if I have the name right) is one of the most annoying pieces of verse within my knowledge. The other one is Kipling's "If," with third place reserved for Henley's "Invictus "

"Trees" maddens me, because it contains the most insincere line ever written by mortal man. Surely the Kilmer tongue must have been not far from the Kilmer cheek when he wrote, "Poems are made by fools like me "

Ibid "Trees," "If," and "Invictus"

It is a good trick when a writer can go out and set down with accuracy some living being whom he has observed with fidelity. He holds the mirror up to Nature

But that is not the furthest reach of literature. There are a few who venture forth and say with divine arrogance: "I see it this way. Let Nature catch up with my conception "

Life is a copycat and can be bullied into following the master artist who bids it come to heel

Ibid Nature the Copycat

I have known people to stop and buy an apple on the corner and then walk away as if they had solved the whole unemployment problem.

Ibid Chummy Charlie

The Irish are the cry-babies of the protests.

By the canal in Flanders I watched a barge's prow
Creep slowly past the poplar-trees, and there I made a vow
That when these wars are over and I am home at last However much I travel I shall not travel fast

Horses and cars and yachts and planes:
I've no more use for such
For in three years of war's alarms I've hurried far too much,
And now I dream of something sure, silent and slow and large;
So when the War is over — why, I mean to buy a barge

By the Canal in Flanders

By Charing Cross in London Town
There runs a road of high renown,
Where antique books are ranged on shelves

As dark and dusty as themselves
And many booklovers have spent
Their substance there with great con-

And vexed their wives and filled their homes

With faded prints and massive tomes.

I am no prophet — and here's no great matter,

I have seen the moment of my greatness
flicker,

And I have seen the eternal Footman

And in short, I was afraid

[1888-1935]

I loved you, so I drew these tides of men into my hands and wrote my will across the sky in stars

Seven Pillars of Wisdom Dedication

Arabs could be swung on an idea as
on a cord, for the unpledged allegiance of their minds made them obedient servants. None of them would escape the bond till success had come, and with it responsibility and duty and engagements. Then the idea was gone and the work ended — in ruins. Without a creed they could be taken to the four corners of the world (but not to heaven) by being shown the riches of earth and the pleasures of it, but if on the road, led in this fashion, they met the prophet of an idea, who had nowhere to lay his head and who depended for his food on charity or birds, then they would all leave their wealth for his inspiration

Ibid Chap 3

There could be no honour in a sure success, but much might be wrested from a sure defeat. Omnipotence and the Infinite were our two worthiest foe-men, indeed the only ones for a full man to meet, they being monsters of his own spirit's making, and the stoutest enemies were always of the household. In fighting Omnipotence, honour was proudly to throw away the poor resources that we had, and dare Him empty-handed.

Revolt in the Desert Chap 19

I grew proud of the enemy [the Germans] who had killed my brothers.
They were two thousand miles from home, without hope and without guides, in conditions mad enough to break the bravest nerves. Yet their sections held together in firm rank, sheering through the wrack of Turk and Arab like armoured ships, high-faced and silent.
When attacked they halted, took position, fired to order. There was no haste,

<sup>1</sup> Changed his name to T. E. Shaw, 1927

no crying, no hesitation They were glorious

Revolt in the Desert Chap 34

It came upon me freshly how the secret of uniform was to make a crowd solid, dignified, impersonal to give it the singleness and tautness of an up-standing man This death's livery which walled its bearers from ordinary life, was sign that they had sold their wills and bodies to the State and contracted themselves into a service not the less abject for that its beginning was voluntary Some of them had obeyed the instinct of lawlessness some were hungry others thirsted for glamour, for the supposed colour of a military life but, of them all, those only received satisfaction who had sought to degrade themselves, for to the peace-eye they were below humanity

Ibid Chap 35

NEWMAN LEVY

[1888— ]

In Spain, where the courtly Castilian hidalgo twangs lightly each night
his romantic guitar,

Where the castanets clink on the gay
piazetta, and strains of fandangoes
are heard from afar,

There lived, I am told, a bold hussy named Carmen, a pampered young vamp full of devil and guile.

Cigarette and cigar men were smitten with Carmen, from near and from far men were caught with her smile

Opera Guyed Carmen

But here's our friend José who seizes her bridle A wild homicidal glint gleams in his eye

He's mad and disgusted and cries out,
"You've busted the heart that once trusted you Wed me or die!"

Though Carmen is frightened at how this scene might end, I'm forced to admit she is game to the last

She says to him "Banish the notion and vanish Vamos!" which is Spanish for "run away fast"

A scream and a struggle! She reels and she staggers, for Don José's dagger's plunged deep in her breast

No more will she flirt in her old way, that's certain So ring down the curtain, poor Carmen's at rest

NOTES

1 Flourish The stage direction here is obscure Clarke claims it should read "flarish," thus changing the meaning of the passage to "flarish" (that is, the King's), but most authorities have agreed that it should remain "flourish," supplying the predicate which is to be flourished There was at this time a custom in the countryside of England to flourish a mop as a signal to the passing vender of berries, signifying that in that particular household there was a consumer-demand for berries, and this may have been meant in this instance That Shakespeare was cognizant of this custom of flourishing the mop for berries is shown in a similar passage in the second part of King Henry IV, where he has the Third Page enter and say, "Flourish" Cf also Hamlet, IV, 7 4

PHILIP GUEDALLA

[1889- ]

Biography, like big game hunting, is one of the recognized forms of sport, and it is as unfair as only sport can be. High on some far hill-side of politics or history the amateur marks down his distant quarry. Follows an intensely distasteful period of furtive approach to the subject which leads the deer-stalker up gullies and ravines and the biographer through private letters and washing-books. The burns grow deeper and wetter, the letters take a more private and a less publishable turn, until at last our sportsman, well within range, turns to his publisher, who carries the guns, and empties one, two, and (if the public will stand it) three barrels into his unprotesting victim because it is a cruel truth that the subjects of Lives are rarely themselves alive.

Supers and Supermen

Whispering from its towers the last enchantment of the middle-class, the Foreign Office occupies an eligible central situation between Whitehall and St. James's Park. The grateful taxpayer provides it with an abundance of admirable stationery, and it is perhaps the last place in London where everybody is a gentleman.

Ibid

Because the sporting England of Queen Victoria could never understand the unathletic France of President Thiers, we have all in our time conjured up delightful visions of legions of little Frenchmen in flat-brimmed silk hats going fox-shooting with packs of poodles. No picture of life in Calais was too ludicrous to be believed in Dover, that is one of the advantages of being an Island Race.<sup>1</sup>

Supers and Supermen

There is no Gibbon but Gibbon, and Gibbon is his prophet. The solemn march of his cadences, the majestic impropriety of his innuendo are without rivals in the respective annals of British eloquence and British indelicacy.

Ibid

The work of Henry James has always seemed divisible by a simple dynastic arrangement into three reigns: James I, James II, and the Old Pretender.

Ibid.

An Englishman is a man who lives on an island in the North Sea governed by Scotsmen.

Walker followed with the full energy of a man born in Nashville, Tennessee, the high calling of a filibuster. He was the son of an insurance manager, and he became almost mechanically a pirate. Walker filiburst (if that is the appropriate aorist).

General Walker

The cheerful clatter of Sir James Barrie's cans as he went round with the milk of human kindness.

Leviathan [1923]

The adventurer is within us, and he contests for our favour with the social man we are obliged to be. These two sorts of life are incompatible, one we hanker after, the other we are obliged to. There is no other conflict so deep and bitter as this, whatever the pious say, for it derives from the very constitutions of human life, which so painfully separate us from all other beings. We, like the eagles, were born to be free. Yet we are obliged, in order to live at all, to make a cage of laws for ourselves and to stand on the perch. We are born as wasteful and unremorseful as tigers, we are obliged to be thrifty, or starve, or freeze. We are born to wander, and cursed to stay and dig.

Twelve Against the Gods [1929]
Introduction

He, and the world with him,—for Wilson's adventure was the world's, and one day the world will know it, even the fools—were not the victims of a vulgar trick, unless the dizziness that pulls down climbers from the peak is some cunning of the Alps. We fell there because the height was too great, because he saw all the countries of the world, the bare immensity of the mass of common people which he had worshipped all his life, but never imagined until that day he knew he had them, their lives, and all uncountable, future ages of them in his own two hands. Seeing, a great vertigo leapt on him. Those days have passed more utterly from memory than if a hundred years had gone since then, but a few who lived through them, and stood near where the pedestal of Wilson was standing can remember, vaguely, as if they had read it somewhere, something of the madness, the sheer panic, mixed with exaltation, of the times.

I know a sheaf of splendid songs by heart

Which stir the blood or move the soul
to tears,
Of death or honour or of love's sweet
smart,
The runes and legends of a thousand
years,
And some of them go plaintively and slow,
And some are jolly like the earth in May —

But this is really the best song I know

His kisses touch her marvelling eyes
And wander searching through her thinking face,

And though so loved and near she lies
He knows he travels in a distant place

A Girl Adoring Prefatory verses

He does not know how far, how far,
Only she makes him think of some strange land

Beyond the earth his journeys are, Touching that wild, wild heart and thinking hand

KING EDWARD VIII

[1894- ]

I am better known to most of you as the Prince of Wales, as the man who during the war and since has had the opportunity of getting to know the people of nearly every country of the world
under all conditions and circumstances
And although I now speak to you as the King, I am still the same man who has had the experience, and whose constant effort will be to continue to promote the well-being of his fellow men

*First broadcast to the Empire after ascending the throne
[March 1, 1936]*

At long last I am able to say a few words of my own I have never wanted to withhold anything, but until now it has not been constitutionally possible for me to speak

I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as King as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love

I now quit altogether public affairs and I lay down my burden

It may be some time before I return to my native land, but I shall always follow the fortunes of the British race and empire with profound interest and if, at any time in the future, I can be found of service to His Majesty in a private station I shall not fail

And now we all have a new King I wish him and you, his people, happiness and prosperity with all my heart

God bless you all! God save the King!

The Frenchman, like the old Scotch golfer, endeavors to do what there is to be done without superfluous weapons or fancy gestures. He sits down, ties his napkin behind his ears, picks up a knife and fork and goes to work with admirable directness. He dunks his bread in the juice of the snail, he chases fragments of steak and gravy with a piece of crust, he licks his fingers, says, "Ah!" and gets fed.

There is no brilliant lamp in that dogged mind

And no conceit of brilliance to shake

So, when the crowd gives tongue
And prophets, old or young,
Bawl out their strange despair
Or fall in worship there,
Let them applaud the image or condemn

But keep your distance and your soul
from them,

And, if the heart within your breast
must burst

Like a cracked crucible and pour its steel

White-hot before the white heat of the wheel,

Strive to recast once more

That attar of the ore

In the strong mold of pain

Till it is whole again,

And while the prophets shudder or adore

Before the flame, hoping it will give ear,

If you at last must have a word to say,
Say neither, in their way,

"It is a deadly magic and accursed,"

Nor "It is blest," but only "It is here."

Ibid Book 8. Conclusion

[May 10, 1863]

It is so they die on the plains, the great,
 old buffalo,
 The herd-leaders, the beasts with the
 kingly eyes,
 Innocent, curly-browed,
 They sink to the earth like mountains,
 hairy and silent,
 And their tongues are cut by the hunter
           Oh, singing tongue!
 Great tongue of bronze and salt and the free grasses,
 Tongue of America, speaking for the first time,
 Must the hunter have you at last?

Now, face to face, you saw him
 And lifted the right arm once, as a pilot lifts it,
 Signalling with the bell,
 In the passage at night, on the river
 known yet unknown,
 — Perhaps to touch his shoulder, perhaps in pain —
 Then the rain fell on the roof and the twilight darkened
 And they said that in death you looked like a marvelous old, wise child

Ode to Walt Whitman I

You're still the giant lode we quarry
 For gold, fools' gold and all the earthy metals,
 The matchless mine
 Still the trail-breaker, still the rolling river

Ode to Walt Whitman IV

Far north, far north are the sources of the great river,
 The headwaters, the cold lakes,
 By the little sweet-tasting brooks of the blond country,
 The country of snow and wheat,
 Or west among the black mountains, the glacial springs
 Far North and West they lie and few come to them

Ibid

Rolling, rolling from Arkansas, Kansas,
 Iowa,
 Rolling from Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois,
 Rolling and shouting
 Till, at last, it is Mississippi,
 The Father of Waters, the matchless,
 the great flood

Dyed with the earth of States, with the dust and the sun and the seed of half the States

Ode to Walt Whitman IV

I have fallen in love with American

Now grimy April comes again,
 Maketh bloom the fire-escapes,
 Maketh silvers in the rain,
 Maketh winter coats and capes
 Suddenly all worn and shabby
 Like the fur of winter bears,
 Maketh kittens, maketh baby,
 Maketh kissing on the stairs.
 Maketh bug crawl out of crack,
 Maketh ticklings down the back
 As if sunlight stroked the spine
 To a hurdy-gurdy's whine
 And the shower ran white wine

For City Spring

April lieth, April spieth
 Everywhere a lover lieth,
 Bringeth sweetness, bringeth fever,
 Will not stop at "I would hever,"
 Will not heed, "Now God a mercy!"
 Turneth Moial topsy-versy,
 Bringeth he and she to bed,
 Bringeth ill to maidenhead,
 Bringeth joyance in its stead

"It is eighteen years," I cried "You must come no more"
 "We know your names We know that Must you march forever from France and the last, blind war?"

"Fool! From the next!" they said

It is natural that women should like the birds whose domestic affairs can be observed under the eaves, they love the sweetest singers, the brightest plumage,
the species not too shy to be seen at close range For them the waders and swimmers, the awkward of leg, the harsh of cry, the wild of soul, have seldom the same appeal But that have Women of all people ought to

In Thomas Henry Huxley Darwinism had a champion in invincible armor For sheer glitter his mind has seldom had an equal in any land or age and he laid waste about him with the weapon of truth "The cradle of every

Seven o'clock is not too late, but by

All poets who, when reading from poets who read from their own works are major, whether they choke or not All women poets, dead or alive, who smoke cigars are major All poets who [1900-1938]

He awakes at morning in a foreign land, he draws his breath in labor in the wool-soft air of Europe the wool-gray air is all about him like a living substance, it is in his heart, his stomach, and his entrails, it is in the slow and vital movements of the people, it soaks down from the sodden skies into the earth, into the heavy buildings, into the limbs and hearts and brains of living men. . .

It was there now, it will always be there They had it in Merry England and they had it in Gay Paree, and they were seldom merry, and they were rarely gay The wet, woolen air is over

Munich, it is over Paris, it is over Rouen and Madame Bovary, it soaks into England, it gets into boiled mutton and the Brussels sprouts, it gets into Hammersmith on Sunday, it broods over Bloomsbury and the private hotels and the British Museum, it soaks into the land of Europe and keeps the grass green

Where can you match the mighty music of their names? — The Monon-

 the Rappahannock, the Delaware, the Penobscot, the Wabash, the Chesape-peake, the Swannanoa, the Indian River, the Niagara (Sweet Afton!),
 the Saint Lawrence, the Susquehanna,
 the Tombigbee, the Nantahala, the French Broad, the Chattahoochee, the Arizona, and the Potomac (Father Tiber!) — these are a few of their princely names, these are a few of their great, proud, glittering names, fit for the immense and lonely land that they inhabit

Oh, Tiber! Father Tiber! You'd only be a suckling in that mighty land!
 And as for you, sweet Thames, flow gently till I end my song flow gently, gentle Thames, be well-behaved, sweet Thames, speak softly and politely, little Thames, flow gently till I end my

It is Europeans, for the most part,
 who have constructed these great ships,
 but without America they have no meaning These ships are alive with the supreme ecstasy of the modern world, which is the voyage to America There is no other experience that is remotely comparable to it, in its sense of joy,
 its exultancy, its drunken and magnificent hope which, against reason and knowledge, soars into a heaven of fabulous conviction, which believes in the miracle and sees it invariably achieved

In this soft, this somewhat languid air, the ship glowed like an immense and brilliant jewel. All of her lights were on, they burned row by row straight across her 900 feet of length, with the small, hard twinkle of cut gems it was as if the vast, black cliff of her hull, which strangely suggested the glittering night-time cliff of the fabulous city that was her destination, had been sown with diamonds

Of Time and the River Book VIII

Out of one darkness the travellers have come to be taken into another,
but for a moment one sees their faces,
awful and still, all uplifted towards the ship This is all their words have vanished, all memory of the movements
they made then has also vanished one remembers only their silence and their still faces lifted in the phantasmal light of lost time, one sees them ever, still and silent, as they slide from darkness
on the river of time, one sees them waiting at the ship's great side, all silent and all damned to die, with their grave, white faces lifted in a single supplication to the ship, and towards the silent row of passengers along the deck,
who for a moment return their gaze
with the same grave and tranquil stare That silent meeting is a summary of all the meetings of men's lives.

A tree whose girth will prove its age
Is ample for a want ad page

A tree with grace toward heaven rising,

Oppression's passion, a full organ swell
Through our throats welling wild

And hunger haunted with a million

Make us a wind to shake the world!

The Magnetic Mountain 31

Spring through death's iron guard
Her million blades shall thrust,
Love that was sleeping, not extinct,
Throw off the nightmare crust.

Eyes, though not ours, shall see
Sky-high a signal flame,
The sun returned to power above
A world, but not the same

The Georgian poets, a sadly pedestrian rabble, flocked along the roads their fathers had built, pointing out to each other the beauty spots and ostentatiously drinking small-beer in a desperate effort to prove their virility. The winds blew, the floods came for a moment a few of them showed on the crest of the seventh great wave, then they were rolled under and nothing marks their graves. One only rode the whirlwind. Wilfrid Owen, killed on the Sambre canal, spoke above the barrage and the gas-cloud, saying to us, 'The poetry is in the pity' When it was all over, it was left to an American, T. S. Eliot, to pick up some of the fragments of civilization, place them end to end, and on that crazy pavement walk precariously through the waste land.

Begging the question

This is a common logical fallacy, petitio principii, and the first explanation of the phrase is to be found in Aristotle's Topica, VIII, 13, where the five ways of begging the question are set forth. The earliest English work in which the expression is found is The Arte of Logike plainlie set forth in our English Tongue, &c [1584]

Bitter end

This phrase is somewhat ambiguous as now used. The older form, "better end," was used to designate a crisis, or a moment of extremity. When in a gale a vessel has paid out all her cable, her cable has run out to the "better end," — the end which is secured within the vessel and little used. Robinson Crusoe, in describing the terrible storm in Yarmouth Roads, says "We rode with two anchors ahead, and the cables veered out to the better end." CHAUCER, Canterbury Tales, The Squerres Tale, Line 224, says "They demen gladly to the badder ende," Skeat's glossary giving "worse" as the definition for "badder."

Cockles of the heart

R. G. Latham [1812-1888], English philologist, wrote that the most probable explanation of the phrase lies (1) in the likeness of the heart to a cockleshell, — the base of the former being compared to the hinge of the latter, (2) in the zoological name for the cockle and its congeners, Cardium (heart). A contemporary explanation [1936] is the comparison of the cockle, or fire chamber, of the furnace with the chambers (ventricles and auricles) of the heart, hence, to warm the cockles of the heart. See Cervantes, page 1039.

N. Y. Authorship uncertain, perhaps the late WALTER GILLISS

O measure of Time! Thou merest mite
Within the endless providence of God
May thy unerring finger ever point

Consistency, thou art a jewel

A popular saying, like "Be good, and you will be happy," or "Virtue is its own reward," that, like Topsy, just "grewed." From the earliest times it has been the popular tendency to call this or that cardinal virtue, or bright and shining excellence, a jewel, by way of emphasis. For example, Iago says

"Good name, in man or woman, dear my lord,

Is the immediate jewel of their souls"

Shakespeare elsewhere calls experience a "jewel." Miranda says her modesty is the "jewel" in her dower, and in All's Well that Ends Well, Diana terms her chastity the "jewel" of her house — R. A. WIGHT

O discretion, thou art a jewel! —
The Skylark, a Collection of Well-chosen Songs [London, 1772]

Dead as Chelsea

To get Chelsea, to obtain the benefit of that hospital (for old soldiers) "Dead as Chelsea, by God!" an exclamation uttered by a grenadier at Fontenoy, 1745, on having his leg carried away by a cannon-ball — Dictionary of the Vulgar Tongue, quoted by BRADY in Varieties of Literature [1826]

Dirty work at the crossroads

Notes and Queries (London) attributes this to WALTER MELVILLE's melodrama The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, or No Wedding Bells for Him

Don't sell America short

Gentle craft.

According to John Brady [died 1814], in Clavis Calendaria [1812], this designation arose from the fact that in an old romance, a prince named Crispin is made to exercise, in honour of his namesake, Saint Crispin, the trade of shoemaking There is a tradition that King Edward IV, in one of his disguises, once drank with a party of shoemakers, and pledged them The story is alluded to in the old play of George a-Greene [1599]

Marry, because you have drank with the King,

And the King hath so graciously pledged you,

You shall no more be called shoemakers,

But you and yours, to the world's end,
Shall be called the trade of the gentle craft

The goose hangs high

Originally, perhaps, "the goose honks high,"—it cries and flies high Wild geese fly higher when the weather is fine or promises to be fine Hence, the prospects are bright, everything is favourable — Century Dictionary

Another explanation is that in some parts of the country a goose is hung high to season, and denotes that a feast of roast goose will soon be ready

Roland for an Oliver

These were the two most famous of Charlemagne's paladins, and their exploits are rendered so ridiculously and equally extravagant by the old romancers, that from them arose the saying, to signify matching one incredible lie with another, giving tit for tat, as good as one receives In King Henry VI, Part I, Act I, Sc 2, Line 30, SHAKESPEARE says [in 1589]

THE NEW ENGLAND PRIMER<sup>1</sup>

In Adam's fall

We sinned all

My Book and Heart

Must never part

Young Obadiah,
David, Josias,—
All were pious

Peter denyed
His Lord, and cryed

Young Timothy
Learnt sin to fly.

Xerxes did die,
And so must I.

Zaccheus he Did climb the tree
Our Lord to see

Our days begin with trouble here,
Our life is but a span,
And cruel death is always near,
So frail a thing is man.

Now I lay me down to take my sleep,<sup>2</sup>
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take

His wife, with nine small children and one at the breast, following him to the stake

Martyrdom of John Rogers, Burned at Smithfield, Febru- ary 14, 1554<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> As early as 1691, Benjamin Harris, of Boston, advertised as in press the second impression of the New England Primer The oldest copy known to be extant is dated 1737

<sup>2</sup> The first record of this prayer is found in the Enchiridion Leonis [A D 1160] In the earliest edition of the Primer, the prayer is given as above, which is copied from the reprint of 1777 In the edition of 1784 it is altered to read, "Now I lay me down to sleep" In the edition of 1814, the second line of the prayer reads, "I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep"

EPITAPHS

A house she hath, 'tis made of such good fashion,
The tenant ne'er shall pay for reparation,
Nor will the landlord ever raise her rent
Or turn her out of doors for non-payment,
From chimney-tax this cell is free,
To such a house who would not tenant
be?

JUNIUS

One precedent creates another They soon accumulate and constitute law What yesterday was fact, to-day is doctrine

The Letters of Junius<sup>1</sup> Dedication to the English Nation

The liberty of the press is the Palladium of all the civil, political, and religious rights of an Englishman.

Ibid

These are the gloomy companions of a disturbed imagination, the melancholy madness of poetry, without the inspiration<sup>2</sup>

Ibid VII, To Sir William Draper
[March 3, 1769]

There are some hereditary strokes of character by which a family may be as clearly distinguished as by the blackest features of the human face

Ibid XII, To the Duke of Grafton [May 30, 1769]

I do not give you to posterity as a pattern to imitate, but as an example to deter

Ibid

I believe there is yet a spirit of resistance in this country, which will not submit to be oppressed, but I am sure there is a fund of good sense in this country, which cannot be deceived

Ibid XVI, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser (H S Woodfall) [July 19, 1769]

We owe it to our ancestors to preserve entire those rights, which they have delivered to our care we owe it to

our posterity, not to suffer their dearest inheritance to be destroyed

The Letters of Junius XX, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [August 8, 1769]

When the constitution is openly invaded, when the first original right of the people, from which all laws derive their authority, is directly attacked, inferior grievances naturally lose their force, and are suffered to pass by without punishment or observation

Ibid XXX, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [October 17, 1769]

There is a moment of difficulty and danger at which flattery and falsehood can no longer deceive, and simplicity itself can no longer be misled

Ibid XXXV, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [December 19, 1769]

They [the Americans] equally detest the pageantry of a King, and the supercilious hypocrisy of a bishop<sup>2</sup>

Ibid

The least considerable man among us has an interest equal to the proudest nobleman, in the laws and constitution of his country, and is equally called upon to make a generous contribution in support of them, — whether it be the heart to conceive, the understanding to direct, or the hand to execute<sup>3</sup>

Ibid XXXVII, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [March 19, 1770]

<sup>1</sup> This letter is of great significance in the history of the liberty of the press The publisher was prosecuted for seditious libel, and the jury brought in a verdict of "guilty of printing and publishing only" After a second trial, Woodfall was freed on the payment of costs

We lament the mistakes of a good man, and do not begin to detest him until he affects to renounce his principles

*The Letters of Junius XLI,
To Lord Mansfield [November 14, 1770]*

The injustice to an individual is sometimes of service to the public Facts are apt to alarm us more than the most dangerous principles

Ibid

An honest man, like the true religion, appeals to the understanding, or modestly confides in the internal evidence of his conscience The impostor employs force instead of argument, imposes silence where he cannot convince, and propagates his character by the sword

Ibid

Private credit is wealth, — public honour is security — The feather that adorns the royal bird, supports his flight Strip him of his plumage, and you fix him to the earth

Ibid XLII, On the Falkland Islands [January 30, 1771]

If individuals have no virtues, their vices may be of use to us

Ibid LIX, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [October 5, 1771]

The temple of fame is the shortest passage to riches and preferment

Ibid

Love not me for comely grace,
For my pleasing eye or face,
Nor for any outward part,
No, nor for a constant heart

<sup>2</sup> In the autograph album of David Krieg, in the British Museum, with the autograph of Jacob Bobart [Dec 8, 1697] are the lines

Virtus sui gloria

Think that day lost whose descending sun
Views from thy hand no noble action done
Bobart, son of a celebrated botanist, died in 1719

Ev'ry endeavour engineers essay,
For fame, for freedom, fight, fierce furious fray

Gen'ral's 'gainst gen'ral's grapple, — gracious God!

How honors Heav'n heroic hardihood!
Infuriate, indiscriminate in ill,
Just Jesus, instant innocence instill!
Kinsmen kill kinsmen, kindred kindred kill.

Labour low levels longest, loftiest lines,
Men march 'midst mounds, moats,
mountains, murd'rous mines
Now noisy, noxious numbers notice
nought,

Of outward obstacles o'ercoming ought,
Poor patriots perish, persecution's pest!
Quite quiet Quakers "Quarter, quarter"
quest,

Reason returns, religion, right, re-
dounds,

Suwarrow stop such sanguinary sounds!
Truce to thee, Turkey, terror to thy train!

Unwise, unjust, unmerciful Ukraine!
Vanish vile vengeance, vanish victory vain!

Why wish we warfare? wherefore welcome won

Xerxes, Xantippus, Xavier, Xenophon?
Yield, ye young Yaghier yeomen, yield your yell!

Zimmerman's, Zoroaster's, Zeno's zeal
Again attract, arts against arms appeal
All, all ambitious aims, avault, away!
Et cætera, et cætera, et cætera.

Belgrade a Rondeau*<sup>1</sup>

When shall we three meet again?<sup>2</sup>

Parting Friends [Dartmouth College song, 1830]

In The Trifler, 1817 The lines have been attributed to the Reverend B Poulton, of Winchester, England, and to Alaric Alexander Watts [1797-1864]. They were included in Bentley's Miscellany [1838], and in Literary Privileges, compiled by William Dobson [1820-1884]. There are various versions of the Alliteration

The cunning seldom gain their ends,
The wise are never without friends

The Fox and the Hen Moral<sup>1</sup>

And feel that swelling of the heart
You ne'er can feel again?

We charged upon a flock of geese
And put them all to flight

Ibid Stanza 3

Oh, the praties they are small —
Over here, over here

Oh, the praties they are small
When we dig 'em in the fall,
And we eat 'em, coats and all,

Full of fear, full of fear

Irish Famine Song [1846-1847]

Oh, potatoes they grow small,
In Kansas

Oh, potatoes they grow small,
For they plant them in the fall,
And they eat 'em skins and all,

In Kansas

Listen to the Exhortation of the Dawn!
Look to this Day!

For it is Life, the very Life of Life
In its brief course lie all the Verities and Realities of your Existence

The Bliss of Growth,
The Glory of Action,
The Splendor of Beauty
For Yesterday is but a Dream,
And To-morrow is only a Vision,
But To-day well-lived makes every Yesterday a Dream of Happiness,
And every To-morrow a Vision of Hope
Look well therefore to this Day!
Such is the Salutation of the Dawn

The Salutation of the Dawn, from the Sanskrit

The woman was not taken
From Adam's head, you know,
So she must not command him,
'Tis evidently so,

The woman was not taken
From Adam's feet, you see,
So he must not abuse her —
The meaning seems to be
The woman she was taken From under Adam's arm,
Which shows he must protect her
From injury and harm

King Arthur had three sons — that he had,

He had three sons of yore,
And he kicked them out the door
Because they could not sing — that he did

King Arthur English Folksong 1

In good old Colony times

When we lived under the King,

Three roguish chaps

Fell into mishaps

Because they could not sing

Reuben and Rachel 2 Stanza 1

Mankind looks forth with careful glance,

Time steady plies the oar,

While old age calmly waits to hear

The keel upon the shore.

*Life Voyage (on an engraving by F T Stuart from a painting
by Clarence M Dobell)*

There is never a daughter of earth but once, ere the tale of her days is done,

She will know the scent of the Eden
rose, just once beneath the sun!

And whatever else she may win or lose,
endure, or do, or dare,

She will never forget the enchantment
it gave to the common air,

For the world may give her content or joy, fame, sorrow, or sacrifice,

But the hour that brought the scent of the rose, she lived it in Paradise

I loathe, abhor, despise,
 Abominate dried apple pies
 I like good bread, I like good meat,
 Or anything that's fit to eat,
 But of all poor grub beneath the skies,
 The poorest is dried apple pies
 Give me the toothache or sore eyes
 In preference to such kind of pies

There's a place that is better than this,
 Robin Ruff,

And I hope in my heart you'll go
 there,

Where the poor man's as great though
 he hath no estate,

Aye, as if he'd a thousand a year

Nothing Like Leather

The sweetest lives are those to duty
 wed,

Whose deeds, both great and small,
 Are close-knit strands of an unbroken

thread,

Where love ennobles all

The world may sound no trumpet, ring
 no bells,

The book of life the shining record tells.

*Attributed to Elizabeth Barrett
 Browning, but not found in her

The little cares that fretted me,

I lost them yesterday,

Among the fields above the sea,

Among the winds at play,

Among the lowing of the herds,

The rustling of the trees,

Among the singing of the birds,

The humming of the bees

The foolish fears of what might pass

I cast them all away

Among the clover-scented grass,

Among the new-mown hay,

Among the hushing of the corn

Where drowsy poppies nod,

Where ill thoughts die and good are born —

Out in the fields with God

I would far rather be ignorant than wise in the foreboding of evil. <sup>3</sup>

Suppliants <sup>4</sup> Nauck's Edition,

No 453

"Honour thy father and thy mother" stands written among the three laws of most revered righteousness <sup>5</sup>

Ibid No 707

<sup>2</sup> According to legend, Ibycus was murdered
at sea, and his murderers were discovered through cranes that followed the ship. Hence, the "cranes of Ibycus" became a proverb for the agency of the gods in revealing crime

<sup>5</sup> The three great laws ascribed to Triptolemus are referred to, — namely, to honour parents, to worship the gods with the fruits of the earth, to hurt no living creature. The first two laws are also ascribed to the centaur Cheiron

HERODOTUS

[484-424 B C]

Translation by William Beloe

[1756-1817]

Call no man happy till you know the nature of his death, he is at best but fortunate<sup>1</sup>

Book I, Cho Chap 32

They [the Persians] are accustomed to deliberate on matters of the highest moment when warm with wine, but whatever they in this situation may determine is again proposed to them on the morrow, in their cooler moments, by the person in whose house they had before assembled. If at this time also it meet their approbation, it is executed, otherwise it is rejected. Whatever also they discuss when sober, is always a second time examined after they have been drinking.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid Chap 133

They joined battle, and the Phœacians won, yet it was but a Cadmean victory.<sup>3</sup>

Ibid Chap 166

The art of medicine in Egypt is thus exercised: one physician is confined to the study and management of one disease, there are of course a great number who practice this art, some attend

as a saying which everybody repeats, but nobody knows where to find

<sup>2</sup> The ancient Goths of Germany had all of them a wise custom of debating every thing of importance to their state, twice, that is, — once drunk, and once sober — Drunk — that their councils might not want vigour, and sober — that they might not want discretion — STERNE Tristram Shandy, Book V, Chap 17

Appeal from Philip drunk to Philip sober — VALERIUS MAXIMUS Book VI, Chap 2

<sup>3</sup> A Cadmean (or a Pyrrhic) victory was one in which the victors suffered as much as their enemies "One more such victory," said Pyrrhus, "and I am lost" to the disorders of the eyes, others to those of the head, some take care of the teeth, others are conversant with all diseases of the bowels, whilst many attend to the cure of maladies which are less conspicuous

Book II, Euterpe Chap 84

They, who mutually injure the state, mutually support each other

Book III, Thalia Chap 82

You may have observed how the thunderbolt of Heaven chastises the insolence of the more enormous animals, whilst it passes over without injury the weak and insignificant before these weapons of the gods you must have seen how the proudest palaces and the loftiest trees fall and perish.<sup>1</sup>

Book VII, Polymnia Chap. 10

Every measure undertaken with temerity is liable to be perplexed with error, and punished by misfortune

Ibid

The Persian messengers travel with a velocity which nothing human can equal. Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor darkness, are permitted to obstruct their speed.<sup>2</sup>

Book VIII, Urania Chap 98

Nothing in human life is more to be lamented, than that a wise man should have so little influence

titude, our form of government is called a democracy Wherein there is not only an equality amongst all men in point of law for their private controversies, but in election to public offices we consider neither class nor rank, but each man is preferred according to his virtue or to the esteem in which he is held for some special excellence nor is any one put back even through poverty, because of the obscurity of his person, so long as he can do good service to the commonwealth.

History Book II, Chap 37, Pericles' Funeral Oration over the Athenians who fell in the first year of the Peloponnesian War

And when Athens shall appear great to you, consider then that her glories were purchased by valiant men, and by men that learned their duty, by men that were sensible of dishonour when they came to act; by such men as, though they failed in their attempt, yet would not be wanting to the city with their virtue, but made unto it a most honourable contribution

SOCRATES

[470-399 B C]

Translation by BENJAMIN JOWETT

Either death is a state of nothingness and utter unconsciousness, or, as men say, there is a change and migration of the soul from this world to another

Apology

No evil can happen to a good man, either in life or after death.

Ibid

Man is a prisoner who has no right to open the door of his prison and run away A man should wait, and not take his own life until God summons him.

Dialogues of PLATO Phaedo

The partisan, when he is engaged in a dispute, cares nothing about the rights of the question, but is anxious only to convince his hearers of his own assertions

Ibid.

False words are not only evil in themselves, but they infect the soul with evil.

Ibid.

The soul takes nothing with her to the other world but her education and culture, and these, it is said, are of the greatest service or of the greatest injury to the dead man, at the very beginning of his journey thither

Translation by WILLIAM HENRY RICH JONES [1817-1885]

I swear by Apollo Physician, by Asclepius, by Health, by Panacea, and by all the gods and goddesses, making them my witnesses, that I will carry out, according to my ability and judgment, this oath and this indenture To hold my teacher in this art equal to my own parents, to make him partner in my livelihood; when he is in need of money to share mine with him, to consider his family as my own brothers, and to teach them this art, if they want to learn it, without fee or indenture I will use treatment to help the sick according to my ability and judgment, but never with a view to injury and wrong doing I will keep pure and holy both my life and my art In whatsoever houses I enter, I will enter to help the sick, and I will abstain from all intentional wrong-doing and harm. And whatsoever I shall see or hear in the course of my profession in my intercourse with men, if it be what should not be published abroad, I will never divulge, holding such things to be holy secrets Now if I carry out this oath, and break it not, may I gain forever reputation among all men for my life and for my art, but if I transgress it and forswear myself, may the opposite befall me

The Physician's Oath

Healing is a matter of time, but it is sometimes also a matter of opportunity

Precepts Chap 1

Sometimes give your services for nothing, calling to mind a previous benefaction or present satisfaction And if there be an opportunity of serving one who is a stranger in financial straits, give full assistance to all such For where there is love of man, there is also love of the art For some patients, though conscious that their condition is perilous, recover their health simply through their contentment with the goodness of the physician And it is well to superintend the sick to make them well, to care for the healthy to keep them well, but also to care for one's own self, so as to observe what is seemly

Precepts Chap 6

In all abundance there is lack

Ibid. Chap 8

If for the sake of a crowded audience you do wish to hold a lecture, your ambition is no laudable one, and at least avoid all citations from the poets, for to quote them argues feeble industry

Ibid Chap 12

Life is short and the art long<sup>1</sup>

Aphorisms Sect I, 1

Extreme remedies are very appropriate for extreme diseases<sup>2</sup>

Ibid 6

PLATO

[427-347 B C]

Translation by BENJAMIN JOWETT
Oxford University Press

He who is of a calm and happy nature will hardly feel the pressure of age, but to him who is of an opposite disposition
youth and age are equally a burden

The Republic Book I, 329-D

No physician, in so far as he is a physician, considers his own good in what he prescribes, but the good of his patient, for the true physician is also a ruler having the human body as a subject, and is not a mere money-maker

Ibid 342-D

When there is an income-tax, the just man will pay more and the unjust less on the same amount of income

Ibid 343-D

Mankind censure injustice, fearing that they may be the victims of it and not because they shrink from committing it

Ibid 344-C

The days that are no more
TENNYSON The Princess Tears, Idle Tears

The beginning is the most important part of the work

The Republic Book II, 377-B

A fit of laughter which has been indulged to excess almost always produces a violent reaction

Ibid Book III, 388-E

Beauty of style and harmony and grace and good rhythm depend on simplicity

Ibid 400-D

Musical training is a more potent instrument than any other, because rhythm and harmony find their way into the inward places of the soul

Ibid 401-D

Gymnastic as well as music should begin in early years

Ibid 403-C

They do certainly give very strange and new-fangled names to diseases.

Ibid 405-C

The judge should not be young, he should have learned to know evil, not from his own soul, but from late and long observation of the nature of evil in others knowledge should be his guide, not personal experience

Ibid 409-B

Everything that deceives may be said
to enchant

Ibid 413-C

Under the influence either of poverty or of wealth, workmen and their work are equally liable to degenerate

Ibid Book IV, 421-E

Wealth is the parent of luxury and indolence, and poverty of meanness and viciousness, and both of discontent

Ibid 422

The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life.

Ibid 425-B

What is the prime of life? May it not be defined as a period of about twenty years in a woman's life, and thirty in a man's?

Ibid Book V, 460-E

Let there be one man who has a city obedient to his will, and he might bring into existence the ideal polity about which the world is so incredulous

The Republic Book V, 502-B

Astronomy compels the soul to look upwards and leads us from this world to another

Ibid Book VII, 529

I have hardly ever known a mathematician who was capable of reasoning

Ibid. 531-E

Solon was under a delusion when he said that a man when he grows old may learn many things — for he can no more learn much than he can run much, youth is the time for any extraordinary toil

Ibid 536-D

Bodily exercise, when compulsory, does no harm to the body, but knowledge which is acquired under compulsion obtains no hold on the mind.

Ibid 536-E

Let early education be a sort of amusement, you will then be better able to find out the natural bent

Ibid 537

The character of the son begins to develop when he hears his mother complaining that her husband has no place in the government, of which the consequence is that she has no precedence among other women

Ibid Book VIII, 549-C

Oligarchy A government resting on a valuation of property, in which the rich have power and the poor man is deprived of it

Ibid. 550-C

Democracy, which is a charming form of government, full of variety and disorder, and dispensing a sort of equality to equals and unequals alike<sup>1</sup>

Ibid 558-C

The people have always some champion whom they set over them and nurse into greatness. . . This and no other is the root from which a tyrant springs, when he first appears he is a protector

Ibid. 565-C

In the early days of his power, he is full of smiles, and he salutes every one whom he meets

The Republic Book VIII, 566-D

When the tyrant has disposed of foreign enemies by conquest or treaty, and there is nothing to fear from them, then he is always stirring up some war or other, in order that the people may require a leader.

Ibid 566-E

Has he not also another object which is that they may be impoverished by payment of taxes, and thus compelled to devote themselves to their daily wants and therefore less likely to conspire against him?

Ibid 567

What a poor appearance the tales of poets make when stripped of the colours which music puts upon them, and recited in simple prose.

Ibid Book X, 601-B

There are three arts which are concerned with all things one which uses, another which makes, a third which imitates them

Ibid 601-D

No human thing is of serious importance

Ibid

The soul of man is immortal and imperishable

Ibid 608-D

These are the Fates, daughters of Necessity Lachesis singing of the past, Clotho of the present, Atropos of the future

Ibid 617-C

You are young, my son, and, as the years go by, time will change and even reverse many of your present opinions Refrain therefore awhile from setting yourself up as a judge of the highest matters<sup>1</sup>

Laws 888

<sup>1</sup> I could never divide myself from any man upon the difference of an opinion, or be angry with his judgment for not agreeing with me in that from which perhaps within a few days I should dissent myself — SIR THOMAS BROWNE Religio Medici (Everyman ed.), P 7

And this which you deem of no moment is the very highest of all that is whether you have a right idea of the gods, whereby you may live your life well or ill

Laws. 888

Not one of them who took up in his youth with this opinion that there are no gods, ever continued until old age faithful to his conviction

Ibid

ZEUXIS

[Circa 400 B C]

Criticism comes easier than craftsmanship

Quoted by PLINY in Natural History

ARISTOTLE

[384-322 B C]

Poverty is the parent of revolution and crime

Politics<sup>1</sup> Book II

Even when laws have been written down, they ought not always to remain unaltered

Ibid

- The law has no power to command obedience except that of habit, which can only be given by time, so that a readiness to change from old to new laws enfeebles the power of the law

Ibid

That judges of important causes should hold office for life is not a good thing, for the mind grows old as well as the body

Ibid

If liberty and equality, as is thought by some, are chiefly to be found in democracy, they will be best attained when all persons alike share in the government to the utmost<sup>2</sup>

Ibid Book IV

The best political community is formed by citizens of the middle class. Those States are likely to be well administered in which the middle class is large, and larger if possible than both the other classes, or at any rate than either singly; for the addition of the middle class turns the scale and prevents either of the extremes from being dominant

Politics Book IV

Inferiors revolt in order that they may be equal, and equals that they may be superior. Such is the state of mind which creates revolutions

Ibid Book V

Revolutions break out when opposite parties, the rich and the poor, are equally balanced, and there is little or nothing between them, for, if either party were manifestly superior, the other would not risk an attack upon them

Ibid

All admit that in a certain sense the several kinds of character are bestowed by nature. Justice, a tendency to Temperance, Courage, and the other types of character are exhibited from the moment of birth

Nicomachean Ethics VI, 13, 1

In practical matters the end is not mere speculative knowledge of what is to be done, but rather the doing of it. It is not enough to know about Virtue, then, but we must endeavour to possess it, and to use it, or to take any other steps that may make us good

Ibid X, 9, 1

The generality of men are naturally apt to be swayed by fear rather than by reverence, and to refrain from evil rather because of the punishment that it brings, than because of its own foulness.

Ibid

What makes men good is held by some to be nature, by others habit or training, by others instruction. As for the goodness that comes by nature, this is plainly not within our control, but is bestowed by some divine agency on certain people who truly deserve to be called fortunate.

MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO

[106-43 B C]

For as lack of adornment is said to become some women, so this subtle oration, though without embellishment, gives delight <sup>4</sup>

De Oratore. 78

Thus in the beginning the world was so made that certain signs come before certain events <sup>5</sup>

De Divinatione I, 118

He is never less at leisure than when at leisure <sup>6</sup>

De Officiis IX, 10

What a time! What a civilization! <sup>7</sup>

Catiline I, 1

For how many things, which for our own sake we should never do, do we perform for the sake of our friends

De Amicitia 8 XVI

Nothing can be more disgraceful than to be at war with him with whom you have lived on terms of friendship

De Amicitia XXI

He removes the greatest ornament of friendship, who takes away from it respect

Ibid XXII

There is no greater bane to friendship than adulation, fawning, and flattery

Ibid XXV

Crimes are not to be measured by the issue of events, but from the bad intentions of men

Paradox III

There is no place more delightful than home

Epistolae IV, 8

While the sick man has life there is hope<sup>1</sup>

Ibid IX, 10

For as I like a young man in whom there is something of the old, so I like an old man in whom there is something of the young, and he who follows this maxim, in body will possibly be an old man, but he will never be an old man in mind

De Senectute<sup>2</sup> XI

Old age is by nature rather talkative

Ibid XVI

Old age, especially an honored old age, has so great authority, that this is of more value than all the pleasures of youth

Ibid XVII

Intelligence, and reflection, and judgment, reside in old men, and if there had been none of them, no states could exist at all

Ibid XIX

The short period of life is long enough for living well and honourably<sup>3</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Life is amply long for him who orders it properly — SENECA On the Shortness of Life, 1, 4

The harvest of old age is the recollection and abundance of blessings previously secured

De Senectute XIX

Nor, in truth, would the honours of illustrious men continue after death, if their own spirits did not make us preserve a longer remembrance of them

Ibid XXII

Old age is the consummation of life, just as of a play

[A D 23-79]

With some alterations, from translations by JOHN BOSTOCK, M.D [1773-1846] and HENRY THOMAS RILEY [1816-1878] Bohn Classical Library

In comparing various authors with one another, I have discovered that some of the gravest and latest writers have transcribed, word for word, from former works, without making acknowledgment

Natural History Book I, Dedication, Sect 22

The world, and whatever that be which we call the heavens, by the vault of which all things are enclosed, we must conceive to be a deity, to be eternal, without bounds, neither created nor subject at any time to destruction. To inquire what is beyond it is no concern of man, nor can the human mind form any conjecture concerning it.

Ibid Book II, Sect 1

It is ridiculous to suppose that the great head of things, whatever it be, pays any regard to human affairs

Everything is soothed by oil, and this is the reason why divers send out small quantities of it from their mouths, because it smooths every part which is rough<sup>2</sup>

Ibid Sect 234

No more a mother, but a step-dame rather
GUILLAUME DE SALLUSTE DU BARTAS [1544-1590] Divine Weekes and Workes, First Weeke, Third Day

<sup>2</sup> He is born naked, and falls a-whining at the first — BURTON Anatomy of Melancholy, Part I, Sect 2, Memb 3, Subsect 10

And when I was born, I drew in the common air, and fell upon the earth, which is of like nature, and the first voice which I uttered was crying, as all others do — The Wisdom of Solomon, VII, 3

It was the custom among the ancients to place the new-born child upon the ground immediately after its birth

<sup>3</sup> This term of forty days is mentioned by ARISTOTLE in his Natural History, as also by some modern physiologists

With man, most of his misfortunes are occasioned by man <sup>1</sup>

*Natural History Book VII,
Sect 5*

Indeed, what is there that does not appear marvellous when it comes to our knowledge for the first time? <sup>2</sup> How many things, too, are looked upon as quite impossible until they have been actually effected? <sup>3</sup>

Ibid Sect 6

The human features and countenance, although composed of but some ten parts or little more, are so fashioned that among so many thousands of men there are no two in existence who cannot be distinguished from one another <sup>3</sup>

Ibid Sect 8

All men possess in their bodies a poison which acts upon serpents, and the human saliva, it is said, makes them take to flight, as though they had been touched with boiling water. The same substance, it is said, destroys them the moment it enters their throat <sup>4</sup>

Ibid Sect 15

It has been observed that the height of a man from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot is equal to the distance between the tips of the middle fingers of the two hands when extended in a straight line

He having enticed one of them from his hiding-place, caught it in one hand, just below the jaw-bone, in such a manner as to oblige the mouth to open when spitting into it, the effect was like magic: the reptile appeared struck with instant death — Memoirs, Vol I, Chap 59

<sup>5</sup> This is alluded to by CICERO in his letters to Atticus, and is mentioned by AELIAN (Amated Nature, Book VI, Chap 41). Compare the modern proverb, "Rats desert a sinking ship"

Bears when first born are shapeless masses of white flesh a little larger than mice, their claws alone being prominent. The mother then licks them gradually into proper shape.<sup>1</sup>

*Natural History Book VIII,
Sect 126*

It has become quite a common proverb that in wine there is truth.

Ibid Book XIV, Sect 141

Cincinnatus was ploughing his four jugera of land upon the Vaticanian Hill, — the same that are still known as the Quintian Meadows, — when the messenger brought him the dictatorship, finding him, the tradition says, stripped to the work.

Ibid Book XVIII, Sect 20

The agricultural population, says Cato, produces the bravest men, the most valiant soldiers, and a class of citizens the least given of all to evil designs.

Ibid Sect 26

Why is it that we entertain the belief that for every purpose odd numbers are the most effectual?<sup>2</sup>

Ibid Book XXVIII, Sect. 23

It was a custom with Apelles, to which he most tenaciously adhered, never to let any day pass, however busy he might be, without exercising himself by tracing some outline or other, — a practice which has now passed into a proverb.<sup>3</sup> It was also a practice with him, when he had completed a work, to exhibit it to the view of the passers-by in his studio, while he himself, con-

MARCUS AURELIUS ANTONINUS

[A D 121-180]

*Translation by MORRIS HICKEY
MORGAN [1859-1910]*

This Being of mine, whatever it really is, consists of a little flesh, a little breath, and the part which governs

Meditations II, 2

The ways of the gods are full of providence

Ibid 3

Thou wilt find rest from vain fancies if thou doest every act in life as though it were thy last. <sup>1</sup>

Ibid 5

Find time still to be learning somewhat good, and give up being desultory

Ibid 7

No state sornier than that of the man who keeps up a continual round, and pries into "the secrets of the nether world," as saith the poet, and is curious in conjecture of what is in his neighbour's heart

Ibid 13

Though thou be destined to live three thousand years and as many myriads besides, yet remember that no man loseth other life than that which he liveth, nor liveth other than that which he loseth

Ibid 14

For a man can lose neither the past nor the future, for how can one take from him that which is not his? So remember these two points first, that each thing is of like form from everlasting and comes round again in its cycle, and that it signifies not whether a man shall look upon the same things for a hundred years or two hundred, or for an infinity of time, second, that the longest lived and the shortest lived man, when they come to die, lose one and the same thing

As for life, it is a battle and a sojourning in a strange land, but the fame that comes after is oblivion

Meditations II, 17

Waste not the remnant of thy life in those imaginations touching other folk, whereby thou contributest not to the common weal.

Ibid III, 4

A man should be upright, not be kept upright

Ibid 5

Never esteem anything as of advantage to thee that shall make thee break thy word or lose thy self-respect

Ibid 7

Let no act be done at haphazard, nor otherwise than according to the finished rules that govern its kind

Ibid IV, 2

By a tranquil mind I mean nothing else than a mind well ordered

Ibid 3

Think on this doctrine, — that reasoning beings were created for one another's sake; that to be patient is a branch of justice, and that men sin without intending it

Ibid

The universe is change, our life is what our thoughts make it

Ibid.

Nothing can come out of nothing,<sup>1</sup> any more than a thing can go back to nothing

Ibid 4

Death, like generation, is a secret of Nature.

Ibid 5

That which makes the man no worse than he was makes his life no worse it has no power to harm, without or within

Ibid 8

Whatever happens at all happens as it should, thou wilt find this true, if thou shouldst watch narrowly

Ibid 10

How much time he gains who does not look to see what his neighbour says

or does or thinks, but only at what he does himself, to make it just and holy

Meditations IV, 18

Whatever is in any way beautiful hath its source of beauty in itself, and is complete in itself, praise forms no part of it So it is none the worse nor the better for being praised

Ibid 20

All that is harmony for thee, O Universe, is in harmony with me as well Nothing that comes at the right time for thee is too early or too late for me Everything is fruit to me that thy seasons bring, O Nature All things come of thee, have their being in thee, and return to thee

Ibid 23

"Let thine occupations be few," saith the sage,<sup>1</sup> "if thou wouldst lead a tranquil life"

Ibid 24

Love the little trade which thou hast learned, and be content therewith

Ibid 31

Remember this, — that there is a proper dignity and proportion to be observed in the performance of every act of life

Ibid 32

All is ephemeral, — fame and the famous as well.

Ibid 35

Observe always that everything is the result of a change, and get used to thinking that there is nothing Nature loves so well as to change existing forms and to make new ones like them.

Ibid 36

Search men's governing principles, and consider the wise, what they shun and what they cleave to

Ibid 38

Time is a sort of river of passing events, and strong is its current, no sooner is a thing brought to sight than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this too will be swept away.

All that happens is as usual and familiar as the rose in spring and the crop in summer

Meditations IV, 44

That which comes after ever conforms to that which has gone before

Ibid 45

Mark how fleeting and paltry is the estate of man, — yesterday in embryo, to-morrow a mummy or ashes So for the hair's-breadth of time assigned to thee live rationally, and part with life cheerfully, as drops the ripe olive, extolling the season that bore it and the tree that matured it.

Ibid 48

Deem not life a thing of consequence For look at the yawning void of the future, and at that other limitless space, the past

Ibid 50

Always take the short cut, and that is the rational one Therefore say and do everything according to soundest reason

Ibid. 51

In the morning, when thou art sluggish at rousing thee, let this thought be present, "I am rising to a man's work"

Ibid V, 1

A man makes no noise over a good deed, but passes on to another as a vine to bear grapes again in season

Ibid 6

Nothing happens to anybody which he is not fitted by nature to bear

Ibid 18

Live with the gods

Ibid. 27

Look beneath the surface, let not the several quality of a thing nor its worth escape thee

Ibid VI, 3

The controlling Intelligence understands its own nature, and what it does, and whereon it works

Ibid 5

Do not think that what is hard for thee to master is impossible for man, but if a thing is possible and proper to man, deem it attainable by thee.

Ibid 19

If any man can convince me and bring home to me that I do not think or act aright, gladly will I change, for I search after truth, by which man never yet was harmed

Meditations VI, 21

What is not good for the swarm is not good for the bee

Ibid 54

How many, once lauded in song, are given over to the forgotten, and how many who sung their praises are clean gone long ago!

Ibid VII, 6

One Universe made up of all that is, and one God in it all, and one principle of Being, and one Law, the Reason, shared by all thinking creatures, and one Truth

Ibid 9

Let not thy mind run on what thou lackest as much as on what thou hast already

Ibid 27

Just as the sand-dunes, heaped one upon another, hide each the first, so in life the former deeds are quickly hidden by those that follow after

Ibid. 34

The art of living is more like wrestling than dancing, in so far as it stands ready against the accidental and the unforeseen, and is not apt to fall

Ibid 61

Remember this, — that very little is needed to make a happy life

Ibid 67

Remember that to change thy mind and to follow him that sets thee right, is to be none the less the free agent that thou wast before.

Ibid VIII, 16

Look to the essence of a thing, whether it be a point of doctrine, of practice, or of interpretation

Ibid 22

Be not careless in deeds, nor confused in words, nor rambling in thought

Ibid 51

Think not disdainfully of death, but look on it with favour, for even death is one of the things that Nature wills

Ibid IX, 3

A wrong-doer is often a man that has left something undone, not always he that has done something

Meditations IX, 5

Blot out vain pomp, check impulse, quench appetite, keep reason under its own control

Ibid 7

Things that have a common quality ever quickly seek their kind

Ibid 9

All things are the same, — familiar in enterprise, momentary in endurance, coarse in substance All things now are as they were in the day of those whom we have buried

Ibid 14

Everything is in a state of metamorphosis Thou thyself art in everlasting change and in corruption to correspond, so is the whole universe

Ibid 19

Forward, as occasion offers Never look round to see whether any shall note it Be satisfied with success in even the smallest matter, and think that even such a result is no trifle

Ibid 29

Whatever may befall thee, it was pre-ordained for thee from everlasting

Ibid X, 5

"The earth loveth the shower," and "the holy ether knoweth what love is" <sup>1</sup> The Universe, too, loves to create whatsoever is destined to be made

ATHENAEUS

[Circa A D 200]

Translation by CHARLES DUKE YONGE [1812-1891]

It was a saying of Demetrius Phalereus, that "Men having often abandoned what was visible for the sake of what was uncertain, have not got what they expected, and have lost what they had, — being unfortunate by an enigmatical sort of calamity"

The Deipnosophists VI, 23

Every investigation which is guided by principles of Nature fixes its ultimate aim entirely on gratifying the stomach <sup>2</sup>

Ibid VII, 11

Dorion, ridiculing the description of a tempest in the "Nautilus" of Timotheus, said that he had seen a more formidable storm in a boiling saucepan <sup>3</sup>

Ibid VIII, 19

On one occasion some one put a very little wine into a wine-cooler, and said that it was sixteen years old "It is very small for its age," said Gnathæna

Ibid XIII, 47

DIOGENES LAERTIUS <sup>4</sup>

[Circa A D 200]

From The Lives and Opinions of Eminent Philosophers, translated by CHARLES DUKE YONGE [1812-1891]. Bohn Classical Library

When Thales was asked what was difficult, he said, "To know one's self"

(I believe it because it is impossible) Also attributed to St Augustine in the form "Credo quia absurdum"

<sup>4</sup> There is scarce any Philosopher but dies twice or thrice in Laertius, nor almost any life without two or three deaths in Plutarch — SIR THOMAS BROWNE Urn-Burial, Chap 3

And what was easy, "To advise another"

Thales 9

The apophthegm "Know thyself" is his<sup>1</sup>

Ibid 13

Writers differ with respect to the apophthegms of the Seven Sages, attributing the same one to various authors

Ibid 14

Solon used to say that speech was the image of actions, that laws were like cobwebs, — for that if any trifling or powerless thing fell into them, they held it fast, while if it were something weightier, it broke through them and was off

Solon 10

Solon gave the following advice "Consider your honour, as a gentleman, of more weight than an oath"

Ibid 12

As some say, Solon was the author of the apophthegm, "Nothing in excess"

Ibid 16

Chilo advised, "not to speak evil of the dead"<sup>2</sup>

Chilo 2

Pittacus said that half was more than the whole<sup>3</sup>

Pittacus 2

Heracitus says that Pittacus, when he had got Alcaeus into his power, released him, saying, "Forgiveness is better than revenge"<sup>4</sup>

<sup>1</sup> See Pope, page 207, and Plutarch, page 1004

<sup>2</sup> 'Tis said that Attic Solon wrote at Delphi "Gnothi seauton," which in our tongue is "Know thyself" Many think this to be by Chilon the Laconian — AUSONIUS DECI-MUS MAGNUS [A.D. 310-394] The Masque of the Seven Sages, Poem 3, Chorus

<sup>5</sup> Forgiveness is better than punishment, for the one is proof of a gentle, the other of a savage nature — Quoted by EPICTETUS, Fragment 62

One of his sayings was, "Even the gods cannot strive against necessity"<sup>1</sup>

Pittacus 4

Another was, "Watch your opportunity"<sup>2</sup>

Ibid 7

Bias used to say that men ought to calculate life both as if they were fated to live a long and a short time, and that they ought to love one another as if at a future time they would come to hate one another, for that most men were bad

Bias 5

Ignorance plays the chief part among men, and the multitude of words<sup>3</sup>

Cleobulus 4

The saying, "Practice is everything," is Periander's<sup>4</sup>

Periander 6

Anarcharsis, on learning that the sides of a ship were four fingers thick, said that "the passengers were just that distance from death"<sup>5</sup>

Anarcharsis 5

It was a common saying of Myson that men ought not to investigate things from words, but words from things, for that things are not made for the sake of words, but words for things

Myson 3

Epimenides was sent by his father into the field to look for a sheep, turned out of the road at mid-day and lay down in a certain cave and fell asleep, and slept there fifty-seven years, and after that, when awake, he went on looking for the sheep, thinking that he had been taking a short nap<sup>6</sup>

Epimenides 2

<sup>5</sup> "How thick do you judge the planks of our ship to be?" "Some two good inches and upward," returned the pilot "It seems, then, we are within two fingers' breadth of damnation" — RABLAIS Book IV, Chap 23

Anaximander used to assert that the primary cause of all things was the Infinite, — not defining exactly whether he meant air or water or anything else

Anaximander 2

Anaxagoras said to a man who was grieving because he was dying in a foreign land, "The descent to Hades is the same from every place"

Anaxagoras 6

Aristophanes turns Socrates into ridicule in his comedies, as making the worse appear the better reason<sup>1</sup>

Socrates 5

Often when he was looking on at auctions he would say, "How many things there are which I do not need!"<sup>2</sup>

Ibid 10

Socrates said, "Those who want fewest things are nearest to the gods"

Ibid 11

He said that there was one only good, namely, knowledge, and one only evil, namely, ignorance

Ibid 14

He declared that he knew nothing, except the fact of his ignorance

Ibid 16

Being asked whether it was better to marry or not, he replied, "Whichever you do, you will repent it"

Ibid

Aristippus being asked what were the most necessary things for well-born boys to learn, said, "Those things which they will put in practice when they become men"

Aristippus 4

Like sending owls to Athens, as the proverb goes<sup>3</sup>

Plato 32

<sup>2</sup> Socrates once, it is said, was persuaded to go to a fair

In his one poor cloak, in his wonted way, he stood musing there,

Stood long till a friend inquired what his thoughts might be about —

"How many things there are here that I could do better without"

Plato affirmed that the soul was immortal and clothed in many bodies successively.<sup>1</sup>

Plato 40

Time is the image of eternity

Ibid 41

There is a written and an unwritten law The one by which we regulate our constitutions in our cities is the written law, that which arises from custom is the unwritten law

Ibid 51

Plato was continually saying to Xenocrates, "Sacrifice to the Graces"<sup>2</sup>

Xenocrates 3

Arcesilaus had a peculiar habit while conversing of using the expression, "My opinion is," and "So and so will not agree to this"

Arcesilaus 12

Of a rich man who was niggardly he said, "That man does not own his estate, but his estate owns him"

Bion. 3

Very late in life, when he was studying geometry, some one said to Lacydes, "Is it then a time for you to be learning now?" "If it is not," he replied, "when will it be?"

Lacydes. 5

Aristotle was once asked what those who tell lies gain by it Said he, "That when they speak truth they are not believed"

Aristotle 11

The question was put to him, what hope is, and his answer was, "The dream of a waking man"

Ibid.

He used to say that personal beauty was a better introduction than any letter, but others say that it was Diogenes who gave this description of it, while Aristotle called beauty "the gift of God", that Socrates called it "a short-lived tyranny", Theophrastus, "a silent deceit", Theocritus, "an ivory mischief"

On one occasion Aristotle was asked how much educated men were superior to those uneducated "As much," said he, "as the living are to the dead" <sup>1</sup>

Aristotle 11

It was a saying of his that education was an ornament in prosperity and a refuge in adversity

Ibid

He was once asked what a friend is, and his answer was, "One soul abiding in two bodies" <sup>2</sup>

Ibid

Asked what he gained from philosophy, he answered, "To do without being commanded what others do from fear of the laws"

Ibid

The question was once put to him, how we ought to behave to our friends; and the answer he gave was, "As we should wish our friends to behave to us"

Ibid.

He used to define justice as "a virtue of the soul distributing that which each person deserved"

Ibid

Another of his sayings was, that education was the best viaticum of old age

Ibid

It was a favourite expression of Theophrastus that time was the most valuable thing that a man could spend <sup>3</sup>

Theophrastus 10

Antisthenes used to say that envious people were devoured by their own disposition, just as iron is by rust

Antisthenes 4

When he was praised by some wicked men, he said, "I am sadly afraid that I must have done some wicked thing" <sup>4</sup>

Ibid

When asked what learning was the most necessary, he said, "Not to unlearn what you have learned"

Antisthenes 4

Diogenes would frequently praise those who were about to marry, and yet did not marry

Diogenes 4

"Bury me on my face," said Diogenes, and when he was asked why, he replied, "Because in a little while everything will be turned upside down"

Ibid 6

All things are in common among friends

Ibid

Plato having defined man to be a two-legged animal without feathers, Diogenes plucked a cock and brought it into the Academy, and said, "This is Plato's man" On which account this addition was made to the definition, — "With broad flat nails"

Ibid

A man once asked Diogenes what was the proper time for supper, and he made answer, "If you are a rich man, whenever you please, and if you are a poor man, whenever you can" <sup>1</sup>

Ibid

Diogenes lighted a candle in the daytime, and went round saying, "I am looking for a man" <sup>2</sup>

Ibid

When asked what he would take to let a man give him a blow on the head, he said, "A helmet"

Ibid

Once he saw a youth blushing, and addressed him, "Courage, my boy! that is the complexion of virtue" <sup>3</sup>

Ibid

When asked what wine he liked to drink, he replied, "That which belongs to another."

Ibid

<sup>1</sup> The rich when he is hungry, the poor when he has anything to eat — RABELAIS Book IV, Chap 64

Asked from what country he came, he replied, "I am a citizen of the world" <sup>1</sup>

Diogenes 6

When a man reproached him for going into unclean places, he said, "The sun too penetrates into privies, but is not polluted by them" <sup>2</sup>

Ibid

Diogenes said once to a person who was showing him a dial, "It is a very useful thing to save a man from being too late for supper"

Menedemus 3

When Zeno was asked what a friend was, he replied, "Another I" <sup>3</sup>

Zeno 19

They say that the first inclination which an animal has is to protect itself

Ibid 52

He calls drunkenness an expression identical with ruin.<sup>4</sup>

Pythagoras 6

Among what he called his precepts were such as these Do not stir the fire with a sword. Do not sit down on a bushel Do not devour thy heart.<sup>5</sup>

Ibid. 17

In the time of Pythagoras that proverbial phrase "Ipse dixit" <sup>6</sup> was introduced into ordinary life

Ibid 25

It takes a wise man to discover a wise man

Xenophanes 3

Protagoras asserted that there were two sides to every question, exactly opposite to each other

Protagoras 3

Nothing can be produced out of nothing <sup>7</sup>

[1712-1778]

Man is born free, and everywhere he is in irons

The Social Contract<sup>1</sup> [1762]
Book I, Chap 1

The strongest is never strong enough to be always the master, unless he transforms strength into right, and obedience into duty

Ibid Chap 3

The right of conquest has no foundation other than the right of the strongest

Ibid Chap 4

As soon as public service ceases to be the chief business of the citizens, and they would rather serve with their money than with their persons, the State is not far from its fall

Ibid. Book III, Chap 15

Good laws lead to the making of better ones; bad ones bring about worse. As soon as any man says of the affairs of the State, "What does it matter to me?" the State may be given up for lost

The Social Contract [1762]
Book III, Chap. 15

Never exceed your rights, and they will soon become unlimited

A Discourse on Political Economy

Money is the seed of money, and the first guinea is sometimes more difficult to acquire than the second million

Ibid

God makes all things good, man meddles with them and they become evil

Émile, or Education<sup>1</sup> [1762]
Book I

Medicine is all the fashion in these days, and very naturally. It is the amusement of the idle and unemployed, who do not know what to do with their time in taking care of themselves. If by ill-luck they had happened to be born immortal, they would have been the most miserable of men, a life they could not lose would be of no value to them. Such men must have doctors to threaten and flatter them, to give them the only pleasure they can enjoy, the pleasure of not being dead

Ibid

Hygiene is the only useful part of medicine, and hygiene is rather a virtue than a science. Temperance and industry are man's true remedies, work sharpens his appetite and temperance teaches him to control it

Ibid

What wisdom can you find that is greater than kindness?

Ibid Book II

The happiest is he who suffers least, the most miserable is he who enjoys least. Ever more sorrow than joy, — this is the lot of all of us.

If you mean to know yourself, interline such of these aphorisms as affect you agreeably in reading, and set a mark to such as left a sense of uneasiness with you; and then shew your copy to whom you please

Who has many wishes has generally but little will. Who has energy of will has few diverging wishes. Whose will is bent with energy on one, must renounce the wishes for many things

Say not you know another entirely, till you have divided an inheritance with him

He who, when called upon to speak a disagreeable truth, tells it boldly and has done is both bolder and milder than he who nibbles in a low voice and never ceases nibbling<sup>1</sup>

The public seldom forgive twice

Venerate four characters the sanguine, who has checked volatility and the rage for pleasure, the choleric who has subdued passion and pride, the phlegmatic emerged from indolence, and the melancholy who has dismissed avarice, suspicion and asperity.

ALPHONSE M L LAMARTINE
[1790-1869]

What is our life but a succession of preludes to that unknown song whose first solemn note is sounded by Death?

Love is the enchanted dawn of every heart, but what mortal is there over whose first joys and happiness does not break some storm, dispelling with its icy breath his fanciful illusions, and shattering his altar? What soul, thus cruelly wounded, does not at times try to dream away the recollection of such storms in the solitude of country life? And yet, man, it seems, is not able to bear the languid rest on Nature's bosom, and when the trumpet sounds the signal of danger, he hastens to join his comrades, no matter what the cause that calls him to arms. He rushes into the thickest of the fight and amid the uproar of the battle regains confidence in himself and his powers<sup>1</sup>

The House of the Dead (Prison Life in Siberia)<sup>1</sup> Part I, Chap 2

With ready-made opinions one cannot judge of crime. Its philosophy is a little more complicated than people think. It is acknowledged that neither convict prisons, nor the hulks, nor any system of hard labour ever cured a criminal.

Ibid Chap 9

Tyranny is a habit capable of being developed, and at last becomes a disease. . . The man and the citizen disappear for ever in the tyrant.

Ibid Part II, Chap 3

Consolation is not what you need. Weep and be not consoled, but weep. Only every time that you weep be sure to remember that your little son is one of the angels of God, and rejoices at your tears, and points at them to the Lord God, and a long while yet will you keep that great mother's grief. But it will turn in the end to quiet joy, and your bitter tears will be only tears of tender sorrow that purifies the heart.

The Brothers Karamazov<sup>2</sup>

Part I, Book II, Chap 3

Even those who have renounced Christianity and attack it, in their inmost being still follow the Christian ideal, for hitherto neither their subtlety nor the ardour of their hearts has been able to create a higher ideal of man and of virtue than the ideal given by Christ of old. When it has been attempted, the result has been only grotesque.

Ibid. Part II, Book IV, Chap 1

Until you have become really, in actual fact, a brother to every one, brotherhood will not come to pass. No sort of scientific teaching, no kind of common interest, will ever teach men to share property and privileges with equal consideration for all. Every one will think his share too small and they will be always envying, complaining and attacking one another.

The Brothers Karamazov
Part II, Book VI, Chap 2

The true security is to be found in social solidarity rather than in isolated individual effort.

Ibid

Be not forgetful of prayer. Every time you pray, if your prayer is sincere, there will be new feeling and new meaning in it, which will give you fresh courage, and you will understand that prayer is an education.

Ibid Chap 3

Love all God's creation,<sup>1</sup> the whole and every grain of sand in it. Love every leaf, every ray of God's light. Love the animals, love the plants, love everything. If you love everything, you will perceive the divine mystery in things. Once you perceive it, you will begin to comprehend it better every day. And you will come at last to love the whole world with an all-embracing love.

Ibid

Much on earth is hidden from us, but to make up for that we have been given a precious mystic sense of our living bond with the other world, with the higher heavenly world, and the roots of our thoughts and feelings are not here but in other worlds. That is why the philosophers say that we cannot comprehend the reality of things on earth.

A community is like a ship, every helm*An Enemy of the People Act I*

The most crying need in the humbler ranks of life is that they should be allowed some part in the direction of public affairs. That is what will develop their faculties and intelligence and self-respect.

Ibid Act II

The public doesn't require any new ideas. The public is best served by the good, old-fashioned ideas it already has.

Ibid

An editor cannot always act as he would prefer. He is often obliged to bow to the wishes of the public in unimportant matters. Politics are the most important thing in life — for a newspaper.

Ibid Act III

The most dangerous enemy to truth and freedom amongst us is the compact majority.

Ibid Act IV

You should never wear your best trousers when you go out to fight for freedom and truth.

Ibid Act V

To crave for happiness in this world is simply to be possessed by a spirit of revolt. What right have we to happiness?

Ghosts, Act I

It is not only what we have inherited from our fathers that exists again in us, but all sorts of old dead ideas and all kinds of old dead beliefs and things of that kind. They are not actually alive in us, but there they are dormant, all the same, and we can never be rid of them. Whenever I take up a newspaper and read it, I fancy I see ghosts creeping between the lines. There must be ghosts all over the world.

For fortune such as I've enjoyed I have to thank America. My amply-furnished library I owe to Germany's later schools. From France, again, I get my waistcoats, my manners, and my spice of wit, — from England an industrious hand, and keen sense for my own advantage. The Jew has taught me how to wait. Some taste for dolce far niente I have received from Italy, — and one

Letter to Georg Brandes

COUNT LYOF NIKOLAYE-VITCH TOLSTOI

[1828-1910]

The Frenchman is conceited from supposing himself mentally and physically to be inordinately fascinating both to men and to women. An Englishman is conceited on the ground of being a citizen of the best-constituted state in the world, and also because he as an Englishman always knows what is the correct thing to do, and knows that everything that he, as an Englishman, does do is indisputably the best thing. An Italian is conceited from being excitable and easily forgetting himself and other people. A Russian is conceited precisely because he knows nothing and cares to know nothing, since he does not believe it possible to know anything fully. A conceited German is the worst of them all, and the most hardened of all, and the most repulsive of all, for he imagines that he possesses the truth in a science of his own invention, which is to him absolute truth.

War and Peace<sup>1</sup> Part IX, Chap. 11

*The Guermentes Way Part I,
Page 82*

Like everybody who is not in love, he imagined that one chose the person whom one loved after endless deliberations and on the strength of various qualities and advantages

*Cities of the Plain Part I,
Page 132*

We passionately long that there may be another life in which we shall be similar to what we are here below But we do not pause to reflect that, even without waiting for that other life, in this life, after a few years we are unfaithful to what we have been, to what we wished to remain immortally

Ibid Part II, Page 8

It is often simply from want of the creative spirit that we do not go to the full extent of suffering And the most terrible reality brings us, with our suffering, the joy of a great discovery, because it merely gives a new and clear form to what we have long been ruminating without suspecting it

Ibid Page 363

The almost sacred character of all flesh upon which the sufferings that we have endured on its account have come in time to confer a sort of spiritual grace.

I thought how markedly . . . these works [Richard Wagner's music dramas] participate in that quality of being — albeit marvellously — always incomplete, which is the peculiarity of all the great works of the nineteenth century, with which the greatest writers of that century have stamped their books, but, watching themselves at work as though they were at once author and critic, have derived from this self-contemplation a novel beauty, exterior and superior to the work itself, imposing upon it retrospectively a unity, a greatness which it does not possess

The Captive Page 211

The bonds that unite another person to ourself exist only in our mind Memory as it grows fainter relaxes them, and notwithstanding the illusion by which we would fain be cheated and with which, out of love, friendship, politeness, deference, duty, we cheat other people, we exist alone Man is the creature that cannot emerge from himself, that knows his fellows only in himself, when he asserts the contrary, he is lying

The Sweet Cheat Gone Page 47

We believe that according to our desire we are able to change the things round about us, we believe this because otherwise we can see no favourable solution We forget the solution that generally comes to pass and is also favourable we do not succeed in changing things according to our desire, but gradually our desire changes The situation that we hoped to change because it was intolerable becomes unimportant We have not managed to surmount the obstacle, as we were absolutely determined to do, but life has taken us round it, led us past it, and then if we turn round to gaze at the remote past, we can barely catch sight of it, so imperceptible has it become

There is not a woman in the world the possession of whom is as precious as that of the truths which she reveals to us by causing us to suffer

Ibid Page 111

We are healed of a suffering only by experiencing it to the full

Ibid Page 165

Happiness is beneficial for the body but it is grief that develops the powers of the mind

The Past Recaptured. Page 237

As for happiness, it has hardly more than one useful quality, namely to make unhappiness possible. In our happiness, we should form very sweet bonds, full of confidence and attachment, in order that the sundering of them may cause us that priceless rending of the heart which is called unhappiness.

The Past Recaptured Page 238

PAUL VALÉRY

[1871- ]

[Of Anatole France] A dreamy laziness, a laziness of enormous reading difficult to distinguish from study, a laziness like the repose of a fluid over-rich with substance and which in its stillness begets crystals of perfect form.

Discours de Réception, at the French Academy [1927], where he succeeded to the chair of Anatole France

The folly of mistaking a paradox for a discovery, a metaphor for a proof, a torrent of verbiage for a spring of capital truths, and oneself for an oracle, is inborn in us.

Introduction to the Method of Leonardo da Vinci<sup>1</sup>

Collect all the facts that can be collected about the life of Racine and you will never learn from them the art of his verse. All criticism is dominated by the outworn theory that the man is the cause of the work as in the eyes of the law the criminal is the cause of the crime. Far rather are they both the effects.

Ibid.

THOMAS MANN

[1875- ]

Space, like time, engenders forgetfulness, but it does so by setting us bodily free from our surroundings and giving us back our primitive, unattached state.

Time, we say, is Lethe, but change of air is a similar draught, and, if it works less thoroughly, does so more quickly.

A man lives not only his personal life, as an individual, but also, consciously or unconsciously, the life of his epoch and his contemporaries.

Ibid Chap 2

It gives me a most peculiar feeling, when somebody is so stupid, and then all into the bargain. It must be the most melancholy thing in life. One always has the idea of a stupid man as perfectly healthy and ordinary, and of illness as making one refined and clever and unusual.

Ibid Chap 4

The solemn, discreet, almost over-awed bearing which the young German's respect for authority leads him to assume in the presence of pens, ink, and paper, or anything else which bears to his mind an official stamp.

Ibid

I have the feeling that once I am at home again I shall need to sleep three weeks on end to get rested from the rest I've had!

Ibid

The only religious way to think of death is as part and parcel of life, to regard it, with the understanding and the emotions, as the inviolable condition of life

The Magic Mountain Chap 5

Time has no divisions to mark its passage, there is never a thunder-storm or blare of trumpets to announce the beginning of a new month or year. Even when a new century begins it is only we mortals who ring bells and fire off pistols

Ibid

Order and simplification are the first steps toward the mastery of a subject — the actual enemy is the unknown

Ibid.

The proud embarrassment of the artist, tasting the enjoyment of looking on his own works with the eyes of strangers

Human reason needs only to will more strongly than fate, and she is fate

Ibid Chap. 6

Opinions cannot survive if one has no chance to fight for them

Ibid

Chop-fallen funeral processions, with their dignity curtailed by present-day traffic conditions

Ibid

One quickly gets readiness in an art where strong desire comes in play

Ibid

All interest in disease and death is only another expression of interest in life, as is proven by the humanistic faculty of medicine, that addresses life and its ails always so politely in Latin, and is only a division of the great and pressing concern which, in all sympathy, I now name by its name the human being, the delicate child of life, man

Ibid.

What perplexes the world is the disparity between the swiftness of the spirit, and the immense unwieldiness, sluggishness, inertia, permanence of matter.

Ibid

The invention of printing and the Reformation are and remain the two outstanding services of central Europe to the cause of humanity

The Magic Mountain Chap 6

Speech is civilization itself. The word, even the most contradictory word, preserves contact — it is silence which isolates

Ibid

A man's dying is more the survivors' affair than his own

Ibid

What we call mourning for our dead is perhaps not so much grief at not being able to call them back as it is grief at not being able to want to do so

Ibid Chap 7

Time cools, time clarifies, no mood can be maintained quite unaltered through the course of hours

Ibid

Seven is a good handy figure in its way, picturesque, with a savour of the mythical, one might say that it is more filling to the spirit than a dull academic half-dozen

Is it possible that nothing real or important has yet been seen or known or said? Is it possible that mankind has had thousands of years in which to observe, reflect, and record, and has allowed these millennia to slip past, like a recess interval at school in which one eats one's sandwich and an apple?

Yes, it is possible.

Is it possible that every individual has had to be reminded that he is indeed sprung from all those who have gone before, that he has known this and

ALEXANDER BISSON

[Floruit 1900]

Our life is like some vast lake that is slowly filling with the stream of our years. As the waters creep surely upward the landmarks of the past are one by one submerged. But there shall always be memory to lift its head above the tide until the lake is overflowing

Quoted by EMIL LUDWIG in Talks with Mussolini [1932]

Ludwig How do you find it possible to put up with the multitude of faces you have to look at here day after day?

Reflections

You do not need to leave your room. Remain sitting at your table and listen. Do not even listen, simply wait. Do not even wait, be quite still and solitary. The world will freely offer itself to you to be unmasked, it has no choice, it will roll in ecstasy at your feet

The great Jehovah speaks to us
 In Genesis and Exodus, Leviticus and Numbers see,
 Followed by Deuteronomy
 Joshua and Judges sway the land,
 Ruth gleans a sheaf with trembling hand,
 Samuel and numerous Kings appear,
 Whose Chronicles we wondering hear,
 Ezra and Nehemiah now
 Esther, the beauteous mourner, show,
 Job speaks in sighs, David in Psalms,
 The Proverbs teach to scatter alms Ecclesiastes then comes on And the sweet Song of Solomon
 Isaiah, Jeremiah then,
 With Lamentations takes his pen

His word burned like a lamp

Ibid XLVIII, 1

A scarecrow in a garden of cucumbers keepeth nothing

Baruch VI, 70

Was not Abraham found faithful in temptation, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness?

1 Maccabees II, 52

With the God of heaven it is all one, to deliver with a great multitude, or a small company For the victory of battle standeth not in the multitude of an host, but strength cometh from heaven

Ibid III, 18, 19

The noble acts which he did, and his greatness, they are not written for they were very many

Ibid IX, 22

Ask and learn.

Ibid X, 72

Every man sat under his vine and his fig tree<sup>1</sup>

Ibid XIV, 12

We have been careful that they that will read may have delight, and that they that are desirous to commit to memory might have ease, and that all into whose hands it comes might have profit

2 Maccabees II, 25

It is a foolish thing to make a long prologue, and to be short in the story itself

Ibid 32

Leaving his death for an example of a noble courage, and a memorial of virtue, not only unto young men, but unto all his nation

Ibid VI, 31

Nicanor lay dead in his harness

Ibid XV, 28

Wherever there are two, they are not without God, and wherever there is one alone, I say I am with him Raise the stone, and there thou shalt find me,
cleave the wood, and there am I <sup>2</sup>

Fifth Logion

A prophet is not acceptable in his own country, <sup>3</sup> neither doth a physician
work cures upon them that know him

Sixth Logion

A city built upon the top of a hill and stablished can neither fall nor be hid <sup>4</sup>

DOUAY BIBLE <sup>5</sup> [1609]

I am the angel Raphael, one of the seven, who stand before the Lord

Tobias XII, 15

Now Susanna was exceeding delicate,
and beautiful to behold

Daniel XIII, 31

<sup>1</sup> In the rubbish heaps of the ancient city of Oxyrhynchus, near the River Nile, a party of English explorers, in the winter of 1897, discovered a fragment of a papyrus book,
written in the second or third century, and hitherto unknown This single leaf contained parts of seven short sentences of Christ, each introduced by the words, "Jesus says"—

THE KORAN

Translated [1734] by GEORGE SALE [1697-1736]

Turn, therefore, thy face towards the holy temple of Mecca, and wherever ye be, turn your faces towards that place

Chap 2

Wherever ye be, God will bring you all back at the resurrection

Ibid.

As for him who voluntarily perform-eth a good work, verily God is grateful and knowing

Ibid

Your God is one God, there is no
God but He, the most merciful

Ibid

O true believers, take your necessary precautions against your enemies, and either go forth to war in separate parties, or go forth all together in a body.

Chap 4

Fight for the religion of God

Ibid

O men, respect women who have borne you.

Ibid

Wheresoever ye be, death will overtake you, although ye be in lofty towers

Ibid

Whosoever flieth from his country for the sake of God's true religion, shall find in the earth many forced to do the same, and plenty of provisions.

Ibid

God loveth not the speaking ill of any one in public

Chap 4

Let not thy hand be tied up to thy neck, neither open it with an unbounded expansion, lest thou become worthy of reprehension, and be reduced to poverty

Chap 17

Of his mercy he hath made for you the night and the day, that ye may rest in the one, and may seek to obtain provision for yourself of his abundance, by your industry, in the other

Chap 28

If God should punish men according to what they deserve, he would not leave on the back of the earth so much as a beast

Chap 35

God obligeth no man to more than he hath given him ability to perform

Chap 65

Woe be unto those who pray, and who are negligent at their prayer who play the hypocrites, and deny necessities to the needy

Chap 107

O unbelievers, I will not worship that which ye worship, nor will ye worship that which I worship Ye have your religion, and I my religion

Chap 109

BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER <sup>1</sup>

We have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and we have done those things which we ought not to have done

Morning Prayer

The noble army of Martyrs

Ibid Te Deum

Make them to be numbered <sup>2</sup> with thy Saints, in glory everlasting

Ibid

Whose service is perfect freedom.

Ibid A Collect for Peace

<sup>2</sup> In the Latin, this word is numeron (rewarded), and was mistaken, perhaps, by an early copyist for numeron (numbered)

Afflicted, or distressed, in mind, body, or estate

Morning Prayer A Prayer for All Conditions of Men

Grant us grace fearlessly to contend against evil, and to make no peace with oppression, and, that we may reverently use our freedom, help us to employ it in the maintenance of justice among men and nations

Prayers and Thanksgivings

A Prayer for Social Justice

Deliver us, we beseech thee, in our several callings, from the service of mammon, that we may do the work which thou givest us to do, in truth, in beauty, and in righteousness, with singleness of heart as thy servants, and to the benefit of our fellow men

Ibid A Prayer for Every Man in His Work

From envy, hatred, and malice, and all uncharitableness

The Litany

The world, the flesh, and the devil

Ibid

Give to all nations unity, peace, and concord <sup>1</sup>

Ibid

The kindly fruits of the earth

Ibid

Miserable sinners <sup>2</sup>

Holy Communion Exhortation

Collect for the Second Sunday in Advent

Renounce the devil and all his works

Holy Baptism Of Children

The pomps and vanity of this wicked world

Offices of Instruction (Catechism)

<sup>1</sup> The desire for unity, the wish for peace, the longing for concord, deeply implanted in the human heart, have stirred the most powerful emotions of the race, and have been responsible for some of its noblest actions — SIR WILLIAM OSLER Aequanimitas (2d ed), XXI, Unity, Peace and Concord

<sup>2</sup> The invocation, "Have mercy upon us miserable sinners," was included in the Litany prior to the Revision of 1928 "Miserable offenders" appears in Morning Prayer, A General Confession.

To keep my hands from picking and stealing

Offices of Instruction (Catechism)

To do my duty in that state of life unto which it shall please God to call me

Ibid

An outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace <sup>1</sup>

Ibid

Let him now speak, or else hereafter for ever hold his peace

Solemnization of Matrimony

To have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death us do part

Ibid

With this Ring I thee wed

Ibid

In the midst of life we are in death <sup>2</sup>

Burial of the Dead At the Grave

Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of the Resurrection unto eternal life

Ibid

Show thy servant the light of thy countenance

The Psalter Psalms, XXXI, 18

But it was even thou, my companion, my guide, and mine own <sup>3</sup> familiar friend

Ibid LV, 14

God that maketh men to be of one mind in an house

Ibid LXVIII, 6

<sup>3</sup> Through a typographical error, the word "own" was changed to "old" in the first printing of the Revision of 1928

The iron entered into his soul

The Psalter Psalms, CV, 18

God, in whom we live and move and have our being

Family Prayer Morning

O Lord, support us all the day long, until the shadows lengthen and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed, and the fever of life is over, and our work is done. Then in thy mercy grant us a safe lodging, and a holy rest, and peace at the last <sup>1</sup>

Ibid At Night

O God of peace, who hast taught us that in returning and rest we shall be saved, in quietness and in confidence shall be our strength, By the might of thy Spirit lift us, we pray thee, to thy presence, where we may be still and know that thou art God

Ibid For Quiet Confidence <sup>2</sup>

O Heavenly Father, who hast filled the world with beauty, open, we beseech thee, our eyes to behold thy gracious hand in all thy works, that rejoicing in thy whole creation, we may learn to serve thee with gladness <sup>3</sup>

Ibid For Joy in God's Creation <sup>4</sup>

Aloha Oe, so I say, 920
Alone all all alone, 315
and shut the door, once we are 841
and thou, art there, 403
at night, flying, 841 give me to live with love, 400
how can it be said I am, 42
I did it — Boy! 76
I lie down, 744
I lingered, on the shore, 418
in solitude we are least, 353
in the midst of crowds, 324 leaving me never, 652
left too much, 808

 hath strange power, 157
 hold a plea, shall, 107
 home, come with, 834
 humbled to the earth, 931
 if she unmask her, 90
 I'm not a great star, as a 845
 impassioned for its, 429
 in a brow of Egypt, 43
 in all things, 385
 in his life, daily, 103
 in the heart, 833
 in the, of the lilies, 522
 in this plain room, 866 invisible, 849
 is a flower, 840
 is a joy forever, thing of, 382
 is a pledge, 770
 is a short-lived tyranny, 1014
 is a silent deceit, 1014
 is an ivory mischief, 1014
 is eternity, 880
 is indescribable, 770
 is its own excuse, 409, 441
 is its own reward, 918
 is not immortal, 836
 is pleasure, 769
 is that Medusa's head, 914
 is the best introduction, 1014 is the gift of God, 1014
 is truth, truth beauty, 383
 isle of, fare thee well, 388
 itself doth of itself persuade, 106 king arrayed in his, 387
 led captive, 156
 left thee but, 628
 lies in many eyes, 335
 lies, the cynosure, 160
 lies unseen, in the rough marble, 445
 like the night, walks in, 356
 lingers, lures where, 355
 lives though lilies die, 881 makes this vault a feasting presence, 80
 making beautiful old rhyme, 108 met some young, 1000
 more amiable than, 196
 must be truth, 385
 no, that hath not some strange-
 ness, 111
 nor good talk, 786
 of a butterfly's wing, 930
 of a human face, with the little, 834
 of a thousand stars, clad in
 the, 32
 of an aged face, 868
 of growing plants, 1049
 of old men is the grey head, 1108
 of style and harmony, 973
 of surpassing, 979
- Beauty of the good old cause, 298 of the house is order, 953
 of the slender red line, 542
 of the world, 169
 of things, 895
 old age ill layer-up of, 68
 on the shore, left their, 408
 or form we are borrowers to, 480 perception of, a moral test, 515 pearls have this, 1069
 poetry as rhythmical creation
 of, 461
 possessor of, 483
 power of, I remember the, 176 principal, 147
 provoketh thieves, 48
 pure classic, 930
 put on, 811
 rings of, 572
 rules the roast, 984
 scandal the doom of, 986
 see naught but vanity in, 522 seems right by force of, 430 seen in one autumnal face, 117
 shall be, so long as, 1017 share, unashamed his, 931
 she walks in, 356
 should harbour a heart, 256
 slain, with him is, 106
 smiling in her tears, 327
 soon grows familiar, 194
 stands in the admiration, 156 stands looking, when, 1085
 still, such seems your, 108
 such, as a woman's eye, 41
 that is to be, 757
 that undelies, for the possible, 560
 the mate for, 425
 the splendor of, 953
 there is music in the, 145
 there's too much, 792 thou art all, 187
 though injurious, 157
 to die for, 409
 to sport with, 337
 truly blent, 54
 truth and love are one, 668
 waking or asleep, 153
 wandering, eternal, 790
 what so nameless as, 868
 which old Greece or Rome, 442 who walks with, 891
 why talk of, 921
 will decay, 269
 winds of Mauch with, 56
 with thee in, 555
 without grace, 414
 without vanity strength without insolence, 351
 wrought from within, 645
 yet to find, is there, 893
 Beauty's chain, hour with, 337 ears, gem that hangs from, 267 ensign is crimson, 80 heavenly ray, 356
 perfect round, 682
 self loose visible, 869
 Beaux, where none are, 239
 Beaver hat, on account of his, 498
 in Canadian brooks, 451
 Becalmed at eve, as ships, 519
- Becalmed by the shores of age, 644
 Beck, they follow the, 756
 Beckoning shadows dire, 157
 Beckons me away, a hand which 205
 Becks and wreathed smiles, 160
 Become what we are capable of becoming, 704
 Becomes him ill, nothing, 41
 the thioned monarch, 46
 Becoming mirth limit of, 41
 Bed, all of man's peril comes of, 610
 and board, peace and plenty, 936 and so to, 180, 867
 as you lay in your, 941
 at Ware, 200
 bad luck sits by your, 640 be blest that I lie on, 164
 born in, we die in, 1043
 bravely thou becomest thy, 105
 by night, 251
 cottage-chamber, 568
 cursed him in, 351
 day-star in the ocean, 159
 delicious, 391
 died quietly in his, 577
 dread grave as little as my 183 dreamless, 446
 early to rise, early to, 227
 first and worst one is a, 610
 from his bumblestone, 321
 goes to, mellow, 127 gravity out of his 62
 half-hidden in his grassy, 637
 hath she for narrow, 823
 holy angels guard thy, 199
 hue as red as the rose, 431
 I want to go to, 667
 if they seldom die in, 683
 in the dark, in, 1023
 into the coverlet of a, 1000 is narrow, every, 915
 is the boon for me, 817
 lies in his, 58
 little rudely sculptured, 682
 little, to rest my head, 382
 made his pendent, 85 mighty large, 200
 no use in my going to, 389
 of ancient mould, 848
 of death, faith kneeling by his 31 of death, smooth the, 213
 of honour 200
 of squills how blue, 883
 on glory's brightest, 386
 on my grave as now my, 145
 placed in his room, 1068
 should be of ivory, my, 822 sits by your, 1066
 sleeping mourn upon thy, 632
 sober, will go to, 127
 they died in, 610
 to-night, I will not go to 610 up in my, now, 391
 we laugh in, we cry in 1043 welcome to your gory, 286
 with the lambe, to, 23 Beds made level, 552
 of raging fire, from, 150

- Beds of roses, make thee, 31
to make bloom, 738
- Bedazzled with the sun, 52
- Beddes heed, lever have at his,

911
- Bedtime, would it were, 63
- Bedward, dormitive I take to, 145
- Bee, a vagrant, 728
bringeth home thee, 328
brisk as a, 233
buried in his own juice, 112
busie as a, 23
busy, has no time for sorrow, 282 does not concern the, 584
enclosed in amber, 995
had stung it newly, 163
is on the wing, 345
like the industrious, 910
love in my bosom like a, 27
may work like thee, 431
nothing so like a soul as a, 1069 sparrow and, 570
the little busy, 199
weak as a rained-on, 840
where sucks the, 33
would choose to dream in, 431
would know, the curtaimed, 911
- Bees are busy with their gold, 756
his helmet, a hive for, 28
honed words like, 898
human race organized like, 769

chimed in the Roman Catholic, 566
chimed out the Episcopalian, 566 church-going, 264
doth toll no passing, 349
good old Dutch church, 566
in a cowslip's, I lie, 33
in rapture rang the Temperance, 566
invites me, 86
merry as a marriage, 352
prompter's hand is on his, 644
prophet's camel, 881
rang out the Unitarian, 566
rang out the Universalist, 566
Roland spoke, the great, 620
shouted the Methodist, 566
signalling with the, 929
silence that dreadful, 101
slow falling to the prompter's, 481
softly, ring the, 665
sound as a, 39
swung to and fro, 705
tocsin of the soul, the dinner, 360 tolling from some gray old steeple, 554
twilight and evening, 472

 Boomlay boomlay boom, 857
 Booms adown the glooms, 696
 Boon I beg of fate, 812
 Boone the pioneer, 552
 Boon's for me, that, 493
 Boot, appliances and means to, 65 heels, bleating to your, 786
 saddle to horse and away, 485
 Boots and shoes my greatest trouble, 520
 boots movin' up and down, 782 displace, dares this pair of, 319 dying in my, 833
 gentleman looks at his, 721
 hauled on his, and roared, 508
 I died in my, 927
 it at one gate, what, 156
 not to resist both wind and tide, 70
 ran out at the heels of their, 246
 they wear long, 855
 Booted and spurred, 169
 Bo-peep, played at, 134
 Booth died blind, 856
 the other one was, 792 Booze, Georgia booze is mighty fine, 927
 Border, let that ay be your, 285
 lies in silent shade, 568

Border nor breed nor birth, 779
 of a wood, 662
 Borders of the beautiful blossoms, 432
 Borderline, boast such, 954
 miles of, 954
 Bore a person who talks, 662
 but as a, 360
 cleanliness a, 570
 every hero becomes a, at last, 412
 his part, 626
 more contemptible than the, 615
 my point, thus I, 62
 the world, him who, 303
 to the man with a flute, 685
 waking up, 787
 without abuse, 469
 Bores and bored, the, 361
 because they were, 525
 through his castle wall, 60
 Boreas, blustering railer, 247
 Boredom, against, the gods struggle in vain, 1059
 did indeed cease, 1082
 is prolific in church, 213
 pain and, 1064
 Born across the sea, Christ was, 522
 and taught, happy is he, 114
 below par, 800
 better ne'er been, 310
 better to be lowly, 73
 blessed who ne'er was, 190
 cry for being, 113
 dat's the charge, I was, 902 days, in my, 1034
 dreamer, out of my due time, 608
 follow the king else wherefore, 470 for success, 409
 for the universe, 252
 genius must be, 175
 great, some are, 55
 house where I was, 390
 how happy is he, 114
 in a bower, 388
 in a cellar, 246
 in Arcadia, I too was, 1043
 in bed in bed we die, 1043
 in silent darkness, 30
 in sin, Adam's sons, 124
 knew that before you were, 992
 or taught, happy is he, 114
 poet's made as well as, 119 that ever I was, 92
 they can't be, 497
 to blush unseen, 245
 to die that were not, 363
 to do, the thing that I was, 30
 to inquire after truth, 1030
 to set it right, 92
 to the manner, 91
 under a rhyming planet, 40
 when I was, 1124
 with the gift of laughter, 840
 would thou hadst ne'er been 103

heart of the home savor of the repast, 1090
home-made miracles of, 887
Homer begged his, 123
honor, 1090
I broke with you, 904
I like good, 955
if his son ask, 1114
in one hand stone the other, 978
in sorrow ate his, 439, 1057
is buttered, which side my, 17 is the staff of life, 188, 191
its wondrous, 823
labour for our, 890
like eating new, 525
living corn made, 834 looked to government for, 261
man doth not live by only, 1099
nor his seed begging, 1104
of banishment, eating the bitter, 59
of idleness, 1109
of life, I am the, 1118
of life, not daily bread but
the, 380
pudding, 795
Royal slice of, 876
savor is of other's, 1021
should be so dear, that, 392
sir, if you please, a piece of, 555 spoiled the, 556
sweat of the brow, respect, 1090 sympathy's sustaining, 595
that bringeth strength, 682
they fling to their dogs tonight, 559
upon the waters, cast thy, 1110
wholesomeness of oaten, 122
with one fish-ball, don't give, 555
- Breadlines, heard of, 935
- Bread-sauce, time-honored, 666
- Breadth of heaven betwixt you, 428
of my nail, taller by the, 191
- Break before the bird, shell must, 471
best you get is an even, 868
better to bow than, 13
into foam of flowers, 630
it to our hope, 89
of day, eyes the, 37
of day, until the, 660
of the wave, 362
on the lips while meeting, 431
the hearts of kith and kin, 844
their eggs at the smaller end, 191
- Breakers, the Euxine's dangerous, 360 wanton with thy, 355
- Breakfast, contentment that comes with, 930
on a lion's lip, 67
scheme for her own, 203
with what appetite you have 73
- Breakfast-table, neatly arranged and well-provisioned, 422
- Breakfast-tables garnished by newspapers, 798
- Breaking flood murmur of the 679 waves dashed high, 370
while the tied waves vainly 519
- Break-o'-day in a boozing ken 710
- Breast, arm the obdured, 150
at rest on the quiet earth's, 523
baby at my, 105
bind the motto to thy, 1058
cross on her white, 212
earth's half-shielded, 586
encloseth my poor heart, thy, 71 eternal in the human, 207
far as thine ideal, 354
feeble woman's, 303 forward, marched, 494
get a hairy, 833
heart within your, 928
hold me to your deep, 619 knock the, 157
love's ripening, 385
marble of her snowy, 145
master-passion in the, 208 monuments upon my, 374
no, shall know save mine, 892
of her gown, 421
of the old nurse death, 693 of the waters, 712
on her white, 212
reddened all his, 681
round its, the rolling clouds 251 see the mark on his red, 444
so peacefully within her, 848
soft hand and softer, 385 soothe the savage, 193
straying to find the, 548
tamer of the human, 243
that gives the rose, 575
the living fires, wake in our, 451 thine ideal, 354

Breast, thinking of it on her, 683 told but to her mutual, 328 toss him to my, 136
truth hath a quiet, 59
two hands upon the, 567
was in some quiet, 687 where learning lies, 217
where roses could not live 808
with dauntless, 245
Breasts are orbs of heavenly frame, 27
beat their manly, 761
must suckle slaves, such, 359
oppose gallant, 985
that heave, 763
the keen air, 249
within our, this jewel lies, 226
Breast-high amid the corn, 390
Breast-knot gay, scarlet, 573
Breastplate of faith and love, 1121
what stronger, 69
Breath, a sweeter woman ne'er drew, 540
able to take his, 490
all incense, 353
and die, hold my, 905
and finer spirit, 295
attunes the spheres, with one, 514
bated, 45
blew back, when, 585
boldest held his, the, 328
by the gate of, 631
call back the fleeting, 244
can make them, 250
divine, by, 473
down and out of, 63
eulogy's blandest, 541
extend a mother's, 213 Faith hath a fleeting 761
for the whole tune before you start, 745
grey from thy, 631
hot and cold with the same, 962 hurricane's sultry, 554
in labor, draws his, 932
in our mouth, 780
is a ware, 742
is never shaken, whose, 888
lack of want of words, 157
last moment of his, 252
life of mortal, 436
life that breathes with human, 462 lightly draws its, 295
little flesh a little, 1009
most breathes where, 108
of decay, 575
of eternal morning, 583
of flowers sweeter in the air, 111 of God, his life a, 506
of heaven, 264
of ice, blooms o'er, 642 of kindness, 567
of kings, princes are, 284
of life, the, 154
of life, the most immediate,
1057
of men, she takes away the, 429 of morn, sweet is the, 152
of the multitude, not the musty, 750

Breath of the wind, mist from
the, 838
of twilight, when the, 801
one mighty, 337
one more unfortunate weary
of, 392
places of my, 806
regular as infant's, 317 rich perfume of her, 421
rides on the posting winds 105 say beneath my, 938
shapen by my, 756
skies were purple and, was
praise, 395
smells wooingly, heaven's, 85
summer's, 659
summer's ripening, 78
thou art, a, 36
to cool your porridge, 1026, 1039
to cool his pottage, 1004
to the latest, 209
twilight hour of, 796
we are to utter sweet, 43
we waste our, 924
what chisel could cut, 57
wit is the only, 923
with tempestuous, 629
with their short, 729
with uninforming, 868
with at the north-wind's, 370
Breaths, we live in thoughts not,
506
Breathe not his name, 334
thoughts that, 244
were life as though to, 464 Breathed a word, that ever, 516
the long long night, 473
Breathurs of this world, 108
Breathes from yonder box, 212 must suffer, who, 190
there the man, 307
upon a bank of violets, 53
with human breath, life that, 462
Breathing, closer is He than, 407
household laws, 298
of strength, but as a, 1025
of the common wind, 297
rose, friendship is the, 453 time of day with me, 97
time, peace only a, 258
we watched her, 390
what is it to cease, 880
Breathless with adoration, 297
Bred at Edinburgh, 228
at Oxford or Cambridge was not enough, 170
in a book, dainties that are, 41 in the bone, 17, 977
where is fancy, 45
Breech where honour's lodged, 143 Breeches are so queer, 450
cost but a crown, 101, 256
Macaulay is like a book in, 313
upon his backside, 241
were blue, coat was red, 321
women wear the, 122
wouldn't hurt, 738
Breed a habit, use doth, 34
artists are a rare, 792 of men, this happy, 59
of noble bloods, 81

Breed of their horses and dogs, 184
the past again, only, 472
Breeds by a composture, 81 Breeding, another man's want of 999 care in my, 199
due to gentle, 965
test of, 720
to show your, 279
Breeze, as if upon the, 847 battle and the, 327
drops in the pool when the, 516
every passing, 342
free as the, 305
is on the sea, the, 310
of the morning, 813
send me a little garden, 905
summer, waves the bush, 309
the freshened fragrant, 915
without a, without a tide, 315
Breezes blow, hot 445
Breezy hill that skirts the down
269
Brefny, little waves of, 820
Brekeke-kesh loash loash, 972
Brent, your bonny brow was 286
Bret Fox he lay low, 688
Brethren, all mankind are my 271 born, likenesses in, 967
great twin, 400
to dwell together in unity 1106 Brevity is the soul of wit 92
its body, 316
of life, 1051
use of, 995
Brews, as he, 118
Bribe, boatman takes no, 983
too poor for a, 246 Bric-a-brac, falls heavily among
the, 900
Brick, straw to make, 1098
Bricks are alive this day, 69
by chance or fortune, 1005
sold him gilded, 853
triumphal arch build of, 796
Brickbats, inability to dodge,
818
Brick-dust man, the, 229
Bridal chamber, come to the, 362
of the earth and sky, 135 Bride, foeman's, 306
hail the, 624
half of the world a, 735
I saw the young, 474
in her rich adornin', 685
made the world his, 910 society my glittering, 302 to a lad gone down 916
wife dearer than the, 239 Brides, as the lion woos his, 248
of Enderby, play up the, 540
Bride-bed to have decked, 97
Bridegroom, fresh as a, 61
hail the, 624
is half of the world, 735
Bridge across a hundred years, 510
don't cross the 440
grave a covered, 440
habit builds the, 676
he lives near the, 246

- Bridge, Horatius kept the, 400
 in wait, under the, 926
 is a sad song, 934
 of asses, 977
 of blue, 439
 of Sighs, on the, 353
 of time, meet we on the, 543
 that arched the flood, 409
 the world is merely a, 1093
 to the moon, build a, 515
 Bridge-head, come up to, 926
 Bridle between spur and, 138 reins a shake, and gae his, 287 taxed, 314
 Brief as a dragon-fly's repose, 529
 as the lightning, 42
 authority, drest in a little, 36 candle, out out, 88 command of Lee, 690
 darkness, 440
 even as bright, 368
 let me be, 91
 life our portion, 518
 terms art of scratch, engraving
 in, 533
 thanksgiving, 632
 words are well, 644
 year of the rose is, 633
 Brier-patch, bred en bawnina, 689
 Brier, as if in the, 629
 Briers, working-day world full
 of, 48
 Brig, transom of a merchant, 413
 Brigades, give me but two, 552
 Bright, a quenchless star forever, 393
 and beautiful English girl, 624
 and yellow gold, 391
 angels are still, 88
 array, in, 423
 as a berry, 842
 as wine, 897
 as young diamonds, 178
 best of dark and, 356
 brokenly, 573
 candle of the Lord, 393
 cloud of tears through a, 900
 consummate flower, 153
 dark with excessive, 151
 day is done, 105
 days are still and, 418
 her angels face shyned, 24 honour, pluck, 61
 hour to waste, nor suffer one, 474
 I saw her eye was, 387
 in hue, quaint in form and, 569
 in thy eyes, 579
 is the ring of words, 703
 need to make it, 718
 old age serene and, 299
 or cloudy weather, 612
 or good, not too, 299
 particular star, a, 53
 promise of your early day, 342 smile haunts me still, 501 star would I were, 385
 streams play, tripping where
 the, 568
 suns may scorch, 404
 the pure the beautiful the, 665
 the sunshine as to-day, as, 581 things come to confusion, 42
 tragic thing, glory is that, 585
 waters meet, where the, 335
 Brighten as I draw near, 626 Brighten, blessings, as they take their flight, 202
 Brightening to the last, 250
 Brightens, how the wit, 211
 Brightest and best of the sons, 342
 blade grows dim with rust, 453
 day hath a cloud, 69
 fell, though the, 88
 heaven of invention, 66
 on glory's bed, 386
 wisest, meanest, 208
 Bright-eyed fancy, 244
 science watches, 244
 Brightly smile and sweetly sing,
 365 Brightness break, sudden, 903
 in our breath, 867
 lost her original, 149
 waned, 936
 Brignall banks are wild, 309
 Brilliance, no conceit of, 928 Brilliant actions brought about from meanest motives 395
 and warm, 923
 Frenchman, 263
 lamp in that dogged mind, 928
 like chrysophrase glowing, 432 stream of verbiage, 578
 yet so corrupt, 320
 Brilling, 't was, 598
 Brim, bubbles that swim on the beaker's, 431
 o'er night's, 485
 pleasure drown the, 53
 Brimstone bed, from his, 321
 Brine, oh give me the flashing,
 502
 Bring me no more vain oblations, 1110
 that chance will, us through, 547
 the day, sweet Phosphor, 134
 the rathe primrose, 159
 Bringer of that joy, 43
 of unwelcome news, 64
 Brings the constant sun, but, 501
 Brink, pause upon the, 626
 Brisk and giddy-paced times, 54
 as a bee in conversation, 233
 is London's air, 833
 Bristol channel, swam across the,
 498
 Britain at Heaven's command, 225 boasts, mountains, 575
 where now is, 399
 Britain's crown, ambassador from, 474
 Britannia needs no bulwarks 327
 over pale, 194
 rule the waves, 225
 Brither, like a vera, 287
 British autobiography never frank, 737
 calf is laid mouldering in the grave, 293
 constitution most subtle organism, 450
 eloquence and British indelicacy, 906
 Empire distribution of, 909
 British Isles, the little speck, 452 man, smell the blood of, 99 manhood, piece of, 378
 muse, 185
 oak, shadow of the, 260
 public in a fit of morality, 398
 public-school system, 607
 race and empire, 921
 stare, with a stony, 469
 British-Americans and Irish-Americans and German-Americans, 700
 Briton even in love should be a subject, 304
 Britons, air dearest to, 443 compared with children across the Atlantic, 483
 confidence and self-esteem of, 483
 never shall be slaves, 225
 strolling around among the, 1009
 true, and while we're, 562
 Brittle, glass of the years is, 631
 Broad acres a patent of nobility, 582
 as ten thousand beeves, 575
 as the blue sky above, 441
 as the kingdoms and empires of old, 504
 based upon her people's will, 462
 blown all his crimes, 95
 brimming water, off a, 873
 earth of ours, in this, 535 effects which can be obtained, 1080 for self-complacent British sneer, 513
 hard-beaten road to his house, 416 is the way, 1114
 mantle of charity, 329
 margin to my life, I love a, 514
 need to make it, 718
 river ebbd and flowed, 437
 way, shun the, 305
 Broad-backed hippopotamus, 900 Broadcast doings of the day and night, 539
 Broadcloth without 266
 Broader mark, nearer and a, 588
 Broad-streeted Richmond, 928
 Broadway, the shadows lay along, 431
 Broccoli, it's, 932
 Brogues, my clouted, 106
 Broke the die, nature, 356
 Broken and a contrite heart, 1104 as an egg when, 432
 flutes of Arcady, 807
 friendships, find, 848
 hearts and heads, land of, 828
 in heart, hymn of the, 533 Jerusalem, 524
 not, in from the birth, 398
 pimon, 643
 reed, this, 1113, 1111
 relations, renewal of, 636
 with the storms of state, 74
 Broken-hearted for his sins, 719 half, 351
 languish, 620
 lean above me, 882

- Broken-hearted, ne'er been, 287
you hoped we were both, 633
Brokenly bright, 573
Bromley to the city, daily she came from, 911
Bron-rhuddyn, breast-burned, 444
Broncho that would not be broken, 856
Bronze and gold and brawn, they built with, 282
and salt and the free grasses, 929 and some of, 927
is the mirror of the form, 964 Jove changed, to, 984
out of the eternal, 789
seems, gold that dull, 597
that sings, 897
then iron stamped, with, 984
Bronzed lank man, 857
Brood, idle, be fed, 973
of folly without father bred, 160
we'll leave that's viler, 983
Brook and river meet, where, 434
as thou these ashes little, 303
can see no moon but this, the, 335
fast by a, 269
I could not hear, the, 458
is deep, where the, 21, 69 noise like of a hidden, 315 sparkling with a, 346
that turns a mill, 289
the weather, many can, 41
Brooks, are drenched sands, 587
beaver in Canadian, 451
books in the running, 48
in Vallombrosa, 148
make rivers, 177
moon looks on many, 335
of the blond country, sweet-tasting, 929
panteth after the water, 1104 rodless Walton of the, 733 shallow, and rivers wide, 160
sloping into, 346
too broad for leaping, 743
Brook's motion, 't is the, 501
Brook'd the eternal devil, 81
Brooklyn has more distinguished bibliophiles, 844
moon comes over, 939
Brookside, wandered by the, 458
Broom, new, sweeps clean, 15
Broomstick, witch upon a, 1036
write finely upon a, 192
Broth, Tammany cooks spoil the,
935
Brother, a man and a, 941
am I not a man and a, 941
and good friend the sun, 881
author expects a book of yours, 324
call my, back to me, 370
courtly cruel, 478
do not stumble, courage, 499
every author would his, kill, 167
every one said to his, 1112
exquisite to relieve a, 285 far off, better a neighbour near than a, 1108
followed brother, fast has, 305
from the dust, raised a, 504
Brother, help my ailing, 955
in dealing with a, 959
John, buried, 630
jostle a, 657
little brown-frocked, 813
near the throne, no, 167, 213
of all, equal and kindly, 379
of death, sleep the, 958 of the angle, 139
sleep, death and his, 368
so like my, 630
somewhere in the gloom, 664 souls, my friends and, 471
stick more close than a, 783

Roland to the dark tower
came, 309

- Child Rowland to the dark tower came, 99 saving a little, 639 Shakespeare fancy's, 160
 should always say what's true 702 should grow into the man, 439
 spake as a, 1120
 speaking angrily to any, 429
 sports of children satisfy the, 249
 that is born on the Sabbath, 956
 the thoughts of a, 600
 to have a thankless, 98
 to its mother, bringest the 960
 train up a, 1108
 use of a new-born, 868
 was carried, my third, 1055
 was diseased at birth, 902
 what constitutes a, 1007
 what it is to be a, 749
 when I was a, 1120
 where is my, 356
 wise father knows his own, 45
- Child's heart to a child 800 kiss, a, 427
     sob in the silence, 428
     strength, credulity is the, 323
- Childes play, it is no, 7
- Childhood again, give me my, 595 careless strayed, 243
     dwarfing of, 1067
     fleeted by, how my, 405
     from, to his journey's end, 1073
     in my days of, 325
     instincts of female, 1068
     manhood and decrepit age 135 of eternity, 576
     of the world, 604
     old age but second, 972
     scenes of my, 348
     shows the man, 156
     womanhood and, fleet, 434
- Childhood's cheek tear down, 309 dreams are twined, 598
     hour, from, 338, 590
- Childish days, sweet, 297
 ignorance, it was a, 390
 things, I put away, 1120
 treble, turning again toward,
     50
- Childishness, second, 50
- Childlike and bland, 644
 heaven is of the, 705
- Children and fools cannot lye, 15
 and fools want everything, 183
 and their parents, 723 ardent for some desperate glory, 918
 are what mothers are, 326
 as gypsies serve stolen, 278
 as living arions, 879 breed of their, 184
 bright and agreeable, 1008
 bright faces of, 643
 but for my, 895
 call her blessed, 1109
 clinging to their gown, 665 comfort of thy, 71
 do, calling out as, 917
 father's sin upon the, 46
- Children, fear in, increased with tales, 109
     fear to go in the dark, 109
     followed with endearing wile, 251
     from play, holdeth, 27
     from these brown-handed, 729
     gathering pebbles, 156
     hapless, 586
     have their little language, 564
     I have had five, 1055
     impediments to great enterprises, 110
     in a house, too many, 1027
     in their laughter, follow after, 839
     inter their parents, in peace, 967
     kind and natural, were all thy, 66
     laugh and play, that made the, 362 learn to walk, 809
     learne to creepe, 15
     like olive plants, 1106
     like truant, 809
     lips and hearts of little, 482
     lispng soul on the lips of, 1069
     lost, silent above the flowers
         her, 565
     mother who talks about her, 419 neighbors', are the worst, 907 never forgot his, 948
     nine small, 947
     no longer any, 1047
     nor God, neither, 778
     of a larger growth, 177
     of an idle brain, 77
     of blindness, 736
     of light, 1117
     of men! not that your age, 546
     of necessity, 617
     of one family fall out, 198
     of pride, king over, 783
     of the brain, books the, 191
     of the great mother-tongue, 558 of the wind, 717
     of this world, 1117
     of yesterday, 656
     on wheels, put our, 849
     parents bore their, 721
     Rahel weeping for her, 1113
     should never be lazy and sad, 431
     so dear that I held, 567
     spoke bad English, 766
     sports of, 249
     tale which holdeth, from play, 27
     to their fathers, heart of the, 1114 toys to the great, leave, 225
     turn the fathers to the, 1114 way to rear up, 429
     weep when we lie low, 553
     weeping do ye hear the, 428
     were not used to bearing, 996
     who tumble barefooted, 854 wisdom justified of her, 1115
     with high spirits, mirth of, 426
     wives and gandsires, 1059
     you will rise, sweet happy, 474
- Children's children will have to toil, 689
     griefs, 749
- Children's hour, known as the 434 teeth set on edge, 1113
     ways and wiles, 634
 Chill all its own, 815

great the important 194 grow milder when tis 967
gwine to run all 568
has begun 801
has ever failed me, no 845
hast thou forgotten this 396
he that outlives this 67
heat of the long and wish 546
her suffering ended with the 473 her washing ended with the 557 hoping for the perfect 477
how troublesome is 348
I asked of echo 't other 511
I dearly love but one 189
I hate the 26
I have had the 580
I stand outside every, 793
I've lived this 984
I've lost a 201
idle singer of an empty 608
in a hot 64
in clouds brings on the 194
in every scene by 393
in golden letters should be set 57 in its hotness 547
in June what so rare as a 575
in melting purple dying 375
in the county 587
in the light of fuller 523
in thy courts 1105
infinite excludes the night 199

Day into the light of common 301 is a perpetual morning 514
 is always coming 763 is at the morn 485
 is aye fair 291
 is dim only my 761
 is done and darkness falls 434
 is dying in the west 656 is long merry as the 38
 is out and the labor done 430 is over now the 605
 is past and gone 370
 is too near 643
 jocund stands tiptoe 79
 joint labourer with the 89
 July's short as December 56
 kings upon their coronation 174 knell of parting 244
 known a better 306
 laugh to the summer's 371
 life confined within the space of a 1004
 life is but a 384
 life is but a sultry 1066
 little rain foretells a pleasant 507 live long the 81
 loitering lose this 1058
 long on all things all 470
 long support us all the 1128 longer than a wonder lasts a 70 look to this 953
 lord it but a 687
 luve o' life's young 389
 maddest merriest 463
 made black by morning storms 325 makes up the commonplace 682 marked with a white stone 1039
 may bring forth what a 1108
 merry heart goes all the 56
 more work in a 345
 morning shows the 156
 most splendid I was thinking
 the 537
 must follow as the night the 91
 neer dawns again this 1021
 next never so good 989
 night is mother of the 441
 no proper time of 391
 nor looks to see the breaking 444 not to me returns 151
 now's the now's the hour 286
 of adversity 1108 1109
 of Armageddon in the day of 778
 of crisis and of ultimate hope 347
 of death ere the first 355
 of deliverance 268
 of empires 622
 of grief and glory 759
 of judgment vulgarize the 417
 of nothingness first dark 355
 of prosperity in the 1109 1124 of small nations 622
 of small things, 26
 of spring and spring day 710

Day of thy power in the 1105
 of woe the watchful night 322 old blue flower of 801
 on any particular 935
 on any reckoning, 847
 one of the great lost days 796
 open as and the hearts 435
 our eternal 893
 our little systems have their 467 painted this perfect 761

 sailed away for a year and a 498 seated one at the organ 564 seek all ere you find them 44 seen us walking every 167 serene rarely is a 942
 shall be beautiful 802
 shall clasp him 900
 shall not be up the 58 shining hills of 442
 short or never so long 17
 sir critic good, 508 smiled up across the tide 772
 so calm so cool 135
 so shuts the eye of 273
 star arise in your hearts 1123
 state and inclination of the 60 sufficient unto the 1114
 summer's hath a 165
 sun shall not smite thee by 1106 sunbeam in a winter's 223
 superfluous burden loads the 162
 sweet Phosphor bring the 134
 take thou in charge this 400
 that comes betwixt a Saturday and Monday 189
 that comes by gift of chance 983 that is dead grace of a 465
 that maketh all things clear 643 that shines think every 985
 that surely dawning 954
 that unforgettable 627
 the bricks are alive at this 69
 the dying pause 848
 the is gone 385
 the most useless 1056
 the order of the 941
 they pass every 1085
 they read no more that 346
 thou wilt bless the 501 through the long polar 552
 through the Lord's word named 3
 thunder in a fair frosty 172
 time and hour runs through the roughest 84
 to be lost every 238

Day to day from 88
 to fire the brave 219
 to keep awake all 1079
 to morrow will be a new 1040
 to morrow will be another 732
 to night pass life pleasantly 491
 to search for God took a 758
 too solemn for 386
 toward dying crawled another 889 travailes of the painefull 26
 trust some later 983
 turned to his rest 368
 uncertain glory of an April 33 unto day uttereth speech, 1103 unto the perfect 1106 varies every 174
 very rainy 1108
 we pluck one 848
 wealthy gallant always gains
 the 1022
 well spent brings happy sleep 1023 were here would God, 632
 what thou hast done by 136
 when I must die 577
 when like the rising 416
 when skies are fair 567
 when you shall depart 930
 which the Lord hath made 1106 who won the success of a 533
 will carry the 1034
 will not cannot last for aye
 this bright 516
 will not look the same by 428
 wish for your last 995
 with me to stay came a 668
 without all hope of 156
 wrong side of thirty if she be a 192 yield to night 68
 you do not write 896
 you finished it 878
 you shall seek all 44 Days a few prosaic 585
 afternoon of her best 72
 among the dead 321
 among the peaceful harvest 561
 and hours do with all the 454
 are all alike 916
 are as grass his 1105
 are done my fighting 901
 are hastening on to the 477
 are in the yellow leaf 358
 are phantom days 847
 are still and bright 418
 are swifter than a shuttle 1102
 are told 1022
 are trances all my 460
 are young and careless hearted 840
 as thy so thy strength 1099
 be as a marriage day all thy 135 begin with trouble here 947
 by dreams measure 774 called the feast of Crispian 67
 count on two 966 dead letter 323
 dividing lover and lover 633 dull and hoary 170 eke out the measure of my 1076

- Days fill so much winter 669
 find it after many 1110 flight of future 150
 for all the frittered 881
 forty and forty nights 1097
 friend of my better 363
 full of sweet and roses 135 giants in those 1097
 golden olden glory of the 973
 grow dark if the 662
 halcyon 68 972
 hand in hand in the golden 395
 happy mixtures of happy 357
 have been so wondrous free 201 have crackled 749
 have grown to months 707
 heavenly one of those 296
 hypocritic 410
 I meet him greet him the 673
 immelodious 735
 in bad we can vividly recall 1064
 in good we have imperfect memory 1064
 in her right hand, length of, 1106
 in the week of all the 189
 in these Christian 345
 joyfulness prolongeth his, 1125 light doth trample on my 170 light of other 336
 like the good old, no 453 live laborious 159
 long as twenty are now 297 looked on better 49
 loved three whole 163
 may come the days may go 638 measure of my, 1104 melancholy are come 372
 men in these degenerate 218
 my are dull and hoary 170
 o auld lang syne 286
 of a man are counted 766
 of art elder 436
 of childhood in my 325
 of few and full of trouble 1102 of his pilgrimage 499
 of indigestion 860
 of joy to remember 1020 of labor through 952
 of langsyne 390
 of long haired poets 661
 of my distracting grief 248
 of my youth in the 718
 of necessity prepare for the 962
 of old in the brave 400 of old Rameses 953
 of old which I heard in 446
 of our years are threescore 1105
 of palmy prosperity 374
 of thy youth in the 1110
 of yore sad and happy 703
 of your life live all the 192
 on evil though fallen 153
 on the earth are as a shadow 1101
 one of those heavenly 296
 our deeds our 572
 pain of lonely 596
 past our dancing 77
- Days perfect if ever come 525
 prepare for all your 708
 pride of former 334
 red letter 323
 rye bread dull and damp 476
 salad when I was green 104
 see those halcyon 972 seen better 357
 shuts up the story of our 22
 some must be dark and dreary 434 supported by precedents 999
 sweet childish 297
 tale of her 954
 teach us to number our 1105
 than dreamless nights idle 823 that are gone by 973
 that are no more 466 973
 that have been from 426
 that keep us still apart 793 that make us happy 832
 that need borrow 165
 that saw us young bless the 522
 the ancient of 1113
 the errant 871
 the great of older 579
 the whole forty 815
 thirty hath November 18
 those were happy 197
 though fall'n on evil 153
 though shortening 335
 through endless summer 584
 to lengthen our 336
 to loose good 25
 town meeting 404
 trample on my 170
 two carefree 670
 unquiet he lived in 445
 we have seen better 49 81
 weaving the web of 631
 were circles 933
 when birds come back 584
 when the ball of our vision 576
 with God he passed the 201 with toil winding up 67
 who creeps his 905 world of happy 71
 world was made in six 1060 Day's autumn 799
 business end of this 84
 garish eye 161
 life death of each 86
 long toil is past 392
 march nearer home 306
 occupations pause in the 434
 sorrow of each growing 607
 tramp is over 873
 work and his night's work 630
 work done a good 228
 work was done soon as your 600
 Daybreak everywhere it is 439 Daylight and air and 744
 can see a church by 38
 finish must in death your, 492
 in the mind 197
 sick this night is but the 47
 sweet found the common 687
 that we may rejoice like the lark 431
 we burn 34 178
- Daysies swiche as men callen in our town 4
 Day star arise in your hearts 1123
 so sinks the 159
 Daze the world 402
 Dazzle the vision feminine 401
 Dazzling fence of rhetoric 158 immortality 366
 Dazzlingly in full dress 358
 De mortuis nil nisi bonum 1013
 Deacon I was junior 782 swear enough to make a 527 Dead a thousand years 881
 and all the rest are 437
 and dumb and done 823
 and gone he is 256
 and the seas give up their 375
 and turned to clay 97
 are always poplar 796
 as a doornail 66 495
 as Chelsea 944
 as mutton 497
 away hopeless lays his 444
 being with him is beauty slain 106 bivouac of the 541
 close the wall with English 66
 coals 57
 converse with the mighty 224
 could find out if only the 594 cup to the already 554
 day that is grace of a 465
 days among the 321
 death is to the 638
 deathless hour 577
 democracy of the 602
 disembodied spirits of the 373
 do the meanest thing after he s 687
 don't die 884
 evil become lost and 536
 for a ducat 95
 for we bore our 845
 game sport 803
 has a dear one 676
 have consciousness of our presence 350 he is not 366
 he is not but departed 591 hearts are never buried 910
 hosts of the mighty 641
 how fares it with the happy 468
 how living are the 697
 if I were, you d sometimes say 356
 I'm king of the 448
 in look so woe-begone 63
 in the streets truth never fell 476 Indians only good ones 594
 is at rest when the 1125
 is it possible 643
 it seems that the are there 554
 it's for a long time 1062
 knocking when I'm 855
 language impart to a 607
 languages 358
 litigate over me when I'm 605 living dog better than a 1109
 man cannot bite, 999
 Man's Chest 524

Dead many of mine old acquaintance are 65
 marks our English 778 men down among the 941
 men grin by the wall 864
 men in the loam sows 712
 men rise up never 632
 men who wait for 15
 men's bones full of 1116
 most deadly when most 914 mourning for our 1089
 my dearest when I am 587
 nature seems 85
 no pageant train when I am 374
 not but gone before 188 289
 not to speak evil of the 1013
 nothing to the 586
 now behold him 756
 of midnight 273
 of night 63
 old lion is 276
 on the face of the 569
 on the field of battle 706
 on the field of honour 1092
 only the who do not return 1059 out of reach your 696
 over mounds of the 576
 over the rich 894
 past bury its dead 433
 past clear of all regret keep the 960
 Petra in her hill tomb 443 pity tenderness and charity when were 520 pleasure of not being 1054
 poets in their misery 297 posture that we give the 279 profiteering in the 908 remembered footsteps 807
 rest for the 605
 rest her soul she's 97
 reverence of the 132
 risen from the 699
 rises from ceremonies the Christ 609
 say I'm sick I'm 212
 Sea one social 716
 Sea's shore 352
 secrets arise 913
 sepulchres of mighty 386
 she is not 817
 sheeted did squeal 89
 should still be near desire the 468 sleeping but never 524
 some hundred years 657
 the breathers of this world are, 108
 the law hath not been 36
 the noble living and the noble 300
 the unreplying 602
 the world has no power over the 1051
 there are no 618
 these heroic happy 921
 this earth that bears thee 63
 this man is 925
 those immortal who live again 520
 though the house of it seems, 597 thought it happier to be 409
 to bewail the 959

Dead together wish we were 631 understand that you are 896 vast and middle of the night 90 volcanoes only on 690
 wake the 886
 we become the lumber of the world 185
 weep not for the silent 290
 when a man is 330
 when but for those our mighty 288
 when honour dies the man is 442
 when I am let fire destroy the world 1093
 when I am no pageant train 374
 when it is said word is 585
 when the living might exceed the 145 which he slew at his death 1099
 who fed the guns 892
 who go are from the 683
 who hath bent him o'er the 355 will not say that he is 696
 will stare and sting 914 would I were now 391
 you are the 929
 you never shall return 1018
 Dead letter days 323
 Deadlock holy 909
 Deadly breach imminent 100
 fair so coldly sweet 355
 Dead sure thing a 639
 Deadwood and Lost Mule Flat 929
 Deaf adder like the 1104 are dumb are blind tis we are 604
 neither good nor bad to the 1049
 none so that will not hear 17 136 187
 world does not hear 706 Deal damnation round the land 216
 in giving a great 1050
 of nothing infinite 44
 of sack intolerable 62
 of scorn what a 55
 of skumble skamble stuff 62 square 734
 Deals piled up 873
 Dealing common sense and plain 412
 Dealings he was faultless in his 406 whose hard 45
 Dean cushion and soft 210
 Deans, dowagers for 466
 prudes for proctors dowagers for 466
 Dear a price too 229
 and true industrious friend here is a 60
 as the light of these sad eyes 244
 as the ruddy drops 82 244
 beauteous death 170
 charmer away 205
 common flower 525
 creations so will these 551

Dear dead women 486
 five hundred friends 265
 for his whistle paid 227
 for my possessing too 108
 glad faces long away 619
 guest and ghost 439
 hut our home 226
 makes the remembrance 53
 man to all the country 250
 my better half 27
 near and true 467
 none less than thine and my good Marcius 76
 old friend to me 678
 old fashioned posies where are the 569
 our very dearest 642 pay a great deal too 56
 sixpence all too 101
 so I love him 155
 son of memory 161
 the merry cries 619
 the people coming home, 619
 the spot matters not how 432
 the thanks 619
 to God worthy patriots 162
 to home and memory 734
 to me as are the ruddy drops 82
 to me as life and light 286 to them that love her 747 to this heart how 348
 where did you come from baby 559 wisdom is never 479
 work good night 458
 you will be how 895
 Dears the lovely 284
 Dearer than his horse something 464
 Dearest enemy nearest and 117 thing he owed 84
 through every season 393
 Dearly let or let alone 135
 Dearness only gives value 271
 Dearth but a lack and 597
 of woman's tears was 447
 Death a cordial old and rare 664
 a delightful journey 520
 a door that leads to light 603
 a hideous show 547
 a necessary end 82
 a state of rest 350
 after life 24
 aims with fouler spite, 134
 all in the valley of 467
 anchor of a love is 676
 and Chance and time triumphing over 161 and failure and fame forever 737 and General Putnam 816
 and his brother sleep 368
 and life bane and antidote 195
 and life in ceaseless 447
 and night hands of the sisters 536
 and pain they fear 995
 and sleep twins 219
 and taxes 228
 and that vast forever 523
 and the Roman populace 438
 and the stars night sleep 537
 and the sultan, 767

- Death and time bring on the prime, 693
armed with new terror 331
at midnight goes a-dancing 1078
at the point of 80 1051
be called unhappy no one till his 430
be careful of the rest 793
be good whether 632
be not proud 118
be thou faithful unto 1123
begun birth is nothing but 202 between us 480
birth and 985
borders upon our birth 121 breaks every bond 1051
broke the vital chain 231
brother to sleep 30
but a tavern 833
but an eternal sleep 972
but life and see not 575
by beauty made amends 798
by inches gave him 76
by slanderous tongues done to 40
calls ye 141
came with friendly care 316
cannot slay 736
captain of all these men of, 172
chooses his own time 596
clear will make 634
closes a man's reputation 196
cold not daunte 257
come lovely and soothing 536
come to the bridal chamber 362 comes at last 592 792 comes to all 1027
comes to set thee free 1063
comes when 670
cometh soon or late 400
content to have from 746
continue after 981
could not stop for 584
covenant with 424
creation's 328
cruel as 224
cruel, is always near 947
dangei of violent 132
dear beauteous 170
defend to the 1053
delicately takes the best 793 deprive him of 738
devise he did my 136
devours all lovely things 915
died there a natural 838 disregard for 930
divorce or, 624
doors that lead to 144
drawing near her, 147
draws near when 967
dread of something after 93
dull cold ear of 244
early to favourites 354
éclat of 584
eclipsed the gayety of nations 233 effect of on the world 670
eleven thousand persons suffered 191
eloquent just and mightie 22 end of a journey 520 ending in at last 608
epitaph after your 93
ere thou hast slain another 120
- Death faithful unto 1123
fatal asterisk of 438
fell sergeant 97
final taunt of 924
first day of 355
first solemn note is sounded
by 1064
for an example of noble courage 1125
for thee was glorified 823
for who is he 584
forgotten were 933
four fingers from 1013
gallop Pegasus to 214
gates of glory and of 789 gave all that we possess 651 give me liberty or give me 270 gives a foretaste of 1064
glimped the awful face of 1091
gone to her 392
grants us yet a little time 664
gray sets me free 774
grim 129
guilty of his own 96
had left it almost fair, 681
had the majority long since 145 happy people not afraid of 788
has broached him to 274 has carved me when 892
has choked a great man's voice 429
has ever truly longed for, 462
has its own way, 1067 has shaken out 375
hath a thousand doors 128 129 hath no more dominion 1119
hath not touched it at all, 597 hath so many doors 131
hath ten thousand several doors 127
he taketh all away 554
heaven gives to its favourites early 354
heavy page of 938
herald after my 74
his ladder to the skies, 26
his Maker and the angel 317 how wonderful is 368
hymn to his own 58
I would fain die a dry 32
in battle prize of 527
in France walked with 904
in itself is nothing 178
in life found 319
in life oh 466
in life or after 970
in love with easeful 383
in strange contradiction to life 709 in that sleep of 93
in the afternoon, 930
in the alabaster arms of 646
in the hour of 561
in the midst of life 1128
in the pot 1101
in victory swallow up 1111
into the world brought 148
intrenched 202
is a common friend or foe 511
is a great dissembler 37
is a secret of nature 1010
is a sleep 631
is a state of nothingness 970
- Death is a thing which makes men weep 361
is an eternal sleep 1060
is at the bottom of the cup 629
is beautiful 528
is better sleep is good but 1066 is birth end of 597
is but an open door 843
is but one more to morrow 579
is but the long cool night 1066 is certain to all 65 is life perhaps 972
is life's high meed 385
is love's friend 690
is master 678
is most in apprehension 988
is never at a loss for occasions 1092

 Dreads to the dust returning who 554
 Dream a far illusive 573
 a hideous 82
 a shadowy lie was my 509
 all night without a stir 384
 an evening thought a morning 594
 and unaccountable desire 806
 and wish beat with 444
 as we glide through a quiet 350 as youthful poets 160
 awaken'd who from a 1021
 awaking from a troubled 396
 beautiful for patriot 737
 beyond the shadow of a 382
 by day those who 461
 come true making the 873
 consecration and the poet s 299 deeper one 592
 delicious when a 675
 dim blue hills of 717
 dreamed a that could not be 558 feeling in his 1021
 fickle as a changeful 308
 from deed, 693
 gone like a beautiful 392
 grandeur is a 265
 has power to poison sleep 368 hath possessed 891
 heart not able to report my 43
 her face stirred with her, 360
 holy things fade like a 523
 I have had a 43
 I saw as in a 423
 I took a rampin 878
 in cleaving to the, 650
 in joy and wake in love 375
 in reverential 896
 in the night a 789
 iridescent 601
 is born when a 924
 is past, die when the 428
 is true, know the 924
 life is an empty 577
 life is but an empty, 433
 love's young 335

Dream man's life is but a 577 meditation changed to 1021
 moon kingdom of 1069
 new risen from a 52
 no more said dreamer 558
 none thrives long on happiest 556 not Homer nods but we 210
 of a face occupy age with the 490 of a sight to 315
 of a waking man 1014
 of happiness 953
 of heaven she did but 175
 of home the 337
 of life he hath awakened from
 the 366
 of loveliness descending saw a 559 of peace deep 346
 of sleeping innocence 645
 of things that were 352
 old men's 173
 one man with a, 676
 one with twilight's 801
 or dust 851
 or grave apart keep a 428
 our suffering life the 480
 past the wit of man to say what 43
 problem flowered from a 823
 record of a fevered 685 scraps of 757
 short as any 42
 silently as a 266
 so climbs my 889
 somnambulist of a vanished 1067 sprite begotten of summer 407
 still mounts the 851
 sweet thoughts in a 368
 that I forget 632
 that is dying 676
 the glory and the 301
 to sleep perchance to 93
 we thought was lost every 557
 when one awaketh 1105
 when the long tricks over 832
 which was not all a dream 356
 with the first 701
 within a dream is but a 459
 Dreams and all my nightly 460 and slumbers light 308
 and visions distraught with 439 are best 844
 are ever contrary 116
 awake from pleasant 348
 be thine sweetest 642 blissful of long ago 638
 blowing loudly in 967
 books are each a world 301
 come in to me 869
 depart and the vision falls 521 direction of his 515
 dreamer of 952
 dreamer of, born out of my 608 emptied of all my 882
 feed on 963
 full of ghastly 71
 glimpses of forgotten 462
 ground not upon 116
 gone to smoke 766
 green dusk for 823
 had never known 696

Dreams have only my 790
 help us incarnate 860
 I have spread my 790
 I see thee ever in my 417
 lies down to pleasant 372 like a dog he hunts in 464
 like the atmosphere of 447
 no mortal ever dreamed before 460 not the England of our 782
 not with shall a nation be moulded 634
 of avarice beyond the 237
 of childhood 497
 of doing good 430
 of love and truth 665
 of men 726
 of my infinite 761
 of thee I arise from 368
 of those who wake 995
 old men shall dream 173 saddle your 872
 season of our lonely 843
 she grows not older in 675
 songs she heard in her 432
 such stuff as are made on 33
 that count with men 952
 that fooled me 533
 that wave before the half shut eye 224
 their own deceive 'em 190
 to sell if there were 406
 tread on my 790
 true I talk of 77
 what may come 93
 winged 256
 yet in my 423
 Dream's confusion end my 856
 Dream beguiled their paths are 756 Dreamed a dream that could not
 be 558
 before dreams no mortal ever 460
 that life was beauty 508
 Dreamer awake where shall the 618 beautiful, 568
 dream no more said 558
 of dreams 952
 of dreams born out of my 608
 who's making the dream 873 Dreamers of dreams 676
 of the impossible 491
 Dreamer's wine drunken with
 the 871
 Dreamful eyes my spirit lies with 552
 Dream house anyway it's just a 920 Dreaming darkly of a Dun 590
 dreams no mortal ever dreamed 460 eyes of wonder 598
 past the size of 105
 upon Salmon's height sun shine 556
 Dreamland the ventures of 579
 you hail from 730
 Dreamless bed 446
 rest is mine when 681
 sleep 612
 Dream like trade of blood and guile 316
 Dream shadows go where the 717

Dreamt I dwelt in marble halls 386
 of in your philosophy 92
 Dreamy air russet year inhaled
 the 551
 eyes they tell sweet lies 336
 Dear nighted December 383
 Dreary and cold with a chill 815 dumps these 77
 never ending tale 718
 once upon a midnight 460 to be somebody 584
 winter oh the long and 436
 Dregs of life from the 178
 of strife bitter 608
 Drenched and dripping apple trees 915
 sands 587
 Drenching, because of which 815
 Dress and manneis in England

     a stage 129
     a stepdame 1032
     affords or grows by kind 20
     alive and so bold O 367
     all forgot 336
     all things in heaven and 22
     all unity on 88
     all ye know on 383
     ancients of the and in the morning of the times 465
     and fell upon the 1124
     and heaven glories float be tween 425
     and on will forever be 378
     and sky in the bounds of 545
     and the future roast him on 774 and the sky theirs are the 846
     bards of 626
     be the indifferent 730
     bears no balsam 659
     beauty humbled to the 931
     being so good would heaven seem best 487
     bleeding piece of 82
     bliss that affords 20
     blunders along somehow the poor old 528
     bowels of the 61 121
     breaks up when 486
     breathe upon the 71

Earth bridal of the and sky 135 cannot love and think 553
     confound all unity on 88
     cruel records keeps the 570 crust of in earth 564 daughters of 232
     dust return to the 1110
     embroid the 1050
     exposed he lies on the bare 176 fall to the base 59
     fed by the bounty of 417
     felt the wound 155
     flowers appear on the 1110
     for sixty year served the 919
     fragrant the fertile 152
     frame in 25
     from heaven we hold the 659
     from lowly to vaulted skies 521 full of woes 959
     fuming vanities of 303
     gazing forever on the 773
     get away from 837
     giants in the there were 1097 girdle round about the 28 47
     give him a little for charity 74 give some special good to the 78 glance from heaven to 43
     glory passed from the 301
     goes over to the squall 915
     green firmament of the 433
     has got him 575
     has one tale to tell 619
     has stopped the ears, 743
     has suffered on 668
     hath bubbles 84
     healest with blood the 132
     heaven on 151
     heaven tries the 525
     hell on 720
     his hearth the his hall the azure 410
     his journeys are beyond the 911
     his sober inn and quiet pil grimage 121
     holds the rest of him 805
     in an earthy bed 469
     in May like the 911
     in this broad of ours 535
     insensible and be 155
     is a mill 492
     is a sepulchre 970
     is a thief 81
     is but a star 881
     is but the frozen echo 688
     is crammed with heaven 431
     is full of his glory 1111
     is hidden much on 1074
     is not on this 927
     is not the steadfast place 806 is round and like a ball 369
     is the right place for love 837
     it fell to 434
     it is well 757
     joy of the whole 1104 kindled 357
     kindly fruits of the 1127

- Earth knows a little God the rest 609
 knows no desolation 575
 lards the lean 61
 lay her in the 97
 less of than heaven 308 405
 let me enjoy the 651
 let us learn on 1092
 lie lightly gentle 130
 like an orange was round 519
 loveth the shower 1012
 making a hell 352
